The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $8.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter. In the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues, shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a, securing employment in a factory using the label or which pay the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 130. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessments levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue in color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

The amendment to postpone the May, 1922, convention was adopted. Any time after April, 1922, a convention may be called by a majority vote of the membership at large. Any local union may propose that we hold a convention any time after that date, April, 1922.

Union 192, Manchester, N. H., would like to know the whereabouts of Otto Dries.

PRIVATE LOANS

Union 97 voted to appeal to every traveling member owing this union private loans to repay the same, for as their necessities were relieved we believe other members who desire aid in the hour of their need should also be attended to, which cannot be done unless members repay these private loans. Financial secretaries holding traveling cards of members owing private loans to this union are requested to inform Union 97 of the fact if any refuse to pay their percentages. The following is a partial list of those owing private loans:

Members owing private loans to Union 111, Des Moines, Iowa, are requested to pay at once.

DECISIONS OF THE PRESIDENT

James Bertran appealed against Union 228, San Francisco, for fining him $50 for working in a non-union shop. The fine is hereby reduced to $35.

E. L. Valiquette appealed against Union 192, Manchester, for levying a running assessment in aid of a strike outside the cigar industry. The union replied that the assessment had been discontinued. Section 189 of the constitution provides that "local assessments in aid of a strike in any other trade shall not exceed 50 cents weekly, and such assessments shall not be levied for a longer period than from one meeting to another." Attention is called to this provision only for guidance in similar difficulties.

H. Parks appealed against Union 266, Memphis, for fining him for failure to parade on Labor Day. The appeal is not sustained.

The history of the labor movement is replete with movements within and without its ranks intended to divide, to disrupt and to destroy. John P. Frey has in his masterful way depicted one of these movements, its result and its application to modern trades unionism in an article entitled "Labor Must Stay United." We take the liberty of reproducing the article in its entirety, as follows:

Nothing has done more to weaken labor when a crisis is reached than division in the ranks. Again and again strong organizations have failed when the crucial test was reached, because of divided counsels and secession movements.

The pages of industrial history supply too many instances where ultimate success was made impossible because unity of action and unity of purpose had been destroyed through division in the movement.

Some seventy years before the birth of Christ industrial conditions in Rome had become intolerable for the freemen among the plebeians as well as for the slaves. The conditions imposed upon the mass of the workers had become such that they only required a strong, capable leader to organize them into an irresistible movement.

The leader proved to be a Greek gladiator named Spartacus. With a few of his loyal friends he struck down the guards at the gladiatorial school in Capua and succeeded in gaining the mountains.

Keeping in touch with the trade unions in the Italian cities and calling upon them for assistance, he was soon able to gather around him a large body of Roman trade-unionists and of slaves who were willing to fight for their liberty. Small Roman armies were sent against him and these were all defeated. Imperial Rome became alarmed and some of its best generals took the field against the labor leader whose successes as an organizer and a general were threatening the Imperial institutions.

For ten years Spartacus was able to defeat all of the Roman legions sent against him.

The trade unionists in his ranks manufactured the necessary weapons of war for his troops and directed the transportation of materials and food. Finally Rome, becoming more alarmed, gathered together all of her military resources with the intention of placing so enormous an army in the field that it could overwhelm the freemen's forces.

The ten years of experience which Spartacus had in fighting Roman troops convinced him that to meet this new and enormous army in pitched battle would mean defeat. The time had arrived when it was necessary for him to use strategy and to attack the enemy piecemeal. But younger generals in his army, men who were envious of the high position he occupied, began to circulate the story that Spartacus was becoming conservative; that he was losing his energy; that he desired to lean back upon his laurels; that he was unwilling to meet a new condition with new policies. They carried on their propaganda so successfully that a great revolt or secession movement took place. Thousands of malcontents under Granicus and Castus, two minor generals in the Spartacus army, led the movement. Filled with confidence because of the victories they had won under Spartacus, they believed themselves capable of overcoming the mass of Roman legions sent against them.

The armies met. The battle resulted in the complete defeat and destruction of the secessionists and the death of Granicus and Castus.

Although Spartacus still remained in control of his main army, its ranks had been so weakened as the result of this secession movement that he was never able again to take the field aggressively; and finally the secession movement led to the defeat of the loyal troops under Spartacus and the crucifixion of some 6,000 of his followers on the military road between Capua and Rome.

Labor may not always have the most perfect program. Labor may occasionally make mistakes, but so long as labor remains united it need fear no problem, because as a united body it can overcome its mistakes if any are committed, whereas if it divides its forces it not only will fail to overcome its problems, but will so weaken itself that it is no longer capable of maintaining its position.

The tremendous strength which has been acquired by the American Federation of Labor is due principally to two factors—the just and practical character of its policy, and the fact that it acts unitedly; once a policy has been adopted, the leaders and the membership unite in the effort to carry the policy into effect.

Division in our ranks today with the problems which lie ahead of us during the reconstruction period, would be as disastrous to the welfare of the wage earners of America as the secession movement of Granicus and Castus was to the fight for liberty being made by the Roman workmen under Spartacus.

Our only salvation as workers lies in unity of action, and the trade union movement has adopted the principle through which this is accomplished. It is called the rule of the majority and is based upon the fundamental principles of true democracy.

The citizens of the United States are governed by the rule of the majority. The American trade union movement is governed by the rule of the majority.

Both are democracies.

The secessionist, the man who preaches division in the ranks of labor, does not believe in the rule of the majority. He is influenced by other principles or considerations. Where his activities succeed his influence is more disastrous to labor than that of all of the strike-breakers and anti-trade union employers combined, because he has driven the wedge of division into the ranks of organized labor and divided instead of uniting their strength.

The heart and hand of every justice-loving man or woman in this fair land should be pledged to support remedial legislation, be it by way of Child Labor. Constitutional Amendment, by act of Congress, or by restrictive state measures, that will banish child labor from being a part of our industrial life.

The welfare of posterity, the welfare of civilization and the welfare of labor are each equally endangered when the lives of our children are fed into the hoppers of industry. The welfare of posterity is endangered because the children of today must of necessity be the parents of tomorrow. Parentage whose vitality has been previously sapped by grilling toil during the years that mental and physical development should have received their due attention cannot hope to reproduce normal, healthy offspring. The welfare of civilization is endangered due to the fact that the child mind when denied education, denied playtime and denied imagination, as it must be when the child becomes a cog in the industrial wheel, never grows, never creates and never rises to the demands of evolution. The welfare of labor is wronged because child labor, always exploited, robs the adult producer of a fair and saving wage and thus deprives the nation as a whole of the only avenue through which can possibly come national prosperity and national wellbeing.

The only thing that child labor helps is capital. The only thing it serves is profit. It is the duty of every right-thinking, red-blooded citizen to aid in whatever way he can in wiping this infamous thing from our industrial and commercial life.

At the time it was written and for the period it was intended, even adding scope for such expansion as was Revise National Constitution. then visualized, the Constitution of the United States was a great document. At the time of its adoption it was by far the most democratic and the most favorable scheme of popular government then existent.

It is a great document today, embodying within its scheme of government many basic laws that are essentially meet and proper, but we as a nation have outgrown much of it, and many problems have come into our national life that were not even dreamed of at the time of its adoption.

The Constitution has never been revised, and all of its amendments with the exception of seven, were adopted before 1805. Almost one hundred and twenty years have elapsed and only a comparatively few amendments have been adopted, and these few were intended to meet some particular matter rather than to meet the ever-changing conditions that time and growth have brought to the nation.

Article five of the Constitution provides for its revision by way of constitutional convention. The pressing needs of the present day seemingly are of enough moment to demand such a convention at this time. Relief through the channels of amendment is slow and by no means sure; hence the necessity for a general revision.

Business concerns do not attempt to forward their affairs with antiquated laws, rules or machinery and the government of over 100,000,000 people is about the biggest business enterprise in the nation after all.

There are only two systems in industry—union and non-union. The union system is predicated on collective bargaining and the democratic principle of representation in conference by those whom the workers themselves choose.

The non-union system represents individual bargaining with no provision for any representation whatsoever in industrial dispute.

One system represents democracy and the other represents feudalism. One system represents freedom and the other represents slavery.

The choice as between the two systems is left with the workers themselves. They can, if they so decide, become free men and enjoy the fruits that collective bargaining has proved may be had for the price of belonging to the union; or they may, if they so choose, remain subservient vassals of the master's whim, depending absolutely upon his autocratic power for the opportunity to work in order that they may eat their daily bread.

Seemingly as between the two systems there should be but one choice; yet the vast army of unorganized workers proves that there are many who have as yet failed to sense the way toward their own emancipation.

The purpose of those who have set their feet upon ambition's ladder should be to educate and to agitate constantly and aggressively until all who toil will be able and willing to choose the better system.

Organized wage earners may be properly classified into three groups—the doers, the onlookers and the quitters.

Which Is Your Group? The doers are those stout-hearted, loyal members who are everlastingly on the job to better conditions, raise wages and to shorten the hours of labor, giving unstintedly of their time and energy to build up and strengthen their union for the betterment of all concerned.

The onlookers are those lukewarm fellows who feel that when they have paid their dues they have then discharged their full and final obligation to themselves and to their fellow workers.

The quitters are those weak-kneed individuals who refuse to stand by the organization in time of strife with either their personality or their pocket-book, the fair weather members who usually belong to the organization just for the job in hand and who are entirely forgetful of principle as it applies to the betterment of the wage worker.

Upon the doers fall the brunt of initiative work, the ceaseless grind of detail, and upon their shoulders rests the burden of all who toil with hand or brain. They are at once the pioneers of all that is visioned and the guardians of all that has been accomplished in the past.

The time is now opportune for the doers to write PROGRESS upon the unfolding scroll of labor history. That the inscription may be properly amplified and that its permanency may be assured we need the active help of the heretofore onlookers and the whole-hearted co-operation of the erstwhile quitters. With these two groups standing shoulder to shoulder with the always militant doers there is no obstacle we cannot surmount and no hope need die aborning. The real strength of a union lies in the number of doers it has upon its roster. Be a doer.

The employer of non-union labor who arbitrarily sets the wage schedule, fixes the hours of labor and Controlling Influence dictates without stay in the Home. or hindrance the working conditions of his employees becomes the dictator and the controlling factor in the home of the worker. He invades the home and regulates the hours of labor of the wife by saying at what hour the husband shall commence his day's work and at what time he may return to his home. On his decision rests the matter of the children's ability to attend school and whether or not they may have time for play. He even regulates what kind and how much food they may eat regardless of their wants or their needs for proper nourishment. In fact, he becomes at once the absolute governing power in the employee's family life.

This is exercising an influence which is not only degrading, reducing as it does the entire family to the status of menials, but it is entirely at variance with the American conception of what the home should be. It is only through trades union organization that these unwholesome conditions can be alleviated, and the worker who really senses the interests of himself and his family will see to it that he becomes a part of the organization that will put himself rather than his employer in the position of controlling the home.

The Sixty-seventh Congress, just ended, which was called especially to pass certain laws failed utterly in its purpose Reaction despite the every aid that privilege and wealth could muster. Fails.

The failure of the ship subsidy bill is the greatest rebuff suffered by a chief executive in many years. Through the efforts of organized labor and a group of liberty-loving legislators in both the House and the Senate, not only this piece of pernicious legislation, but many other bills intended to usurp human liberty and to handcuff labor went into the discard.

Labor has cause to rejoice not alone in the defeat of the reactionary bills introduced; we rejoice as well for the hope that is held out for future legislation. The lesson was sharp and well defined, and reactionaries will do well to heed the failure of their predecessors and harken to the voice of an aroused public opinion.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The union label is the most economical agency of trade union work, its cost being little compared to its results.

The union label is the inspiration, the guide-post and the rallying point of the energetic and conscientious women in every community. It gives us the Woman's Union Label League.

A pessimist closes an eye, wrinkles his face, draws up the corner of his mouth and says, "It can't be done." An optimist has a face full of sunshine, he beams on you and says, "It can be done," and then tells George to do it. But a pep-timist takes off his hat, rolls up his sleeves, goes to it, and does it.

The union worker represents the highest class of labor and the most skillful. His unionism stands for fairness to himself, his family, and his employer, and the real unionist stands just as ready to see his employer treated fairly as he does himself. The good union must be equitable in all its dealings if it is to prosper and grow, and the more extreme its fairness, the greater its prosperity. Justice to all must be its watchword and form its motto. There must be no deviation.

Employers like to see newspapers print stuff about "labor shortage" just now because it gives them a point in their unholy argument for free immigration.

Well, we can produce a lot more than we do now before we run short of man-power.

We produced more during the war than we do now, by millions and millions of dollars' worth, and 4,000,000 of the best workers were taken entirely out of our industrial life, at the same time consuming more than they ever consumed before.

The argument for unrestricted immigration is a fraud.

Hastily dropping the union when wages are "high" and jobs are plentiful and repenting at leisure is the story associated with and a part of the lives of many who were shortsighted enough to drop the union.

The prices asked for cigar leaf tobacco of practically all types and grades shows an increase.

Connecticut wrappers of good quality are very scarce, the available supply being quickly bought up by the large interests, hence many manufacturers will find it necessary to change to other types for their wrapper demands. Good binders are scarce and the price is correspondingly high. Everything suitable for a wrapper has been carefully selected from the crop. Filler of excellent quality is plentiful but the price seems to have followed other types in its upward trend. An abundant crop of excellent Havana tobacco is promised.

The need of increased revenue has caused several states to cast a wistful eye toward the already overtaxed cigar as a means toward replenishing their treasuries. North Dakota and South Carolina have bills pending that will place a tax of approximately ten per cent on the retail selling price of cigars.

Despite the failure of the cigar business to keep pace with other industries, it having decreased to a considerable extent in the last few years, it seems to be the Atlas upon whose shoulders is placed the burden of a world of taxation. Internal Revenue taxes added as a war time measure are still taking toll from the industry and now state legislatures are seemingly intending to saddle upon the back of the smoker further burdens.

Such a condition will only add to the depression now marked in the cigar industry and the final result will be the death of the goose which has so far produced many golden eggs for the revenue basket.

The trade union movement is of the wage-earning class, recognizing that class interests, that class advancement, that class progress is best made by working class trade union action. --Federationist.

Whatever government is not a government of laws is despotism, let it be called what it may. Daniel Webster.

INTELLIGENT UNITY OF EFFORT BRINGS REWARDS TO WORKERS.

By Hugh Franey.

"Organize" has been the watchword of the American Federation of Labor for years. "Educate" has been likewise a slogan of labor for years. There are no better words today—no better guides to complete freedom, no better guides to the development of that industrial democracy which has come to be the dream of mankind and the hope of the race.

We claim the right to organize as workers. We claim the right to have a say in making the conditions under which the workers shall be employed, and the right of collective bargaining. We claim that the hours of employment should be reduced to the point where the health and safety of the workers must be safeguarded.

If those who seek to destroy the trade unions are successful in their efforts they will not have succeeded in solving the labor problem or in any way helping to improve the industrial and economic conditions of the country.

Such a movement, if successful, would create a condition of radicalism and anarchy which would be uncontrollable. All of the things which are offered today as remedies have proven failures and instead of settling the workers' problems they have done nothing except to create bitterness and antagonism between the workers and the employers. That is not solving industrial unrest.

Organization establishes and maintains high standards of living for the American working man and his family. It eliminates the things that stand in the way of social and economic justice for all. All labor wants and insists upon having is the same right that is given to every one else under the law. It will steadfastly refuse to accept anything less.

If those who are seeking to destroy the trade unions are successful in their efforts they will not have succeeded in solving the labor problem or in any way helping to improve the industrial and economic conditions of the country, but will widen the breach between the employer and the employee.

If social and economic justice to the workers is given due consideration the danger of the spread of Bolshevism will be entirely removed. This doctrine thrives upon industrial unrest and by removing the cause the disease will soon disappear.

We cannot solve problems by evading them, and there is no use in any of us trying to evade our responsibilities. This is a human problem and must be dealt with as such. The human element must always be taken into consideration if we ever expect to bring about more harmonious relations between employer and employee and bring about a better unity and co-operation among the people of our country.

A PRESCRIPTION FOR "MAKING THE GOVERNMENT DO SOMETHING."

By John A. Voll.

One of the commonest and yet most important questions to which expression is given by the average citizen, and especially the wage earners and farmers of our country, when things are abnormally wrong in government, in trade and in industry, is "Why doesn't the government do something?"

If we will but stop to reflect a moment, consult our mind and exchange views and opinions with our neighbors we will find that the men who are and have been dominant in the administering of government have not as yet consented to let the majority into the game.

Woodrow Wilson in his New Freedom says: "There are very few of us who have had any real access to the government. It ought to be a matter of common council; a matter of united council; a matter of mutual comprehension."

Because there has not been common council, united council and mutual comprehension relative to government is the reason why the wage earning and agricultural classes in our country have been exploited by the financial group therein; for it is the financial group that dominates and manipulates government now and has done so in the past.

It is through the exercise of this power in government and the control of finance and its manipulation that the farmers' products are periodically forced down below the cost of production and then credit refused by which they are prevented from holding their crops for a recovery of the market, thus forcing thousands of their kind into bankruptcy and many more thousands to its brink.

The same power that brings this plight upon the farmers launched the open shop movement against the wage earners; forced the railway shopmen, the textile workers, the granite cutters and many other craftsmen to strike; locked out the miners and printers through breaking of agreements and brought on the sudden slump in business that resulted in millions of wage earners being thrown out of employment.

Moreover, it is this control and manipulation of government and finance that denies equal rights and privileges between citizens within government. Under these conditions it is only natural that the question, "Why doesn't the government do something?" is so universally propounded throughout the country.

The answer to it is that the government will do something when the organized wage earners and the organized farmers continuously cast their votes for men who are true to the principles and practices of real democratic government and use their influence to have their friends and the unorganized of their respective groups to do likewise.

In other words, if the wage earners and the farmers expect to be fairly dealt with through government, they must elect men to official positions from the highest to the lowest who will stand for a square deal regardless of what pressure may be brought to bear upon them and agitate, educate and organize to bring about an amendment to the Constitution that will put the federal courts upon a democratic basis and thus more responsive to the people's will as expressed through their representatives.

THE "WHY" OF UNIONS.

By G. W. Perkins.

Necessity Brought Them; Necessity Keeps Them.

The trade union movement is as solid as a rock of adamant. It is not the product of any one man's brain. It was not thought out in advance. It is neither copyrighted nor patented. It grew out of necessity.

The condition of the working masses in the early days had become well nigh intolerable. They had monthly payments for wages and usually found themselves at the end of the month in debt to the foreman or superintendent of the firm for which they worked. The work day was limited by nature. The workers commenced at sunrise and worked until darkness intervened. The coming of artificial light only added to their burdens. Instead of being a comfort it was used to compel them to work longer hours and the day's work then was limited to human endurance. Exhaustion closed the work day. Wages were correspondingly low.

Living under these adverse conditions with their frightful burden, the workers first formed crude shop unions. These embryonic efforts grew into unions of the workers in the other factories in the town and then extended to state lines and finally into national and international unions.

The necessity which caused the conception and birth of the union is just as pressing today as it was then, and that very necessity will keep the trade union movement alive.

In all former industrial depressions and periods of unemployment the unions have lost membership, but they have always come back. Starting at any given point if the general movement had 500,000 members at the commencement of an industrial depression it might drop to 400,000, but with the return of prosperity it would immediately rebound and go to 700,000 or 800,000, and so on.

In the industrial depression and period of unemployment now drawing to a close it is true that the general trade union movement has lost some members. This is regrettable, but frightens no one familiar with past history.

With returning steady employment the movement, as it has in the past, will go forward with leaps and bounds until it extends as far above the number it had at the commencement of this dull period. This process will keep on repeating itself until practically all working men and women are enrolled under the banners of their respective unions.

At one time there were less than 50,000 members in what is now the American Federation of Labor. At the commencement of the last depression there were between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 organized workers in this country. At the time the next period of stagnation sets in there will be 10,000,000 or 15,000,000 or more organized workers. Demonstrated facts prove all of this.

Increased membership brings with it new problems and greater responsibility. This responsibility must be met and the new problems solved. Our success will be measured by our ability to meet the issue and the responsibility. Of the result there is no fear, and no misgivings and no doubts.

The facts prove that there is no room for discouragement or apprehension.

No power on earth can destroy the trade union movement. The workers themselves cannot destroy it. The necessity which brought it into being will keep it alive and constantly growing. Legislation and oppression cannot destroy this mighty force for improvement, and the time is coming when no one possessed of his right senses will really want to see it destroyed.

UNIONS LEAD UPWARD.

By G. W. Perkins.

Without Unionism Wage Earners Struggle On, Weak Impoverished.

If there were no trade unions there would be no great development of industry, trade and commerce in this or any other country. It is the consuming power of the masses which keeps the wheels of industry in constant revolution. The masses consume in accord with the wages received.

Periods of unemployment are caused by under-consumption, which is usually referred to as overproduction. Under-consumption is caused by the workers not receiving in wages enough to consume that which they produce. The only sure remedy for unemployment and periods of industrial and commercial stagnation is better wages for the consuming masses.

There is no power on earth by which wages can be increased and maintained except through united effort and collective bargaining in our trade unions.

The rich are in the small minority and consequently they do not keep the wheels of industry in constant motion. It is the wage earners who by force of number do the great bulk of the consuming.

The sooner big interests and trade union opponents and non-union advocates realize this fact and encourage instead of discourage the trade union movement the sooner we shall be on the road to prevention of long periods of unemployment with its frightful suffering and consequent depression in trade and commerce.

In countries where there is no organized labor movement wages are lowest and the hours of labor longest and there is no general prosperity for anyone except politicians and the privileged few. In countries where wages are highest and the hours of labor shortest civilization has reached its highest peak and general prosperity and the volume of business industrially, commercially and financially is greater than all other countries operating under the low wage and long-hour system. There is no formidable labor movement in China; there is no prosperity there. The same can be said of kindred countries. If low wages and long hours make for industrial and commercial greatness China would be leading the world instead of the United States, where wages are highest and the hours shortest, occupying that proud position.

No legislation and no fine spun high sounding resolutions ever have or ever will prevent periods of unemployment with the consequent industrial and commercial stagnation.

Some day in the not far distant future these economic facts will be recognized and the trade union movement will be regarded as a mighty force working for the good of all mankind and as a stabilizing force which is protecting and advancing modern civilization. Then all right-minded and liberty-loving, progressive people will hail our movement and proclaim it a blessing to mankind.

In the righteous march in the direction of the doctrine which declares for the greatest good to the greatest number the trade union movement will lead undaunted and unafraid. It has no fears for its own existence and never doubts its ability to fulfill all of its self-imposed obligations and looks forward to the day when a grateful people will recognize and proclaim its usefulness and power for good.

The trade union movement stands for justice, equality, happiness, and good will to all mankind.

UNIONS PROVE MERIT.

By Hugh Frayne.

Many Other Schemes Have Been Tried and Failed.

Why the trade unions? Why the non-union unions? Who has the greater opportunity for success, the trade unionist or the non-unionist, the organized or the unorganized worker?

It does not require much thought or argument to reach a decision upon this question, even though the decision should be left to the non-unionist, if he will honestly and truthfully answer the question.

Why the so-called Open Shop, the American Plan, Industrial Democracy, House and Senate Plan, the Bonus System, and other inspired schemes of anti-trade unionists and unfriendly agencies who offer these many-times-proven unsound remedies as a substitute for the real militant and constructive trade union as a solution of the workers' problems.

None of these inducements or promises can bring to the men and women of labor the returns, the permanency and security that the trade unions do. The American Federation of Labor organizes the workers for their economic and social betterment. These non-union movements disorganize the workers and prevent their participation in the benefits secured through organized effort.

Before and after the names and titles of these non-union unions the worker has written the word "failure," as no one knows better than he does what are his desires and wants. From practical experience he knows that every advance made in his economic and social development has come to him through the power and influence of the American Federation of Labor, an organization of strength which does not fear to raise its voice in defense of justice and right.

Organized labor is the best judge of what labor's needs are and in its own time and way can be depended to look after and safeguard the interests of the workers. The trade union movement has brought the nationalities of the world together in harmony and co-operation and is doing more to improve their physical, mental and moral condition than any other agency.

Employers who fail to treat their employees decently assume a liability that they can never pay. Such a method of dealing with labor problems is making progress backwards.

The record of organized labor is one that the trade unionist may well feel proud of. Its achievements are an evidence of its work for human progress and freedom for the working people of our country. No movement that has for its purpose the betterment of humanity has ever been denied its support. Its legislative program for Workmen's Compensation and Child Labor laws, fire prevention, factory sanitation, and the thousands of laws to safeguard human life, organized labor's fight against the enactment of unjust laws to take away the guaranteed rights of the workers and of the public generally, is the answer to "Why the Trade Unions."

Don't Tolerate Division.

By G. W. Perkins.

Big Interests Are All Happy When Wage Earners Disagree.

Big Interests, the privileged few, and profiteers since the beginning of recorded time have developed a false psychology in the minds and hearts of the workers, which is studiously kept alive.

Hired political economists wrote 150 years ago alleged scientific principles into the textbooks of colleges and other seats of learning, such as the iron law of wages and the immutable law of supply and demand, and they have been there ever since. These doctrines were false when written and are untrue today. The trade union philosophy has proved this. The cold storage and trusts and combinations of big interests have disproved their theories of supply and demand and the iron law of wages.

The workers are kept divided, fighting and hating each other by subtle, cunningly devised propaganda, appealing to racial feelings and religious and political prejudices, judiciously broadcasted among them. The farmer is told the cause of his ills is high wages of the industrial workers; the industrial workers are told the farmer is the cause of the shortage and high cost of agricultural produce. Both sides too often believe these villainous mis-statements.

If a railroad bridge burns during a strike the workers are pilloried in the press and their leader is mobbed and sometimes lynched. After the strike it invariably develops that the bridge was fired by live coals from faulty fire beds in run-down engines, or by a hired strike-breaker for the purpose of turning the public mind against the workers.

False accusations are circulated against local and international officers and members for the purpose of causing distrust, misgiving and lack of faith in the trade union movement.

This can be remedied if members now organized would resolve not to believe stories circulated against labor, its officers and members until investigation proves them guilty; agree to sink all personal differences growing out of race, religion or politics and unite on the economic field in the trade union movement for fair wages, shorter hours and better working conditions; stop knocking; let the sunlight of human kindness take the place of distrust and hatred; stop doing the things that benefit only the big interests, privileged few, and the profiteers; and devote our efforts at least on the economic field to the furtherance of the best interests of men and women who toil for their livelihood.

A. Garlepy received 2,454 votes, a majority of all votes cast, and is hereby declared elected. A. McDonald received 626 votes; J. A. Sullivan 612, and Ed Vincent 207.

Good health is one of any nation's greatest assets. Trade unions make for better health and greater longevity of its membership.

REPORT OF ORGANIZER

York, Pa., March 7, 1923.

Since my last report I have been visiting local unions of this district on the question of holding district conferences for organization work. Met with organization committee and International President Perkins in Philadelphia on Feb. 21, at which meeting the committee adopted a plan to be placed before all local unions of Pennsylvania through district organizations.

I have visited most of the locals of this district known as district No. 2. When all locals have been visited a district meeting will be held and from those district meetings will be formed a general conference of all districts of the state.

In this way it is believed that by obtaining all the information concerning our trade and the facts given that an interest will be aroused among the cigarmakers of Pennsylvania sufficient to make them see the necessity of joining the union of their craft.

Coupled with this work the conferences will push agitation for the label and endeavor to get the co-operation of all unions in demanding label goods.

Fraternally yours,
WM. A. McCABE, Org.

REPORT OF INTERNATIONAL FINANCIER

West Palm Beach, Feb. 8, 1923.

Since last report have examined the accounts of the following unions, viz:

Union 29, Jacksonville, Fla.

There has been an unusual condition here—neglect, and then some. Have the promise of more attention to union affairs for the future from the members of Union 29. Am in hopes they will make good. They are capable and can if they will. Statement as follows:
Financier's balance for May 1, 1919....$ 908.40

Union 53, New Orleans, La.

It is certainly pleasant to find the accounts in the condition they are here now. Each time I examine them I find marked improvement. Every benefit card and endorsed vouchers on file for every item of expense in the rotation in which the items are entered. Cash and stamp accounts correct. Ledger correctly indexed and posted to show every member's standing complete. Nice work. Statement as follows:

Union 220, New Orleans, La.

The books and accounts here are now in the best condition I ever found them in. Every benefit card and expense voucher are filed in the rotation in which the expense is entered in the accounts. Ledger nicely indexed and posted. Cash and stamp accounts correct. The Financial Secretary-Treasurer and Finance Committee have done their work well. Some members seem to feel that the payment of dues ends their duty to the union. Not so. An active membership looks after shop conditions; in fact anything connected with their job. The less attention you pay to your job the less agreeable it becomes and in time may become unbearable. President Perkins will be in New Orleans during January of this year and I do hope he will be able to inject a little "pep" in the members here. Also attract the attention of cigar workers not members of the union. A change in the cigar industry in New Orleans will make the lives of quite a number of workers better and at the same time will benefit the men operating cigar factories here. Better shop and wage conditions means a better grade of cigars, better prices naturally follow, and men operating shops here will realize a better profit. Statement as follows:

Had a heart to heart talk with the secretary here, through an able interpreter. Our situation was made clear to him. I was informed. The secretary promised that he would in the future make up all reports, have a list of all members receiving benefits and forward them to the International office on the first of each month, and when notified that they were not received at the International office he would make out duplicates and send them in immediately. When he found out why assistance had not been forwarded, because he had failed to send in his reports that would explain what became of their ordinary receipts and assistance previously received, he showed surprise; he seemed to have thought when he paid out the money all he had to do was call for more and when it did not come, and he did not answer requests for the necessary reports showing who the money had been paid to, quite a few of the members seemed to think the International Union was not treating them fairly, and said so, when the fact was, had they been as able and consistent in their duties as union members as they were in demanding International Union money, there could have been no friction—everything would have worked out nicely. The truth is, all the trouble here has been their own making, non-attention to the duties of the union officers. In fact, Sec'y Melon has all the work to do and he not understanding English is why to a great extent that he has not better understood his duties and failure to comply with requests from the International office. I imagine he will be able now, with a little help I believe he can have, to do his work and stop this unnecessary friction.

The accounts here show every member's standing complete, for dues and every benefit drawn; splendid ledger work; all benefit cards and vouchers on file in the rotation in which the items of expense are entered in the day book, except for tax to Int'l Union and assistance to unions; especially nice bookkeeping. On the other hand the Sec'y and Finance Committee have allowed errors in receipts and expense to get by, which accounts for the $67.20 due to the Sec'y on this examination. While the books are handled by ladies that quite likely never tried to manage accounts before, I must say they have done very well; evidently honest and intend having them correct. It is a hard matter to hold a woman's union, particularly in this district. A number of these girls seem to understand why the union, why a member; that is the basis for real membership. Public Opinion Defeats Nation's Most Reactionary Congress.

(Weekly News Service—A. F. of L.)

The defeated ship subsidy bill marks the close of a congress that in several ways is the most remarkable in the history of the country.

This congress is the first that was called in special session by a president to pass a certain law and then declined to pass the law, despite every power and government favor the president could muster and every aid to his cause by privilege and wealth.

This struggle was not because of an ordinary recommendation by the president, but was a clear cut attempt to jam through legislation of a most pernicious character by men who have been repudiated by the people. It was a contest between the executive and the legislative branch, backed by popular opinion. The latter forces triumphed.

The failure of the ship subsidy bill is a most crushing defeat for its advocates, and no chief executive ever suffered such a stinging rebuff.

The same forces that backed the subsidy bill established another record by attacks on human liberty.

The extent of these onslaughts is indicated by the so-called "judicial kidnapping bill," which would give a federal judge in San Francisco, for instance, the right to order the arrest of a man in Boston.

If this bill passed a federal marshal could arrest a citizen and take him across the country without giving him a hearing in his home jurisdiction or even inform him why he was arrested.

For viciousness this proposal can be compared with attempts to handcuff labor to its task and with the sedition laws that destroyed the federalist party over 100 years ago.

In the senate attempts were made to pass a handcuff law, but the agents of reaction depended more on stealth than force to enslave workers.

The policy of stealth was shown in the senate bill entitled, "A bill providing for the better protection of aliens." This would authorize the federal government to interfere in the internal affairs of any state when the rights of an alien were alleged to be threatened. Under this law federal troops and federal deputy marshals could be used in an industrial dispute where even one alien was involved.

The federal government would take charge of practically every strike, as corporations would quickly provide themselves with the necessary alien if none were on their payroll.

Another proposal involved the establishment of an espionage system for aliens who would be registered, a scheme that would eventually be extended to American citizens who work for wages when the public became accustomed to this European importation.

These secret attacks on liberty were less sensational than the ship subsidy proposal, but they did not escape the vigilance of organized labor, which continually warned the country of its dangers.

In the senate were a brave group of liberty lovers, whose successful repulses of reaction have been an inspiration to every true American.

From the cossack group, however, wage earners were repeatedly attacked, and pleas for handcuff legislation and other enslaving devices were made by men who have sat in that body for the last time.

A few months ago these men were given first page attention in the daily press. They thundered in the senate against workers who dare to unite. They urged legislation that has not been suggested on the floor of the senate since slavery was abolished.

Labor met these attacks with intelligence, solidarity and vigor.

Labor is not only unscathed, but by its appeals to a sound public opinion the workers defeated un-American proposals of senators who now descend into a political wilderness of their own making.

Their race is run. As they sink into oblivion their fate will be a reminder to others that the people yet demand a price for treachery to American ideals.

Like a giant searchlight the Union Label shines to guide the groping consumer in his quest for sound products. The buyer nearly always works in the dark. He must depend on the reputation of the seller for assurance that the merchandise he gets will be good. The guarantee of no manufacturer or merchant quite equals the Union Label as surety of sound value.

Products of union shops are always made under healthful conditions and will not carry infections. The best of materials, fashioned into articles by non-union, child or convict labor, may well lose their worth as a result of inferior workmanship.

For union men there are many reasons for searching out label bearing goods. It has been repeatedly declared by wise union leaders and by disinterested economists that the battle of labor will be won the day all staunch unionists and their wives come to realize their duty to buy only union made goods and service. The label affords a method for organizing labor in a two-fold way—first, as producers and, second, as consumers. Labor is the most important consuming class in the country. The label and better wages go hand in hand. The demand for union made goods is dependent upon the wages paid in other trades. Owners of union shops, therefore, can soon be made to see the economic soundness of the living wage principle.

Every time a union member buys "unfair" goods he strikes a blow at the union craftsmen in that trade, which blow naturally reacts against the buyer and all union workers.

The union label on any product is a guarantee that the money paid for it will return to the consumer, with interest, in the form of improved social surroundings.

Why Some Senators Go Wrong.

BY COURTESY OF THE AMERICAN FEDERATION

Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service, emphasized the need of trained public health officers at the closing session of the National Public Health Conference in Chicago. Dr. W. S. Rankin, secretary of the North Carolina State Board of Health, said 4,000,000 school children in the United States are involved in the problem of mal-nutrition.

Charges made by the New York World that child labor was employed in the beet fields were fully substantiated by a preliminary report of the Children's Bureau of the Dept. of Labor. Summarizing the forthcoming report, the department announced that in 500 families studied "either a child under 16 or a mother of a child under 6 worked in the beet fields in 1920." In the families studied, 67 per cent of the children between 6 and 16 were found at work in the beet fields. Over one-fourth of the children reported 11 to 15 hours daily work in the fields.

There are only two ways by which organized labor can hope to win strikes, declared President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor in a message to the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. One is through the co-operation of all locals to sustain the strikers against starvation during the strike. The other is by gaining the sympathy of the public "when tyrants try to impose their wills upon the masses."

OFFICIAL

EXECUTIVE BOARD.

- G. W. PERKINS, President,
503 S. Dearborn St., Chicago.
- SAMUEL GOMPERS, 318 W. 51st St., New York City, First Vice President.
- I. M. ORNBURN, 286 York St., New Haven, Conn., Second Vice President.
- A. GARIEPY, 239 Ave. Hotel de Ville, Montreal, Can., Third Vice-President.
- MANUEL GONZALEZ, Box 396, Ybor City, Tampa, Fla., Fourth Vice President.
- E. G. HALL, 4124 Bryant Ave., S., Minneapolis, Minn., Fifth Vice President.
- CHAS. H. STEVENS, 350 Broadway, Buffalo, N. Y., Sixth Vice President.
- E. J. STACK, Labor Temple, Portland, Ore., Seventh Vice President.
- GIBSON WEBER, 1710 N. Gratz St., Station C, Philadelphia, Pa., Treasurer.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members, who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also as per section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study section 14c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member. If there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

Notice of the special assessment of $1 on all 30c and 60c members and 50c on Class B members, in compliance with Section 92 (a) of the Constitution, is herewith given. This assessment takes effect March 26, 1923, and may be paid in two weekly installments. New initiates who have not been members for four months are exempt from all assessments. All who join after March 26 are exempt from payment of the March assessment. Class B members do not have to pay any International assessments until they have been members for six months. Forty-cent beneficiary members do not have to pay the special strike fund assessment. Members out of work are not exempt from this assessment.

IN MEMORIAM

In reporting deaths kindly comply with the following and you will save time and unnecessary work: Give full name, number, date and place of initiation of member. Has member held retiring card? If so, did he pay his dues? This information relates only to such as you can obtain from the records of your own union. If admitted by card, state when and where from, and, in addition, send in such cards, but place in your letter the information necessary, as the letter is filed as a matter of record. Before paying death benefits study Sections 133 to 145, inclusive. Send in a death blank properly filled out for all death benefits paid.

INTERNATIONAL FINES

The International Executive Board approved the application of Union 210, Rome, N. Y., to fine the following $100 each and annul their cards for working in a non-union shop: F. C. Ferguson (72962), E. A. Leetz (100181) and John Goodwin. Vote: Affirmative—5; one member approved only $25.

Approved the application of Union 480, Orlando, Fla., to fine Alfred Curry (38992) $25 for conduct unbecoming a union man. Vote: Affirmative—6.

Approved the application of Union 179, Bangor, Maine, to fine Dorothy Galpert (23636) $50 for going to work in the B. F. Adams shop. Vote: Affirmative—5; one member approved only $25.

Approved the application of Union 179, Bangor, Maine, to fine Lloyd Bickford, an apprentice, $300 for continuing to work in the strike shop of B. F. Adams and persistently refusing to come out. Vote: Affirmative—5; one member approved only $25.

Approved the application of Union 179, Bangor, Maine, to fine Richard Mortell $300 for going to work in the B. F. Adams strike shop and persistently refusing to come out. Vote: Affirmative—5; one member approved only $25.

Approved the application of Union 240, Norfolk, Va., to fine Robert Lee $25 for operating a non-union shop and to fine E. Camper and L. V. Curtis each $25 for working in that shop. Vote: Affirmative—6.

Approved the application of Union 331, Crookston, Minn., to fine J. E. Ergeson $50 for working in a Great Northern roundhouse during the strike. Vote: Affirmative—5; one member approved only $25.

Approved the application of Union 12, Oneida, N. Y., to fine Edward L. Mead (107449) and Frank J. Smith (112740) $50 each and annul their cards for working in the Powell & Goldstine factory. Vote: Affirmative—4; one member approved the fines but not the annulment of cards and one member approved a fine of $25.

Approved the application of Union 201, Rock Island, Ill., to fine G. B. Mallick (34581) $25 for working in the unfair shop of E. J. Frey & Co. Vote: Affirmative—6.

The child who demands the union label wields more influence than the man or woman who strikes. The strikers' place may be filled, but there is no substitute for the union label.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED

The amendment of Union 132, Brooklyn, as published in the January issue, as follows: The first paragraph of Section 2 of the Constitution shall read: "The next convention of the Cigar-makers' International Union shall be held on the second Monday in August, 1923."

Received the endorsement of Unions 302, Teacumsch; 165, Philadelphia; 389, New York; 257, Lancaster; 97, Boston; 14, Chicago; 44, St. Louis; 404, Austin; 22, Detroit; 213, New York; 329, Fond du Lac; 470, Portland; 72, Burlington; 384, St. Augustine; 283, Geneva; 514, Tampa; 506, Tampa; 316, McSherrystown; 54, Evansville; 292, Brooklyn; 318, St. Cloud; 172, Davenport; 111, Des Moines; 251, New York; 17, Cleveland; 98, St. Paul; 336, Tampa.

Having received the required number of endorsements, will be submitted to a vote of local unions.

The amendment of Union 90, New York, as published in the February issue, as follows:

Strike out Section 61a-Special and insert the following:

SECTION 61a. NON-BENEFICIAL CLASS.

All persons engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted therein, may become members under the following plan:

1. $2.00 initiation fee, payable in 4 weekly installments of 50c each.
 2. 30c weekly dues.
 3. All International strike and label assessments.
 4. All local assessments.
- Members enrolled in this class will be entitled to the following:
1. The full strike assistance, same as the 60c paying members receive.
 2. Out of work stamps.
 3. Traveling loan not exceeding $10.00.

Members enrolled in this class shall have the privilege of paying the 60c weekly dues and all International assessments and be entitled to all benefits from the time of such transfer. (To illustrate, for sick, death and full traveling loan benefits they will be considered as new initiates.)

Members having paid 60c dues prior, or those who may pay 60c dues after the adoption of this provision, shall have the privilege to transfer to this non-beneficial class, they must sign waiver rights to all further benefits from the International Union (excepting those that this class entitles them).

In all other respects the laws governing arrears in dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of strike assistance, out of work stamps and traveling loan, and all other laws governing the 60c paying members shall apply to members enrolled in this class.

This amendment to go into effect upon adoption.

Received the endorsement of Unions 104, Pottsville; 149, Brooklyn; 14, Chicago; 37, Fort Wayne; 8, Hoboken; 402, Quakertown; 132, Brooklyn; 900, New York; 141, New York; 44, St. Louis; 165, Philadelphia; 144, New York; 257, Lancaster; 353, Brooklyn.

By Union No. 218, Binghamton, N. Y., to Section 70 of the International Constitution:

Amend Section 70 by striking out on line 2 the figures 60 and insert the figures 50. the section so amended to read:

Sec. 70. Every member, except as herein otherwise provided, shall pay to the local to which he belongs the sum of 50 cents per week dues, etc.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted herein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues for 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $3.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter, in the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrears of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues, shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a, securing employment in a factory using the label or which pay the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 130. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all international assessments levied before or after these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessment levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue in color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp; on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

The amendment to postpone the May, 1922, convention was adopted. Any time after April, 1922, a convention may be called by a majority vote of the membership at large. Any local union may propose that we hold a convention any time after that date, April, 1922.

CORRESPONDENCE

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 21, 1923.

Los Angeles is the attraction and terminal for the traveling public of the nation. And Old Sol gives special service to southern California. And the newspapers who discovered this fact are advertising the southland and its advantage in every one of their issues, which attracts people from all parts of the world, for all are welcome to the blessed sunshine, providing they have the coin to pay the high rent and the high bill of fare in general.

Los Angeles is equipped with all modern conveniences, for it has mental geniuses from all parts of the world to construct the same. But, fellow craftsmen, in case you intend to come here, know beforehand that cigar making in Los Angeles is not profitable under the present prices. And know before you land here that you will have to make them for nothing. Think of it, rolling a 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch cigar for \$ $\frac{1}{2}$ per M. with a foreman over your head that is watching every move, and if there is anything to his displeasure causes your discharge and another one of the newcomers takes your place. At the present rate of travel to Los Angeles no manufacturer is troubled about getting cheap help. There is hardly any time when manufacturers of cigars do not turn people away looking for work. And you find here many surprised people, having left better working conditions in the east. But having spent all their money for railroad tickets, they must work under any undesirable conditions until help comes to them from the outside. And to them California looks different after they have seen one of the Los Angeles cigar foundries, for machinery in our craft is in use in this city, which helps to keep man power at the lowest notch. The influx of people is so great that the Cigarmakers' Union 225 is powerless to enforce union conditions in our craft. Anyone not believing these facts should come as soon as possible, for seeing is believing.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 27, 1923.

The amendment we proposed to Section No. 2 of the Constitution, providing for a convention in August, 1923, the earliest date it could be held in conformity with our law, should easily secure the required number of seconds.

Reasons for a convention are many, of great importance to the trade in general, and ought to be recognized by all of us who really have the welfare of the International Union and our own best interest at heart.

We will never be able to combat the issues confronting us through the medium of the initiative and referendum. We all must recognize the fact that we have some mighty weighty problems that need a solution if we are ever to successfully meet the conditions in our trade. Changed conditions in the trade must need changes in our basic law. This fact is unchangeable.

The question of organization, the coming of machinery into the industry and our relationship to the machine and our system of benefits, more especially the death benefit, are questions that in themselves, when they were adopted, was a great error that in themselves necessitate a convention. They are questions that we can never hope to properly settle for the good of all concerned until we meet each other in convention, exchange views and in an intelligent and friendly debate bring out all of the vital points both pro and con that may be pertinent to the subject matter under consideration.

We have under consideration a plan where it may be possible to have our death benefit underwritten by some regular life insurance company. This subject in itself and some final disposition of it necessitates more publicity than it will ever get through the referendum, and the need for its final disposition becomes more pressing each year.

By all means let us have a convention. Its cost, whatever it may be, will prove to be the best investment we ever made along progressive lines.

Yours fraternally,
THEO. BILLINGHEIMER,
Sec'y-Treas. Union 132 of Brooklyn.

William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, in an article published in Labor, declares the fundamental of life is the opportunity to work and the right to receive for that work a wage sufficient at least to sustain the life of the worker and provide reasonable comforts for his family and education for his children. Civilization means that if it means anything at all.

You don't need a lot of money to buy Treasury Savings Certificates. $20.50 will purchase a $25 Certificate; $32 will purchase a $100 Certificate; $320 will purchase a $1,000 Certificate. Your postmaster sells them and upon request will furnish full particulars.

The amendment of Union 90, New York, creating a new Section 61, a so-called optional, non-beneficial class, having received the required number of endorsements, goes to popular vote. The amendment follows:

Strike out Section 61a-Special and insert the following:

SECTION 61a. NON-BENEFICIAL CLASS.

All persons engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted therein, may become members under the following plan:

1. $2.00 initiation fee, payable in 4 weekly installments of 50c each.
2. 30c weekly dues.
3. All International strike and label assessments.
4. All local assessments.

Members enrolled in this class shall be entitled to the following:

1. The full strike assistance, same as the 60c paying members receive.
2. Out of work stamps.
3. Traveling loan not exceeding $10.00.

Members enrolled in this class shall have the privilege of paying the 60c weekly dues and all international assessments and be entitled to all benefits from the time of such transfer. (To illustrate, for sick, death and full traveling loan benefits they will be considered as new initiates.)

Members having paid 60c dues prior, or those who may pay 60c dues after the adoption of this provision, shall have the privilege of transfer to this non-beneficial class, they must sign waiver rights to all further benefits from the International Union (excepting those that this class entitles them).

In all other respects the laws governing arrears in dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of strike assistance, out of work stamps and traveling loan, and all other laws governing the 60c paying members shall apply to members enrolled in this class.

This amendment to go into effect upon adoption.

In compliance with my plain duty I propose to analyze and make entirely clear just what the proposed amendment means. The amendment proposes to establish a so-called optional non-beneficial class of newly initiated members, but in reality goes further and would rob the full dues paying, full beneficial class of some of its members.

It provides that all persons engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61 may become members by paying two dollars' initiation fee and thirty cents weekly dues, and limits their further liability to the payment only of international strike and label assessments and all purely local assessments. Such members would not have to pay any international assessments to replenish the funds if necessary in the payment of sick and death benefits. There are no purely international label assessments. If the funds are depleted by long sustained strikes or lockouts as well as the usual and customary amounts for sick and death benefits the full contributing dues paying members would have to pay all that portion caused by the payment of sick and death benefit as well as their full share of the assessment to make good the drain upon the funds caused by the strikes. This newly created class are entitled to full strike benefits, out-of-work stamps, and traveling loans not to exceed ten dollars.

The equally serious part of the amendment is that it gives members who are now paying sixty-cent weekly dues the right to transfer to this so-called non-beneficial class.

These two important provisions, then, either taken separately or joined in one issue, mean in the plainest kind of language the repudiation of our whole death benefit and sick benefit features. If we are to abolish these features, let us stand squarely out in the open and do so in a straightforward, above-board fashion.

Let us consider our present membership and our prospective membership, and we shall see that the statement that the amendment will destroy the sick and death benefit feature through a left-handed, round-about process is absolutely true. Generally speaking the fields we should draw from for new membership are fully two-thirds woman workers. Woman workers at least hope to be cigar workers only for a transitory period. They don't look upon it as a life-time's occupation. Hence they, with scarcely an exception, would lean by inclination and a shortsighted policy toward the so-called non-beneficial thirty-cent dues paying class. They would reason that in the event of a strike they would be protected by the payment of the eight dollars per week strike benefit. This would particularly apply to the younger of the woman workers. Young people, men or women, generally speaking are full of life and vigor, and they have no thought at such ages of sickness or death, and the payment of sick and death benefit for this reason does not appeal to them. Hence it may be assumed that 80 or 90 per cent. of those who would be attracted by this proposed new class would exercise the optional clause and join only the thirty-cent, strike benefit membership class.

In addition to that the same rule applies to the woman members and the younger members—men and women—now in the full dues paying class. They would have the privilege of transferring under the proposed amendment to the thirty-cent dues paying, strike benefit membership class.

This brings us squarely to the assertion that the adoption of this amendment means the repudiation and disintegration of the full dues paying, full beneficial class. No organization can pay sick, and especially death benefit without a constant stream of new blood. That is an old truism proved such by experience, and can not be successfully denied.

I don't question the motives of the proposers nor seconds of this amendment. Their enthusiasm and desire to do something is probably at the bottom of the proposition. The prevailing idea that something should be done is not denied, but that something can best be handled in a full representative delegate convention, and the necessity for such a convention is here again repeated with emphasis.

At the time of the writing of this editorial the vote on the amendment of Union 132 to hold a convention in August is close and the result can not for that reason be forecast. If it is defeated another amendment for a full representative delegate convention will be offered, and this process will be continued until we do what we should do—hold a convention. The cost of a convention is overestimated, and comes nowhere near being what some of the wild, exaggerated statements claim it would cost. In any event the cost of the convention will be amply repaid in the good and stability that such a convention can bring to the International Union.

The question of destroying our sick and death benefit features of the constitution is so paramount and far-reaching in its effects that it should be postponed until a convention can be held, where the whole matter can then be threshed out and some satisfactory solution of the problem confronting us can be reached.

If we are seeking alibis and excuses for a less rapid growth, it may be said the sick and death benefits are not the greatest drawback as some would have us think. Some of the barriers against the evolution in the industry that we have steadfastly held to are more responsible for the slowness of our growth than all the benefit features combined. This statement can be proved by facts.

This amendment should be defeated, and all hands should rally to the support of the delegate convention to be held at the very first opportunity, and this amendment as well as counter amendments can be threshed out and molded into shape so as to fit the will and desire of the great mass of those we represent and those whom we confidently expect to come into the organization in the near future.

The stability and perpetuity of the Union is of paramount importance.

The growth or the decline of a local union is dependent largely upon the activity of its members. Where you find a membership that are individual hustlers for the betterment of the industry as a whole, ready and willing to do their bit at all times, whether it be in the way of effecting organization or agitating for the Blue Label, you will find a fair bill of prices, good working conditions and comparatively steady employment. This fact is applicable to any community whether it be a city of the first magnitude, a city of fifty thousand inhabitants or a village. The opportunity for effective work is everywhere the same, the problems of the larger cities being only the problems of the smaller places graduated on a larger scale.

In the smaller towns the personality of the member rightfully guided can do much to persuade his friends and acquaintances to patronize their home industries. In the cities where the field is too broad for the personal appeal to function the appeal can be made successfully through constant label agitation among other trades union organizations and the central trades assembly.

The only reason union-made cigars are not more generally demanded by organized labor is because of our own lack of furthering our own cause, our own neglect of agitating and advertising. It pays to advertise, and one of the best methods of advertising is the constant personal appeal to those who are naturally our friends from the fact of their being affiliated with the general labor movement. How many millions of dollars would the trust be willing to pay had they this avenue of advertising at their command? Its worth is inestimable and its price unattainable to even the richest of the many highly capitalized cigar organizations.

Despite the slump that has been lately manifest in label agitation and despite the croakings of a certain element in the organization that "the label is a dead issue," we can and we will revive the demand for it and it will be placed again in the position of power it once occupied. Who can deny the fact that when it was a power our conditions, our organization and our general welfare were much better than they have been since its decline?

There is at the present time a distinct revival noted in other label trades. The instinct of the trades unionist to patronize union products needs only cultivation and care to make the label a powerful weapon ready for the hand of labor at any time, a weapon void of the cost or the strife engendered by strikes and lockouts. The power of Niagara is only the combined force of millions of individual drops of water. The power of the union is the combined efforts of its members toward certain well defined ends. What men WANT to do they CAN do.

The class character of government by injunction, that un-American, unlawful procedure of jurisprudence that is becoming more powerful, more Class Character of Government by Injunction. far reaching and more of a menace to human rights daily, is clearly illustrated and adequately proven by the actions of Judge McClintic in the federal district court at Charlestown, W. Va.

This judge recently issued a sweeping injunction against striking miners in Mingo County, W. Va., ordering them to abandon their makeshift homes in a tent colony located on ground leased by them after they had been forced from their former homes, many of which were partly paid for, by eviction process instigated by the mine owners.

Later came a prayer for injunction to restrain a bulldozing sheriff who, with a well organized gang of gunmen, was interfering with the organizing of the miners in Logan County of the same state, West Virginia. This plea was that union miners, citizens of the United States, were being denied the rights guaranteed under the constitution, that their lives and the lives of their families were jeopardized through the reign of terror instigated by the sheriff and his gunmen.

The answer to this plea for a writ restraining the unlawful thuggery as practiced by the terrorists, a plea directed to the same judge, McClintic, who had only a short time before ordered the miners in another county of the same state to abandon their temporary shelters erected against the cold winds of winter, was that he lacked jurisdiction.

Government by injunction IS of class character in the great majority of cases and its power and its rapid increase is a menace to the welfare of every worker in the country. Unless checked it will eventually supersede all legislative enactment and we shall be governed, in so far as labor matters are concerned at least, by a Judicial Oligarchy.

Despite the fact that the country generally, and several states especially, is suffering from an acute attack of "law-itis," a disease that comes from having to assimilate too many laws, we find intolerance under the cloak of reform going merrily along the path of loudly acclaimed purification.

The "antis," having a lot of ammunition left over from their late rum crusade, although they steadfastly refuse to divulge the source of its supply, are now seemingly bent upon using it in shooting up the tobacco industry.

Utah is the latest state to edge its way into the limelight as a purifier of the public atmosphere in so far as tobacco smoke is concerned. Arrests for violation of their drastic "smoking in public law" are of daily occurrence. It is said that an anti-corn-beef-and-cabbage edict is in process of preparation by those who object to the odor of this homely and more or less popular concoction on the grounds that its smell is demoralizing the best interests of health and morality.

At any rate the people are permitting themselves to be robbed of much of the freedom upon which this country's constitution is predicated by a band of paid reformers, many of whom in their private life indulge freely in every so-called vice they are organized and financed to combat.

The minority in union affairs is oftentimes found taking a position that its "rights" are Minority Rights. interfered with and that its demands are suppressed. Fired with zeal of its own convictions upon matters of general welfare, it sometimes demands, under the false premise of its supposed rights, a part in the final adjustment of legislative and judicial matters not in keeping with the fair, equitable and even-handed justice usually dispensed when the rule of the majority is expressed.

It sometimes goes even to the extreme of inaugurating a campaign of destruction to further its false position.

The only rights of the minority under a democratic form of government such as usually controls labor unions are its rights to be heard and to grow. It should at all times be granted the full right to express its purposes, its aims and its vision. With this impartial hearing it is given the inalienable right to grow, and, should its purposes be acceptable to the rank and file, in its growth lies its chance to become the majority with majority's rights.

Much evidence of a marked period of inflation is manifest. Inflation in the prices of coal, steel, cotton and woolen goods, sugar and other commodities is visible. The inflation comes, as usual, with no material advance in price to the initial producer or with no appreciable advance in wages to the worker. It is largely speculative and its profits accrue to the middle man. Such inflation, carrying no marked increase in purchasing power as based on the price paid the producer of raw material and to labor in manufactured goods, if not checked is bound to result in a future depression, and the country will again reap the whirlwind of speculative inflation to the detriment of a fairly started, healthy and seemingly permanent revival of industry.

Some unions and members thereof in poorly organized districts are complaining bitterly against the fact that they have been compelled to accept reductions in wages and that more are threatened, and some of them say, "What shall we do?"

The only answer that fittingly covers the case is summed up in the one significant word, ORGANIZE. First, the reductions would not have been offered, and, second, they would not have to have been accepted if the workers were organized. The only answer to reductions that are now offered is to organize.

In well organized districts unions have only been compelled to change their war peak bills to fit present conditions. In localities where they were not organized wages have gone back to pre-war conditions. Lamentations and protests will accomplish nothing; organization will accomplish the job.

Reliable authorities after scientific investigation have brought forth the startling fact that more idleness is caused by sickness and industrial accidents, most of which are preventable, than by industrial disputes—strikes. A recent report shows that strikes or lockouts account for loss of time which is equal to about one-twelfth of the loss caused by illness. In other words, the loss of time caused by illness and industrial accidents is twelve times as much as that caused by industrial disputes—strikes and lockouts. As many of the big strikes and lockouts occur in industries which are irregular in their occupation, it may be truthfully said that practically little actual curtailment in production is caused by these strikes and lockouts.

One of the frequent causes for complaint and dissatisfaction in our trade is lost time waiting for stock. This is wholly unnecessary and should be remedied. The wages are low enough even if the workers are allowed to put in full time, and the unnecessary waiting for stock is so much lost time and a corresponding loss in the income, and is of no value or benefit to anyone.

Considerable joyous acclaim has been set up over the fact that the Congress recently adopted measures whereby the farmer can borrow more money. This piece of legislation is simply a smoke screen behind which the profiteering, interest-grabbing gentry are able to continue and profit by the credit system.

The overextension of the credit system is the cause of considerable industrial and commercial turmoil, waste and failure. The farmer is already up to his neck in debt, and the recent legislation gives him an opportunity to slip deeper into the mire of debt.

What was really needed and would have been beneficial to the consuming public and ultimately to the farmer was the legislation or means whereby the enormous profits which now go to the carrying companies, the holding companies, the bonding companies, the money loaning sharks, and the profiteering middlemen, could be saved for the consumer and the producer. Nothing short of some such plan will extract the farmer from his present unfortunate condition. Cut out the waste and the profiteering in farm products, adopt some means of co-operation whereby the product of the agricultural districts can reach the city districts, and the great masses located therein will consume more and thereby create a market for the products of the farm and even at better prices than the farmer is now getting. What the farmer needs is a consuming public right here at home, which if properly developed and brought within his reach will far outshine any markets of foreign countries.

All must agree that a representative convention is necessary. We are unable to tell at this writing the outcome of the vote on the amendment of Union 132, Brooklyn, which provides for a convention, which up to date is close. A convention should be held, and that convention should be as representative as possible. The cost of a convention is nil and inconsequential as compared with the untold benefits that will be had from such a convention.

The annual financial report, published in this issue, is interesting and instructive. It should be studied carefully and fully digested by all thoughtful members of the International Union. The table of benefits and the recapitulation furnish the ready means for study and thought.

President Samuel Gompers has left Lenox Hill hospital, New York, where a severe illness kept him confined for two weeks. Mr. Gompers left the hospital fully recovered and in fine vigor. From New York he went to Atlantic City for a brief rest before returning to his work in Washington. It was the hale, fighting Sam Gompers that walked out of the hospital where he had won another victory.

At the last meeting of the International Executive Board a resolution was adopted requesting me to visit as many of the big cigar centers as was possible and consistent with the other duties of the office. In compliance with such request I have visited the following places and addressed the members of the unions in the places visited:

St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Superior. Detroit; a volunteer delegate mass meeting of the unions of Greater New York and New Jersey at New York City; a volunteer delegate mass meeting of all the unions of Pennsylvania at Lancaster; New Orleans, Miss.; Mobile, Ala.; Nashville, Tenn.; Evansville, Ind.; Philadelphia, Pa.; New York, N. Y.; Jacksonville, St. Augustine, W. Palm Beach, Miami, Key West, Orlando and Tampa, Fla.

Two addresses were made at Jacksonville and a number of conferences held with the officers; five addresses were made at Tampa; two at Memphis; and two at Evansville. At Memphis one was to a general mass meeting open to all trades and one at Evansville was to a general mass meeting open to all trades.

Conferences were held in each place visited and the officers and members encouraged to redouble their efforts in agitation for the label and organization work. In Pennsylvania a special committee on organization was appointed at the delegate meeting at Lancaster, of which I am a member, and a plan worked out which was later perfected and is now in operation and from which great results are expected. In all places visited I found some discouragement but a generally better feeling and better understanding of our movement, and in all cases without exception a firm determination to build up and strengthen the union in all directions possible. Many misunderstandings and wrong impressions of our work and our laws were straightened out. Considerable enthusiasm was created and a determination developed to carry forward organization work, and new courage and faith in our movement were created. In all instances the virtues of constructive trade unionism were pressed home and a better understanding and feeling toward the International Union and its power to finally organize the trade were developed all along the line. While the virtues of the trade union movement were expounded and its achievements extolled our mistakes of omission and commission were pointed out with frankness and equal force.

It is written in the Declaration of Independence:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

And set forth in the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States:

"Section 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State in which they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States. Nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

With these and other fundamental principles of a like character established for guidance of government in the relationship of people within a government, founded and holding such views of rights and of liberty, as stated above, it would seem to the average citizen that nothing further should be required to establish and put into practice this boon to mankind. However, the selfishness, greed and ambitions of man have decreed otherwise.

Since these words of the Declaration of Independence and of the Constitution of the United States, as herein set forth, were adopted, it has required, and there has been constant and continuous struggle on the part of the masses of our country to reap the full benefit of their meaning. This has not been accomplished owing to the organized and consolidated units of great potential forces, such as the banking and employing groups, who have taken it upon themselves to interpret and construe the scope of rights and liberty which the people are permitted to enjoy under the declared rights and constitutional law of our land, and who, so far, have withstood through their political and economic power the efforts of the people to dislodge them from this unlawful, unfair and unjust position of dictation and domination that creates and makes distinctions between groups of citizens in the exercise of rights and liberties within government. However, through the organized labor movement principally, progress and great strides have been made toward putting into practice our fundamental law as it is written.

When we take into consideration that in the beginning of our government for wage earners to form an organization or even talk to one another for the betterment of their economic condition, was a conspiracy punishable by a sentence to jail; that as late as 1828 there were 20,000 men in the jails of Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania for debt, the contraction of which through sickness or unemployment was no excuse; that human beings were held in bondage until the early sixties; that there was little or no political or economic action by the wage earners as a group previous to the civil war; that wage earners were compelled to form their organizations in secret at the risk of great sacrifice and suffering to themselves and their families, we can readily realize by contrasting those conditions and times with the conditions and times of today, what a powerful factor the organized labor movement has been through the American Federation of Labor in pushing forward the goal of equality of those rights and opportunities now enjoyed by the more favored groups within government.

This continuous effort put forth by organized labor to emancipate the masses is in itself so vital, so valuable and so far-reaching to the individual and to the home that no wage earner should hesitate to enroll himself or herself under the banner of the American Federation of Labor and take up its slogan of AGITATE, ORGANIZE AND EDUCATE.

CORRESPONDENCE

Ottawa, Ont., March 5, 1923.

Dear Sir and Brother:

Since January, 1922, the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada has been publishing a monthly journal, copies of which have been forwarded to your office regularly. We have also sent free one copy to each secretary of your local unions in Canada and appealed from time to time to them for individual subscriptions from their members and other workers.

The object of the journal is to combat secession movements and communistic activities and to keep to the front at all times the international trade union movement, supplementing the work which your organizers and other representatives have been carrying on in Canada. Up to the present time we have received very little encouragement or support either in the way of subscriptions or advertising and the cost has been one which the Congress will find it difficult to continue.

We are not making any appeal to you for financial assistance, but being convinced that the journal is an absolute necessity to maintain the integrity of the international movement in Canada, we would ask that you help us to bring it more prominently to the attention of your members. This can be done either by the insertion of a space amongst your advertisers in your own journal, or if this is not possible, then by constant mention of the same in your reading matter.

There is no profit to anyone from the publication of this journal, as it is owned and controlled solely by the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, and should it at any time become a paying proposition the income therefrom would go towards strengthening the international trade union movement.

We will leave entirely to your discretion the manner in which this request might be complied with, but we do expect and urgently request your active co-operation.

Fraternally yours,

TOM MOORE, President.
P. M. DRAPER, Sec'y-Treas.

Protect Your Unions.

Philadelphia, Pa.
If you are a member of the union it will pay you to use your every endeavor and assert your every energy to aid in maintaining your organization.

As a union man or woman and a member of your trade union you have the right to attend your trade union meetings. You have a right to arise in your local meeting and move for some change in the conditions of employment. You are so at liberty. You can discuss the conditions of employment under which you are employed, wages, etc., with your associates in your union meetings without fear. Surely you can. You could not as a non-union man or woman. You are receiving more wages through collective effort of your self and members of your union. You admit it. These advantages are worth protecting and conserving. The only way they can be protected and conserved is by maintaining your organization. The only way these privileges can come to non-unionists is by their organizing.

The trade union is a benefit, reason teaches that it is, and it is the paramount duty of the trade unionist to assist in directing the affairs of the union to assure its preservation and maintenance. This is an easy problem, if all stand together and contribute together to that end.

Workers must be told and retold the facts until they become acquainted with what organization really means and what it has done to establish the conditions and wages which they enjoy.

The older members who are acquainted with what their collective effort has brought to them must teach those who may succeed them in the employment. Meetings are important. Attendance at meetings is important.

HARRY GIFFORD.

Rochester, N. Y., April 4, 1923.

We are asking members who owe this local to remit private loans due us. We are in need of the money, as we have lost another shop. The Jacobstein Bros. left us without any statement of their intentions. We have the information that they leased a factory at Newark, N. J., and will operate a non-union factory.

Fraternally yours,

HUGH HACKETT.

Secretary, Union No. 5, Rochester, N. Y.

Oneida, N. Y., Feb. 15, 1923.

To Sister Unions.

Greeting: A word regarding the conditions of our trade in Oneida, N. Y., at this date. There is practically not much change since July 2, 1921, almost two (2) years ago, when Powell & Goldstine locked out 96 members of our union and then declared for the "open shop."

This firm then installed "improved machinery" (a bunch machine). Yes, "He" also "installed" six (6) "scabs" and 7 or 8 school girls, but two (2) of his "scabs" and some of his school children have "quit," have refused to remain "installed"—and today this is the result: Those two (2) "scabs" are without a job, without a "union card," and with a $100.00 on each—comment is unnecessary.

Another case in point—On Aug. 8, 1922 (six months ago), another firm, J. M. Bennett & Son, of Oneida, locked out 20 union men, and "He" also "installed" "improved machinery" (a bunch machine). He also "installed" seven "scabs" and four girls—and just two weeks ago, three (3) of his "scabs" quit—absolutely refusing to continue further in downright slavery. Again the result: 3 more "scabs" with a $100.00 fine on each, no card, and no job. As usual the foregoing is and should be the "reward" of a "scab." Brothers, the above are hard, cold facts—and must convince every union member that "Unionism" must prevail—and Union No. 12 must and will win this strike. And now when the "doors" are being opened from the "inside," and the "open shop scabs" are being "starved out," and are on the "run," we union members have a better chance than when the doors were locked against us and it is plain to be seen that with financial and moral support, especially the support of our friends in "Hanover" and Littleton, Pa., where the Goldstine concern is having goods made, that it will be only a very short time when our "open shop firms" must send for a committee of Union No. 12 to adjust differences existing.

We wish to thank all members for "donations," acknowledgments for which have been sent to headquarters.

PETER ROGERS, Secretary.

REPORT OF ORGANIZER

Newark, N. J., April 4, 1923.

The Central Labor Council of Lima, Ohio, realizing the need of more energetic effort in behalf of the labor movement; a few weeks ago, set about to revive interest on the part of all workers of every craft and calling, to join with them in a campaign of organization, the work was conducted for a period of four weeks; however, not as vigorously as might have been, for the local management lacked detail, and co-operation necessary to the means of success. Yet, notwithstanding some omissions that should in future be avoided, considerable good resulted from the agitation and propaganda delivered in labor's cause.

Many international representatives of various unions were at hand to assist in the work. The Cigar Makers' International Union, ever responsive to the call for assistance where organization seems probable, or benefit to the workers could be derived through organization, sent its representatives in the field, and their contribution was given without stint to the general movement.

The cigar industry in Lima is dominated by the Delsel-Wemmer Co., a non-union concern of considerable magnitude. That firm sets the standard of low wages, and by oral instructions and other devices of coercion and intimidation, seeks to prevent their employees from joining the cigar makers' union. That method has been resorted to for years by the firm, creating an abject fear and dependency from the workers; their burdens grow heavier as time goes on. It is hoped that the pinnacle has been reached and soon an awakening will be aroused in the minds; NOT to be denied the right of organization, collective bargaining and economic preservation.

Trade condition in Newark, N. J., is not rushing in the local cigar industry, but business is going steadily on with fair prospects of increased productivity in the near future. Some creditable agitation for the consumption of "Label Cigars" has been carried on by the committee of Local 138. Favorable results are evident, and the effects far reaching. The practice should by all means be continued, and the worthy example emulated by all local unions, as it has been repeatedly demonstrated that "agitation for, and advertisement of the union label, is the life of trade."

Let us forget: It may be well to call attention to the fact that the "open-shop" advocates are still on the rampage. The Employers' Association, with renewed energy are broadcasting dealers and purchasers, with a strong appeal through their issued bulletin; "to patronize only those running open shops, and to refrain from buying any article whatsoever, that bears the union label." We are also farther advised by recent current news dispatch, that Big-Business, are bending every effort with the "powers that be" to have a plank incorporated in the national platform, declaring for the open shop, with teeth enough in it to destroy the trades union movement, or at least to ham-string its efficiency and curtail the economic protection to the workers.

Fraternally,

R. S. SEXTON, General Organizer.

Philadelphia, Pa.

Since my last report in the Journal I have visited local unions which make up the first organization district in Pennsylvania, on the question of holding district conferences for organization work. Locals in first district are as follows: Sellersville, Perkaskie, Quakertown, Allentown, Easton and East Greenville, and their jurisdictions.

Attended conferences in District No. 1 held in Philadelphia, District No. 2 held in Lancaster, Pa., District No. 3 held in Wilkes-Barre, Pa. All conferences well attended, and the delegates proved by voice and vote that they are on the job to organize the unorganized in the cigar industry in the State of Pennsylvania, which can be done and must be done.

A resolution adopted in conference held in District No. 3 calling the attention of union men of other crafts, to use their influence to induce the daughters and sisters and friends of union men employed in the cigar industry, to join the union of their industry (The Cigar Makers' International Union). A copy of this resolution to be sent to the convention of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor to be held in May in Harrisburg, Pa.

The firm Eisenlohrs, manufacturers of brands Cinco and Henriette, have closed their factories in the following towns: Sellersville, Perkaskie and Richlandtown, and sold or leased their buildings. Business is slack in organization District No. 1 at the present time. General Cigar Co., working on a limit, Consolidated Cigar Co., working three days per week, Lincoln Cigar Co., closed down for the past number of weeks. A number of factories laid off over the Easter holidays from three to ten days. Let me say in conclusion, the foundation for an intensified campaign to organize the workers in the cigar industry has been thoroughly established, in the following manner: A general conference of delegates representing all the locals in the State of Pennsylvania was held in Lancaster, where a special organization committee was appointed. This special committee held a conference and divided the state into districts, each district held a conference, and indorsed the plan for organization adopted by the special committee.

Now we have a solid foundation, well built, the locals are cemented together, with but one object in view THOROUGHLY ORGANIZE THE WORKERS IN THE CIGAR INDUSTRY. All they ask is that everybody who has the interest of the Cigar Makers' International Union at heart put their shoulder to the wheel both morally and financially and help to build our union, and be satisfied with nothing short of 60,000 members ending the year 1923.

San Juan, P. R., Feb. 14, 1923.

As a consequence of the unsettled political situation of the island since nearly two years ago, economic conditions in general are becoming more and more acute all the time. Excepting sugar manufacturing and cutting cane in the agricultural fields, because of the season, it may be said that a general standstill prevails in all the business, to the detriment of the working masses bearing almost wholly the unbearable burden of such abnormal times.

It is obvious to say that the cigar and tobacco business for one reason or another is also greatly affected by such conditions. The new tobacco crop is practically over, the trust having taken hold of the best tobacco leaf to be exported and sold in the American market as imported tobacco from Cuba, and that of the poorest condition to be left in the island for cheap cigars and to submit the cigar makers and other employees to the very starving wages of 15 years ago. After the close down of all the factories of the trust in December, 1922, no revival in the industry has been recorded. The shops of the trust at Gurabo and Las Piedras have not resumed work since, and there is no indication for such shops to resume work again.

In the other remaining factories a very limited number of men and women are employed in making cheap cigars for 5 cents, most of them, and a large number of men and women are still waiting for the call to be employed.

I am keeping myself in close touch with the officials and unions in an effort to keep the unions alive and add new members to them.

Some agitation is being conducted at Cayey, where about 15 men have applied for a reduction in the initiation fee, to which I have objected, making it plain that they should put their regular share in the union if they are in reality interested in having a union of the trade strong enough to better conditions in life and work in the whole island.

According to our Organic Act (an act of our national congress) our insular legislature had to convene on the 12th of February—the day before yesterday—to be in session for 90 days, this being the second session of our tenth insular legislature.

On account of the hostile political feelings against Gov. Rely's administration, as soon as the representatives and senators met they immediately recessed for 30 days without even giving opportunity to the executive to appear and read his message, as per the Organic Act. They constitute the majority party and they are still strong enough in number to do that in the house and senate, and they have so done as a protest against the administration and believing that with such an action they may succeed in causing the removal of Gov. Rely and compel the administration to turn over to them again absolute control of the government of Porto Rico.

Such an action taken at this time, when this island is so badly in need of a meeting of its legislature to adopt all the necessary measures intended to correct so many evils of social and economic character, has immensely influenced in making the conditions of the island more acute and serious, as I say in the beginning of this report. Most of the laws dealing with the revenues of the government—Income tax, duty, excise tax, etc.—have been questioned by the corporations and practically nullified by injunctions, placing the government in a most embarrassing condition. Public services have become practically abandoned; school teachers, policemen and other necessary employees of the government are miserably paid and conditions have been such that for one year it has been generally admitted that a special session of the legislature had to be called to remedy such conditions. The very Unionist Party in power was the most insistent and persistent in the necessity of calling a special session. And now when the opportunity comes, and when the regular session of the legislature should have been held, using their parliamentary tricks, they immediately recess, close the door to the message of the governor, and proudly boast their action everywhere, trying to bring trouble to the administration and neglecting their duties to commerce, labor, the industry and to all that represents the very life of the people of Porto Rico.

This is the main reason at this time for conditions prevailing.

All the hopes of the people were placed in the hands of the legislative assembly of Porto Rico to bring a remedy for them, and now it happens that all such representatives and senators, excepting those of the minorities, who have gone on record against such an action, have preferred to serve in the game as professional and unfruitful politicians, waving aside their duties to the people who elected them to the places they occupy.

I am lost as to what action will be taken at Washington by President Harding and his administration and congress to remedy such conditions. At any rate, some action will have to be taken. The interests of the people and the welfare of the working masses should not be abandoned or played with as if playing cards by those who have no other interest than that of serving in the name of politics to the interests of big business and unscrupulous corporations.

All the correspondence and translation for the unions and the International Office have been duly attended to by myself. The circular and ballot for the election of third vice-president was received on time and duly mailed for all the unions. All routine work has also been attended to.

Yours fraternally,
P. RIVERA MARTINEZ, Organizer.

The foregoing table is one of the most complete historical resumes of the financial transactions of the International Union ever issued. It presents a bird's-eye view of the benefits paid, the cost per member per year and the cost per member for the given number of years, and the balance on hand at the end of each fiscal year. For instance, in the payment of Out-of-Work benefit was $6.43 4/10 in 1896, and the lowest cost per member per year was $3.76 10/10 cents in 1918. The highest cost per member per year for Out-of-Work benefit was $1.70 6/10 cents in 1920, when this benefit was discontinued.

The Out-of-Work benefit has been paid for a period of thirty-three (33) years, commencing January 1, 1890, and the average cost per member per year for the first ten years was $3.29 1/10. This is instructive information, as the ten years in question were about equally divided between periods of normal trade conditions and industrial stagnation. The average cost per member per year for the thirty-three years in which the benefit has been in operation was $1.70 6/10 cents. Since August 1, 1920, members registering Out-of-Work have received weekly due stamps instead of cash.

Special 30c members are those who join at 50 years or over and other constitutional reasons. They receive strike and not more than $75.00 death benefit. The 40-cent beneficiary retired members receive sick and death benefit, hence both are included when figuring the cost per member per year in the payment of benefits in which they participate, although in the tables they are given separate columns of membership and affiliation. Class B members receive strike, sick, out-of-work and death benefits.

NOTE.—The following explains the different kinds, periods and amount of benefits paid:

Loans: One-year members are entitled to a loan for transportation to the nearest union in whatever direction he or she desires to travel, but in no wise shall the loans exceed in the aggregate $20. Class B members are entitled to $10.00.

Strike Benefit: For the first sixteen weeks, $8 per week is paid, and $4 per week until the strike or lockout shall have terminated. Class B members receive $4 for the first sixteen weeks and $2 per week until the strike or lockout has terminated.

Sick benefit is $7 per week, provided such sickness or inability shall have been for at least one week or seven days, but no member shall be entitled to any sick benefit for a longer period than ten weeks in any one year. Class B members are entitled to $3.50 per week.

Death and Disability Benefits: These benefits are graduated and are as follows: A member who shall have been such for two years, the sum of $75 is paid toward defraying funeral expenses. Including the said $75 funeral expenses, the International Union pays upon the death of a member the following sums: First—If the member has been such for at least five consecutive years, a sum of $125. Second—if the member shall have been such for at least ten years, $275. Third—if the member has been such for at least fifteen consecutive years, a sum of $475. If the member shall have been such for at least twenty consecutive years, $550. There is also a Total Disability benefit which is based on loss of hands or sight and is paid direct to the applicant or guardian, and is the same amount as in the case of death, less $75.00, which is retained and paid towards defraying funeral expenses at the time of death. Then there is a benefit of $350.00 payable to members of 20 years' standing who from general causes may become totally disabled. No funeral benefit is paid on death of member receiving this benefit. A benefit of $40.00 is paid in the event of the death of a wife or widowed mother of a member. Class B members are entitled to one-half of the death benefit provided for by the constitution for the regular full dues-paying members.

Referendum Vote on Amendment of Local No. 138.

Referendum vote on amendment of 138, Newark. This amendment, which provided for the striking out of the provision in Section 150 that the label shall not be used on machine-made cigars, failed to receive the two-thirds majority vote and hence is defeated.

It is said a promise neglected is an untruth told. How about your promise to support the union label?

Demanding the union label, shop card and button is a duty which we should view as an opportunity to do good rather than an irksome obligation.

Start an individual campaign for the union label, card and button.

Don't keep all your enthusiasm for the union label for the meeting hall. Remember this when spending money.

Show your faith in the products of your fellow workers by patronizing the union label.

Take a pride in your own union label, but be a "Booster" for all union labels, cards and buttons.

Don't be a "take it or leave it" trade unionist. Refuse to take it if it does not bear the union label.

No man ever reached the pinnacle of fame, achieved success or popularity via the knocker's route.

Day by day in every way
The "open shop" spells decay,
Day by day in every way
Union shops mean better pay.

The union label transforms the women and children of the working class into towers of strength. Without it they are often elements of weakness in the struggle for bread.

Under the modern means of production and distribution there is absolutely no hope for the individual workman standing alone. Our complex, intricate system of production compels the workers to unite to protect their interests and advance their moral, material and intellectual welfare.

The cause of labor cannot be destroyed by external foes; its ruin can only be wrought from within. Labor must link all units so as to insure the moral compulsion of each union to act with the other. A common feeling, a united frame of mind, united purchasing power, is essential.

OFFICIAL

EXECUTIVE BOARD.

G. W. PERKINS, President.

508 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

SAMUEL GOMPERS, 318 W. 51st St., New York City, First Vice President.

I. M. ORNBURN, 286 York St., New Haven, Conn., Second Vice President.

A. GARIEPY, 239 Ave. Hotel de Ville, Montreal, Can., Third Vice-President.

MANUEL GONZALEZ, Box 396, Ybor City, Tampa, Fla., Fourth Vice President.

E. G. HALL, 4124 Bryant Ave., S., Minneapolis, Minn., Fifth Vice President.

CHAS. H. STEVENS, 350 Broadway, Buffalo, N. Y., Sixth Vice President.

E. J. STACK, Labor Temple, Portland, Ore., Seventh Vice President.

GIBSON WEBER, 1710 N. Gratz St., Station C, Philadelphia, Pa., treasurer.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members, who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member. If he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also as per section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member, if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

Notice of the special assessment of $1 on all 30c and 60c members and 50c on Class B members, in compliance with Section 92 (a) of the Constitution, is herewith given. This assessment takes effect March 26, 1923, and may be paid in two weekly installments. New initiates who have not been members for four months are exempt from all assessments. All who join after March 26 are exempt from payment of the March assessment. Class B members do not have to pay any International assessments until they have been members for six months. Forty-cent beneficiary members do not have to pay the special strike fund assessment. Members out of work are not exempt from this assessment.

UNION BUSINESS

In accordance with Sections 58, 59 and 60 of the Constitution, the following unions are hereby notified and requested to remit the following amounts for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the office of the International Union:

IN MEMORIAM

In reporting deaths kindly comply with the following and you will save time and unnecessary work: Give full name, number, date and place of initiation of member. Has member held retiring card? If so, did he pay his dues? This information relates only to such as you can obtain from the records of your own union. If admitted by card, state when and where from, and, in addition, send in such cards, but place in your letter the information necessary, as the letter is filed as a matter of record. Before paying death benefits study Sections 139 to 145, inclusive. Send in a death blank properly filled out for all death benefits paid.

DECISIONS OF THE PRESIDENT

J. Brittan appealed against Union 192, Manchester, N. H., for holding him for a certain amount on local assessments and a fine of $10.00 for allowing himself to be suspended. That part of the appeal reference the assessments was not sustained; he failed to appeal within the limit. That part of the appeal reference the fine for being suspended is sustained. The constitution provides that the initiation fee can be neither reduced nor increased by any local union.

Pedro Fernandez Figueroa appealed against 350, Manati, for refusing his claim for sick benefit. The appeal was not sustained.

Frank Hackler appealed against 129, Denver, Colo., for suspending him from international benefits for neglecting to pay regular percentage on a private loan. The rights and privileges guaranteed to a member by the International Constitution can not be taken away from him by any purely local made laws. The appeal was sustained.

Wm. Myers appealed against Union 10, Providence, R. I., for reopening a previous election for two officers of the union and holding a new election. The appeal was not sustained.

H. B. Eggleston appealed against 10, Providence, for rescinding a fine imposed by the local union on F. Johnson. The appeal was not sustained.

H. Rutenbaum appealed against 129, Denver, Colo., for fining him $200. The fine was reduced to $100.

INTERNATIONAL FINES

The International Executive Board approved the application of 12, Onelda, to impose fines as follows: Harry Mulhall (8732) $75.00 and George Weisner (111950) $125.00 and annul their cards for working in the non-union shop of J. M. Bennett & Son; Albert Herzog (81682) $75.00 and Edward Conroy (98817) $75.00 and annul their cards for working in the Powell and Goldstine strike shop. Vote: Affirmative—4; one member disapproved the annulment of cards, another approved only $25.00 fines and another member disapproved the annulment of cards and favored only $25.00 fines.

Approved the application of 14, Chicago, to fine Leo Klausner (78495) and Joseph Baerson (14663) $25.00 each for working evenings and Sundays in a shop of their own while working regularly in another shop. Vote: Affirmative 7, negative 0.

Approved the application of 150, Sioux City, to fine George Gordon (270242) and Frank Gordon (3289) $50.00 each for operating a non-union shop. Vote: Affirmative—6; one member approved only $25.00 fines.

Approved the application of 12, Onelda, to fine John A. Wisner (111953) $50.00 and annul his card for working in the strike shop of Powell and Goldstine. Vote: Affirmative—6; one member disapproved the annulment of card, and another member approved only $25.00 fine.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED

Union 516, Wheeling, West Virginia, offers the following amendment to Section 64 of the Constitution:

Add after the word "dues" on line ten the following, "except Class B members who shall pay one-half the regular initiation fee and fifteen-cent weekly dues."

The amendment of Union 90, New York, as published in the February issue, as follows:

Strike out Section 61a-Special and insert the following:

SECTION 61a. NON-BENEFICIAL CLASS.

All persons engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted therein, may become members under the following plan:

1. $2.00 initiation fee, payable in 4 weekly installments of 50c each.
2. 30c weekly dues.
3. All International strike and label assessments.
4. All local assessments.

Members enrolled in this class will be entitled to the following:

1. The full strike assistance, same as the 60c paying members receive.
2. Out of work stamps.
3. Traveling loan not exceeding $10.00.

Members enrolled in this class shall have the privilege of paying the 60c weekly dues and all International assessments and be entitled to all benefits from the time of such transfer. (To illustrate, for sick, death and full traveling loan benefits they will be considered as new initiates.)

Members having paid 60c dues prior, or those who may pay 60c dues after the adoption of this provision, shall have the privilege to transfer to this non-beneficial class, they must sign waiver rights to all further benefits from the International Union (excepting those that this class entitles them).

In all other respects the laws governing arrearsages in dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of strike assistance, out of work stamps and traveling loan, and all other laws governing the 60c paying members shall apply to members enrolled in this class.

This amendment to go into effect upon adoption.

Received the endorsement of Unions 104, Pottsville; 149, Brooklyn; 14, Chicago; 37, Fort Wayne; 8, Hoboken; 402, Quakertown; 182, Brooklyn; 90, New York; 141, New York; 44, St. Louis; 165, Philadelphia; 144, New York; 257, Lancaster; 353, Brooklyn; 107, Erie; 97, Boston; 171, E. Greenville; 4, Cincinnati; 133, Richmond; 22, Detroit; 58, Montreal; 16, Binghamton; 389, New York; 236, Reading; 87, Brooklyn; 168, Oshkosh; 39, New Haven; 337, Key West; 3, Paterson; 229, Binghamton; 13, New York; 462, Tampa; 315, St. Cloud; 464, Tampa.

Having received the endorsements of the required number of unions it will be submitted to a vote of local unions.

The amendment of 218, Binghamton, as published in the March issue, as follows:

Amend Section 70 by striking out on line 2 the figures 60 and insert the figures 50, the section so amended to read:

Sec. 70. Every member, except as herein otherwise provided, shall pay to the local to which he belongs the sum of 50 cents per week dues, etc.

Received the endorsement of Unions 315, St. Cloud; 129, Denver; 168, Oshkosh; 301, Akron.

New York, March 29, 1923.

Union 141 proposes the following amendment to the International Constitution:

Amend Section 4 of the Constitution by striking out on line 3 the figures 25 and insert the figures 100; also in the same section on line 4 strike out figures 25 and insert the figures 100; strike out all in same section on line 6 after the word delegates.

Amend Section 5 by striking out all after the word "number" on line 3.

Amend Section 9 by striking out on line 3 the figures 25 and insert the figures 100.

Amended section to read as follows:

Section 4. The basis of representation in the International Union shall be one delegate for each local union, providing that said union shall not contain less than 100 members for three consecutive months prior to the election of delegates; unions having less than 100 members shall combine with their nearest sister unions for the purpose of electing a delegate.

Section 5. Each delegate shall be entitled to one vote. Delegates representing more than 100 members shall be entitled to one additional vote for every 100 members in excess of that number.

Section 9. In the first part of the month of January prior to each convention, the International President shall notify all local unions having less than 100 members to combine with the nearest sister union or unions, also the number of members each union represents.

Amendment by Union 20, Decatur, Ill.

Amendment to Constitution in regard to out of work benefit.

Change Section 117 on line five (5) and after the word least, also strike out Sections 118 and 119, Section 117 to read: Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one (1) year shall be granted an-out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of employment for at least one week, and he or she shall also receive due stamps and be exempt from assessments while unemployed (no members allowed to register from Dec. 16th to Jan. 8th of any year).

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a-Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted herein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues for 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $3.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter, in the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearsages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a securing employment in a factory using the label or which pays the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 130. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessment levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue in color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

The amendment to postpone the May, 1922, convention was adopted. Any time after April, 1922, a convention may be called by a majority vote of the membership at large. Any local union may propose that we hold a convention any time after that date, April, 1922.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION

Jos. Sweeney, 406 N. Franklin St., St. Paul, Minn., would like to hear from his brother, Thomas Sweeney. Address in care of secretary.

Secretary holding the card of George Clancy (84381) please inform him that his father, J. J. Clancy, 428 South Clay Ave., is anxious to hear from him. Very important. By 114, Jacksonville, Ill.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of Dan Hahn, cigar manufacturer of Kenosha, Wis., is requested to wire Secretary B. P. O. E. No. 750, Kenosha, Wis. Mr. Hahn disappeared Jan. 2, 1923. He wore a dark gray overcoat, brown necktie, black and white mixture suit, brown cap, and black shoes; age 41, dark brown hair, brown eyes, teeth slightly discolored. On account of his family, who are very anxious about him, all are requested to give this notice as much publicity as possible.

THE GREED OF A WOLF.

(International Typographical Union Service.)

The Union Label is a red rag to the open shop bull. And no wonder! The pop-eyed individual who smacked his lips so greedily over war profits and boldly claimed the right to all he could get out of the nation's extremity is not the sort to hesitate in the scramble to exploit labor.

He'll wave the flag and cheer the "American Plan" in a voice tremulous with emotion and even spend his money to spread the "patriotic gospel" of the open shop. This fellow forms the backbone of the employers' associations of the country.

"Give to every working man the right to labor where and when he pleases, and give to every employer the right to deal with each employe as an individual—that's American freedom," he declares.

Fine patriotic spirit! And the individual employe would have the same chance that Little Red Riding Hood had to bargain with the wolf. An honest working man dependent on his labor for his daily bread pitted against a subtle, cruel and grasping boss, to whom one hand, more or less, is one white chip in the game. Furthermore, the open shop boss knows they'll all come to work before they'll starve. That's one idea of American freedom—a year-round open season on the poor for the benefit of the rich.

It is inconceivable that such transparent propaganda should deceive intelligent Americans, but it is not the thing for organized labor and its friends to despise an enemy so rich, powerful and unscrupulous as the open shop crowd. They work day and night. They employ every medium of deception their agents can discover. To meet this onslaught, which has redoubled in volume since the war, every worker in America should take a solemn pledge to fly the banner of unionism—the Union Label, symbol of the union shop—in every garment he wears, every cigar he smokes and all the merchandise he buys.

There you have it. A warfare of wealth and power against ingenuity and justice.

But remember this: All the money in the world eventually passes through the hands of wage earners. See that you do your part to direct that stream of money into the right channels.

DEMAND THE UNION LABEL WHEN YOU BUY!

Deficiency in Funds of Local Unions on January 1, 1923.

Section 173 of the constitution reads as follows:
"Sec. 173. Unions expending more than the percentage provided for in Sec. 171 must replace the same within ninety days after receiving official notice. Failing to do so they shall be suspended. But local unions having a deficiency in their funds on Jan. 1, 1921, shall make up the deficiency upon the following basis; 50 cents per member per quarter. Any union failing to comply with this provision shall be suspended."

The one thing employers fear in labor organizations more than all others is power.

Resources They know that without power the organization is barren.
Mean Power. ren of vigorous resistance and that its aims will eventually fail because of its impotency.

The power of any labor organization is predicated solely upon its resources and from a survey of its resources the employer gauges his chances of overthrowing the organization in his particular factory or workshops. Without ample resources the organization is doomed to fail in most of its undertakings launched for the betterment of its membership. Without resources it is usually the sheerest folly to even undertake any extensive movement to increase wages or to better working conditions.

The resources of a labor union do not differ materially in their source from the resources of other organizations, be they business, social or fraternal. They are furnished in every instance either from dues or assessments or both. The member of the manufacturers' association pays his assessment, usually a substantial one, while the member of the labor union pays his dues which in the main are nominal.

A low dues policy is neither wise nor profitable for organized labor. Low dues must mean small resources and small resources mark plainly a lack of power. This is the telltale evidence that betrays a weakness when the employer makes his survey and decides upon the test.

Resources, made possible by the dues we pay, is the foundation upon which is builded our fortifications of defense and upon which, too, is erected the castle of our hopes. A labor union without resources is as helpless as a ship without ballast. It is only a hull, at the mercy of the winds and waves, with neither the stability to keep afloat nor the power to make a safe anchorage.

The worker who has risen from the ranks to an executive station is held before other workers as an example of Individualism. successful independent action.

The subsidized news columns of the general press make the most of this rare occurrence attempting to use it as proof that only on individual merit can the worker hope to rise in rank. Editorial writers spread themselves in lauding the principle of individualism as the real standard upon which the worker should be judged and by which he should be merited. They attempt to show the enormous amount of room there is at the top and that the worker who desires to reach the dizzy pinnacle of success needs no union to further his cause. Many of them intimate at least that to hold membership in a trades union is a hindrance rather than a help in the climbing of ambition's ladder.

The utter fallacy of their entire line of reasoning is patent to all who really stop to examine modern industrial life. While there can be but a limited number, few indeed in the aggregate, of "top jobs" there must be and are millions of bottom jobs. Industry is not made up of executives and officials. It is made up of productive workers. The elevation of one man, be he from the ranks or not, in no way improves the conditions of the thousands who must by reason of the nature of industry remain below him. Hence the trade union organization which is of necessity a mass movement. Its mission is not to elevate the few but to benefit the many. The success or prosperity of the individual worker means nothing to the masses unless the same agencies that make for his success are available to all.

No better illustration of the futility of the Company Union and of company directed welfare is needed than Protection That that which is now Fails to Protect. shown as a result of the merger of the Morris packing plant with the Armour interests.

As soon as the deal was closed the following notice was liberally posted: "No provision for carrying on the pensions was included in the terms of sale when Armour & Co. took over the Morris holdings." This means that the elaborate pension and sick benefit plan of the widely heralded Company Union existent in the stock yards since the loss of the last general strike blows up inso-far as the former Morris employees are concerned. They are left with nothing but their bitter lesson to heal the hurts of previous industrial accidents.

The same experience, sooner or later, is bound to come to any group of workers who blindly leave their welfare in the hands of their employers, no matter what elaborate scheme they may have been inveigled into in lieu of a bona fide trades union. Through their own neglect to protect themselves they become the easy victims of the cupidity of their employer.

Glittering promises of so-called Industrial Freedom wherein the workers supposedly all but manage the plant as set forth in the prospectus of the Company Union have always failed miserably to protect wages, hours or working conditions and they will one and all eventually repudiate their fraternal features. There is but one place where the worker may secure the protection that he desires and should have, industrially and fraternally and that is in the trades union of his craft.

The public, so carefully guarded against suffering or profiteering when labor makes a demand for a decent wage scale in any industry that has even a remote connection with public service, seems to be getting hit and hit hard in the region of the pocketbook by the same forces that demanded and secured an injunction restraining the miners from going on strike. Their demands, for the injunction were of course based upon the old cry of protecting the dear public against an organized force as expressed through the miners' union.

The facts are and they are now plainly emphasized that the coal barons are only interested in the rights of the public when they can use this propaganda to chain labor to its task. We now find these same shameless Shylocks who recently raised their wail that the public might be protected against an imaginary enemy becoming a real enemy to the coal consuming public through the sale of dirt, slate or any thing else that will make weight under the guise of coal and at a price that marks its operation as profiteering in the steepest degree.

The sad part of the matter is that although our government has ample proof of this wholesale thievery it is apparently unable to do anything about it. Of course if it were that the miners might be blamed—but it seems that the injunction is a peculiar bird nesting only in certain well protected, chosen spots.

Using an erroneous report, unfortunately released by a government official, as to a possible sugar shortage the food gamblers proceeded to corner the sugar market and through their corner shake down the public to the tune of millions of dollars in an especially bold profiteering campaign.

We are now advised that a "Sugar strike" or boycott is the logical method of circumventing the steal. It may do some good. One sure result is the deprivation of thousands of their accustomed sugar ration be it because they become a party to the boycott or be it that they are unable to buy sufficient sugar to meet their needs on account of its unholy price.

The strike or boycott while not officially sanctioned by the government is mildly urged as a palliative against the brigands who arbitrarily set the prices of our food stuffs in their licensed gambling joints.

No doubt the sugar strike could be branded as a conspiracy in restraint of trade and in keeping with precedent there may be a sweeping injunction issued against the housewives who refuse to be held up by the sugar gamblers.

CONVENTION CALL.

The membership by popular vote having designated August 13, 1923, as the time to hold the next convention it becomes necessary to change the dates specified in Sections 8 and 9 of the constitution, on which nominations and elections of delegates shall be made and held in order that the delegates may be nominated and elected in time to serve as delegates. The changes necessary are specified in Paragraph 7.

Paragraph 2, of Section 3, of the Constitution, reads as follows:

"The convention may on the last day of its session designate a place to hold the next convention, and at the same time name four additional cities as possible places for such purpose."

The Cleveland Convention nominated Denver, Chicago, Boston, Cincinnati and Montreal.

"Whenever a convention shall be called the President shall ascertain which of the cities offers the best conditions as to hotels, etc., from a union standpoint. And if time permits he shall submit the names of the fairest to a referendum vote, and a majority vote shall decide the question. Should lack of time preclude the possibility of referring the matter to a referendum, then a majority of the Executive Board shall be empowered to make the selection."

As soon as the place is selected for holding the convention all local unions will be promptly notified.

Section 4 provides:

"The basis of representation in the International Union shall be one delegate for each local union, provided that said union shall not contain less than 25 members for three consecutive months previous to the election of delegates. Unions having less than 25 members shall combine with their nearest sister unions for the purpose of electing delegates. Unions having more than 500 members shall be entitled to two delegates, and for each additional 500 or fraction thereof, not less than 200, one delegate more. In the election for delegates to the convention by unions it shall require a majority vote to elect."

Unions having 25 members or more will nominate delegates at their last meeting in May, or if the May meeting has been held then at a special meeting of which all members including jurisdiction shall be notified, and elected at the last regular meeting in June.

Section 9 of the Constitution provides that the International President shall notify all local unions having less than 25 members to combine with the nearest sister union or unions. Such notice shall contain the location of the nearest union or unions, also number of members each union represents, and that on receipt of such notice the union shall nominate one candidate by ballot, and that the election shall take place on the second Tuesday in the month following. Unions having less than 25 members have been notified of the combinations made.

Full explanation and information reference unions which have to combine to elect delegates has been given such unions in the letter notifying them of the combinations.

Coal owners are making hysterical efforts to distract the United States coal commission and the public generally from the royal profits in this industry.

The commission is being flooded with stories of how the United Mine Workers of America are conspiring to monopolize this industry, and cause anguish to the pure-minded, holy coal owners who live only to serve the people.

In reply to this attack, the mine workers say, in part:

"If ever there was an unconscionable hold-up, it is the one that has been inflicted on consumers of anthracite in the last several months. It costs around $4 a ton to produce anthracite at the mines, but the consumer is compelled to pay $16 to $17 a ton for that same coal. If the operators wish to put a stop to a hold-up, let them begin at home and relieve the consumer of a part of this imposition. The miner receives but a very small share of the $16 or $17. He is not responsible for the gouge of the consumer's pocket.

"And when these operators raise the question of a monopoly they are again on thin ice. There is such intricate interlocking of coal companies, anthracite railroads, sales companies, wholesalers and distributors, all controlled and dominated by the same interests, that the anthracite business is a gigantic, scientific monopoly, a fact well known for many years.

"If the anthracite companies are in earnest in their demand for correction and regulation of the anthracite monopoly, the United Mine Workers will be happy to help them clean it up. Possibly, if that were accomplished this monopoly would be forced to reduce the outrageous price which the consumer now is required to pay for anthracite."

Just before the last convention we said and we now repeat the following:

"The coming convention will be historical and probably the most momentous in the history of the International Union. The natural evolution that has taken place in the last ten or fifteen years has brought us face to face with a crisis in the affairs and destiny of the International Union. Momentous questions pressing for the right solution will confront the delegates. The convention becomes the legislative mill through which important questions will pass for review, adoption, or rejection.

"Organization of the industry. What should be done to hasten organization?

"The so-called Class A problem.

"The bunch-breaking and roll-up team system. (The team system is growing.)

"Benefits.

"Dues and assessments.

"Discipline and the enforcement thereof, especially in strikes.

"The cigar machine.

"The use of machinery, such as the suction table and the bunch-breaking machine.

"The use of the union label. Some plan should be devised whereby the label will more effectively assist in organizing the trade. This merits deep thought and discussion.

"The delegates and unions should discuss these and other important questions. We shall require the best thoughts and judgment at our command in selecting the best course to pursue."

Section 10 provides that the President shall appoint a Committee on Constitution to meet one week prior to the convention, and provides that any local union may send proposed amendments to the chairman of this committee. Any union proposing or desiring to propose an amendment for consideration by the Committee on Constitution should send it in a sealed envelope addressed to The Chairman, Committee on Constitution, care G. W. Perkins, 508 S. Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill., and it will be promptly forwarded to the Chairman of the Committee on Constitution, when appointed.

Always big interests have resorted to the time-worn but altogether too effective policy and method of keeping the workers divided and fighting among themselves. The sooner the workers start to think in friendly, fraternal terms of all others who work the sooner they will stop Cheap-John manufacturers from adding to their overstuffed bank rolls.

In a recent trip through the South I found that in many places the racial line, and especially the color line, was tightly drawn. From the public platform I made bold enough to say to them, "For eight hours per day you sit beside one who through accident of birth is of a different nativity and has a different complexion. You do this as a matter of fact with no thought of the color line, but when it comes to meeting with these same people in your trade union meeting for an hour or two in the evening once a month the color line is immediately raised. If working men and women of a different race and color are good enough to make profits for the employer for eight hours a day they are good enough to at least associate with you for an hour in the trade union meeting for the purpose of getting better wages for you."

The sooner we all stop hating, knocking, and belittling our fellow workmen the better it will be for all who must work for their daily bread.

In 99 out of every 100 cases the stories started against a fellow workman are started by big interests, and in 99 out of every 100 cases the stories are false from start to finish. It is high time that we stop repeating parrot-like the stories originating in the fertile minds of big interests and put into circulation for the purpose of poisoning the minds of the workers and keeping them divided, and the sooner we do stop the better it will be for all concerned, excepting the greedy, profiteering employers.

Local unions in selecting delegates should pick those who are best qualified by experience, temperament, and good judgment. The important duty resting upon the representatives to a delegate convention is a tremendous responsibility. It is true that whatever the convention does must be ratified by popular vote before it becomes law. Still it is of vital and paramount importance that the work accomplished in the convention be of a constructive nature and a finished product. Under our delegate plan and referendum system delegates can not escape the great moral obligation and duties imposed upon them.

"Assessments, 'high' dues, and our benefit system" have been used as an alibi and excuse for not coming into the International Union and staying therein. While it is true that some dropped their cards because of the long-sustained strike in Tampa and the assessments levied for the purpose of making good our obligations in the payment of strike benefit, the facts are that none of the excuses or alibis are well-grounded.

The fact that we fail to take note of the evolution going on in our industry and to apply proper methods of keeping abreast is more responsible for the present state of affairs than all the false notions and reasons advanced.

It is well that we are to hold a convention where the economic conditions of the industry can be considered and the proper roadway to a more rapid, stable, and permanent success can be built.

The trade union movement is steadily growing in numbers in all parts of this war-racked world with the possible exception of here in these United States. Nearly 50,000,000 people are organized in the trade union movement according to statistics issued by the International Federation of Trade Unions.

In some of the countries in Europe where they suffered the greatest loss during the World War and the greatest hardships during the rehabilitation period the membership has increased more rapidly than it did in any other given period prior to the war.

The upward growth of the movement in our own country was slow in starting, but once on its feet and in full swing the movement will go forward with leaps and bounds.

Elsewhere in this Journal it will be seen that the amendment of Union 132 providing for a convention August 13, 1923, was adopted. I congratulate the membership on its wisdom in voting for the holding of this convention. A convention is necessary. It should have been held last year. Matters of extreme importance and vital to the future welfare and prosperity of those engaged in the cigar industry will claim the attention of the delegates at the convention and will demand successful solution.

These matters are of such vital importance that they suggest the thought that the delegates selected should proceed to the convention with open minds. All unions, however, should thoroughly discuss and give expression to what they think should be done and what they would like to see done. The vital facts will be presented to the delegates, and all sides of every question and issue will be fully discussed. The knowledge of material facts acquired at the convention will be helpful in creating a mature judgment which predicated upon the facts will, after all, render the delegates better qualified to discharge their obligations.

It should be borne in mind that whatever the delegate does or the convention does has to be referred to the popular vote and the members in their individual capacity have the final say.

The whole labor movement of our country is shaking off the lethargy and mood of discouragement it had fallen into and has started breathing the fire of enthusiasm and optimism and fraternal good fellowship. We must all get to work, do our share, and contribute our mite for the great movement to which we owe so much and which has done so much for us and which is going to do more for us in the future.

No union should be expected to shape its law to conform to the wishes of non-unionists. The proper thing for non-unionists to do is to join with their fellow-workers in the union and if the laws don't suit them help to make laws that do fit into the desire and wishes of the majority of those who have the right to make the laws.

Stop blaming the other fellow. Assume your own load of responsibility and see if some of the things you are blaming on the other fellow don't rightfully belong to you. Stop believing stories circulated by the employers or their hirelings.

Increasing wages does not necessarily increase the cost of living.

High prices are more often due to incompetency of the manufacturer, profiteering of middle men, and graft than to any other causes.

Boost for the union label. Never buy anything without the union label if it is possible to get it with the label.

Beware of the chap who by his actions and talk gives free rein to the things that keep us divided.

The constructive trade union movement stands against poverty and for a decent living.

Trade unions were born of necessity and necessity will keep them alive.

Dissension and lack of harmony are kept alive by the employing class.

Organize and keep on organizing regardless of race, color, or creed.

If you can not boost, don't knock.

Voice your "kick," certainly, but in so doing offer a remedy, at least a constructive suggestion.

Maintain the working conditions of yourself and fellows by purchasing only union-labelled goods.

Patronage of union labels is like good humor, a very good habit.

A postage stamp sticks until it gets there. Imitate the postage stamp in your search for union-labelled goods.

Getting ahead is largely a matter of getting up each time you are knocked down. Remember this in your advocacy of the union label, card and button.

CORRESPONDENCE

Union 248 requests the publication of the enclosed communication in our official journal:

Jacksonville, May, 1923.

To the officers and members of local unions:

Union 248 offers an amendment to Section 171 of the constitution and we wish to explain as follows:

According to the annual financial report as published in the April issue of our Official Journal, there are 155 local unions which expended over percentage in 1922.

It appears that the percentage allowed by the constitution is not sufficient to enable the local unions, especially the smaller ones, to carry on their local affairs in an efficient manner, without deficiencies.

While the dues have been doubled in the past three years, the percentage allowed to local unions has remained stationary for many years.

We believe that the proposed amendment to Section 171 would work to good advantage both to the local unions and to the International Union.

Therefore we offer it for your consideration.

I am fraternally yours,

LUIS RODRIGUEZ, Flⁿ. Secy.

Rochester, N. Y., May 5, 1923.

This is to inform dealers and smokers that the following firms are conducting non-union shops:

P. Meagher & Co., makers of the Orange Blossom and Orange Blossom Cubs.

Jule Lockner, maker of the Lord Justice and Jule Lockner..

Jacobstein Bros., makers of the Lord Puffer and Hava Java. Operating a factory at Newark, N. J., and at Rochester, N. Y., and a store at 201 Main St., East, of this city.

Fraternally yours,

HUGH HACKETT, Sec'y.

Now Is the Time—Let's Go!

There will be no time more opportune than the present to begin the work of rebuilding our organization. Many complaints reach this office concerning the low wages being paid, and this is particularly true of the cigarmakers. Unless the workers of our industry are organized as completely as possible their living and working standards will be reduced far below what they are now. Now is the time to lay aside old animosities, grudges and complaints—get into the harness and help those who have the courage and enthusiasm to go forward to a better day.

HARRY GIFFORD.

Organize the industry. It can be done.

Chicago, May 5, 1923.

It has been repeatedly stated editorially in our Journal that excessive profiteering in food stuffs as well as in other necessities of life was in the main responsible for the present high cost of living and the claim made too that both the producer on the farm and the consumer in the city are victims of this uncurbed daylight robbery.

In support of that contention I call attention to the present price of bread, the one thing universally consumed and well termed "the staff of life," and the prices charged compared with the cost of production. The wheat from which our bread is made is now cheaper than at any time since 1913 and every bushel produced during the last two years has meant an actual loss to the farmer. Flour has declined from $13.00 a barrel to $6.50 a barrel within the last year yet we are paying, generally, from seven to ten cents for a "pound" loaf of bread and the loaf usually weighs nearer twelve ounces than sixteen. According to Senator Ladd of North Dakota, who is an authority on grain production and milling, the flour in an actual pound loaf of bread costs less than two and one-half cents. Bakers estimate the cost of the other ingredients at not to exceed one-fourth cent and the same amount, one-fourth cent, will adequately cover the labor cost of making and baking under modern machine production. This brings the cost of the loaf to three cents. The retailer is allowed one cent for final distribution so when we are charged from seven to ten cents for the bread it is easily seen that the bread interests are exacting a profit that is exorbitant. These figures of production are based on present flour prices which are, when compared with the price paid the farmer for his wheat, also beyond all reason and which smack of profiteering also.

Yours fraternally,

R. E. VAN HORN.

(From American Federation of Labor Information and Publicity Service.)

Washington, D. C.

Results of an extensive survey of efforts to use the trade union press of the United States for propaganda purposes were laid before the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor on Saturday by President Samuel Gompers. The inquiry was made at President Gompers' direction by the A. F. of L. Information and Publicity Service.

About three hundred weekly labor newspapers and official trade union monthly journals were consulted by means of a questionnaire in procuring the material upon which the report is based.

Two main conclusions are set forth, as follows:

1. An enormous amount of subversive material is furnished to trade union publications regularly.
2. A comparatively small amount of this material is published.

It was reported to the Executive Council that an enormous mass of propaganda material furnished to labor papers had been collected, analyzed and classified. This propaganda represented the efforts of employers, a certain class of pseudo-liberal periodical publications and a large group of communist, pro-soviet and parlor pink organizations.

The report sets forth that employer propaganda is of comparatively small importance and small in volume.

The great bulk of material hostile to the trade union point of view is furnished by organizations of communists and those sympathizing more or less with the communist, pro-soviet, anti-American point of view. In discussing this character of propaganda the report says:

"The labor papers of the country receive approximately twenty-five installments of propaganda each per month. Most of it is distinctly pro-soviet in character, from such organizations as the Friends of Soviet Russia, the Workers' Party, the American Civil Liberties Union, the National Labor Alliance for Trade Relations With and Recognition of Russia, the so-called Trade Union Educational League, and various so-called Labor Defense organizations.

"Practically all of the pro-soviet propaganda material reaches labor editors in the form of mimeographed articles and in the form of printed articles.

"Practically all of the propaganda organizations, seeking to reach the labor publications, have learned to imitate a news style in the preparation of their material and seek to give to their propaganda the semblance of real news.

"The Federated Press might easily enough be classified as a propaganda organization, but inasmuch as an official investigation of the Federated Press has been ordered by the American Federation of Labor, a detailed study of its work may be left for discussion when report is made following the investigation.

"Among a few publications material that is clearly of a propaganda nature and intended for no other purpose finds generous use, but so far as the great majority of trade union newspapers and magazines are concerned the enormous flood of propaganda material represents nothing but a prodigal waste of money and effort.

"If there is any danger it is that the persistence of the propagandists may ultimately achieve a larger measure of success."

The report then enters into an exhaustive and detailed analysis of the material furnished to trade union publications by organizations which the A. F. of L. considers hostile, describing and characterizing not only the propaganda but the organizations themselves, together with their general purposes. In the course of this detailed analysis attention is called to the misleading character of the names under which various organizations operate. Following is an extract from that section of the report:

"As a rule all the most extreme and revolutionary forms of propaganda are now spread broadcast under deceptive labels. For example, The Young Workers' League is in reality an organization of young communists, as clearly appears from its publication, The Young Worker, but its name might make it acceptable to many who would not be interested if it were called The Young Communist and if the organization behind it were labeled The Young Communist League.

"Similarly the International Press Correspondence containing lengthy discussions of all international and labor questions from the communist standpoint—being the official press service of the Communist International—might under its camouflage name persuade labor editors of more or less advanced views to use its materials. The same is true of the press service issued by the so-called Workers' Party of America, the new name for one of the two co-operating communist parties. The Communist Labor Union International is represented in this country by the so-called Trade Union Educational League, organized by W. Z. Foster. If it were called by its right name, The American Branch of the Communist Labor Union International, it would receive scantier attention. Its publication instead of being the Communist Herald is called The Labor Herald."

In conclusion the report says:

"The conclusions to be drawn from the inquiry are fairly obvious. A considerable effort is being made to use the bona fide trade union publications for a propaganda that is hostile to the trade union movement and there is no indication that this propaganda will diminish in volume. It certainly will not diminish in volume as long as somebody can be found to pay the bills.

"Employer propaganda has not been developed to any considerable extent perhaps because employer propaganda is more readily distinguished and more summarily rejected by labor editors.

"Most subtle of all propaganda which seeks entry into the labor press is the propaganda of the so-called liberals who lean toward or sympathize with revolutionary movements.

"The Red propaganda would be almost entirely without chance of success anywhere if it was issued under names which properly described the organizations backing the propaganda.

"For the most part the labor press has rejected practically all propaganda and has maintained a high standard of editorial integrity. This is because of its understanding of the issues involved and because of its thoroughgoing loyalty to the interests of the workers and to the American Federation of Labor.

"There can be no question of the legitimacy of the effort of any organization to secure publication of its point of view but such efforts cease to be legitimate when they are made under disguise, when the source is not named or when it is inaccurately named.

"The constructive remedy for all propaganda so far as the labor press is concerned is obviously the development by the labor press and by the labor movement of its own sources of information, its own news channels and its own news gathering machinery.

"The labor press exists for the purpose of supporting the trade union movement. The use of the labor press for any other purpose or the support of a press by the trade union movement for any other purpose is subversive of the interests of the toiling masses of America and constitutes a betrayal of the confidence which the labor movement reposes in its publications and of the support which is given to them."

Organize the industry. It can be done.

Open-Shoppers Recognize Power of Union Label.

As proof of the recognition by the open-shoppers of the power of patronage as expressed by the Union Label the following circular is amply sufficient:

TRI-STATE EMPLOYERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE POWER OF PATRONAGE

While we may not all have Open Shops, yet we are all firm believers in them. In order to aid the movement for the Open Shop in the United States let us all do a little missionary work that will not cost us any money.

The next time you buy any Clothing, Furniture, or anything at all, ask if it was made in an Open Shop, if not, then insist on getting Open Shop Products, ask your intimate friends to do the same thing.

In your factory instruct your purchasing agent to purchase as far as possible material and supplies that were made in an Open Shop, if you have any work to do about your plant, or home, try and have it done by Open Shop workmen.

If you will carry this out and if every organization such as ours will do the same thing, you can readily see that the men who are running Open Shops are going to get considerable encouragement.

If you at present think you are wearing Open Shop products, it might interest you to look under the sweat band of your hat and the chances are that you will find a union label under it, if so, tear it out at once.

Think over the above statement, and begin at once to boost the Open Shop.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) ALBERT C. ODELL,
Secretary,

Tri-City Employers' Association.

The above in circular form is being freely distributed by the Tri-City Employer's Association of Troy, Albany and Cohoes, New York, as a means of boosting the products of the open shop and with the added hope of destroying the power of the Union Label which they recognize at its true worth. It would appear from propaganda such as the above and from similar propaganda disseminated by other organizations of open-shoppers intended to serve the same general purpose that the non-union open-shoppers give the Union Label more credit for power than do some who call themselves union members.

When organized labor learns the lesson of self defense, when it resolves to purchase NOTHING made in open shops, when it ALWAYS demands the label as the trademark of union made goods, then such circulars as the above will prove absolutely abortive. Just as long, however, as union men and union women aid and abet the common enemy by following the advice given in the above circular, just as long as they spend their money for open shop products the open shop will thrive and prosper and the cause of organized labor will suffer accordingly. This is not a far-fetched theory; it is a proven fact and until trade unionists recognize it they are building barriers across their own highway and are destroying the bridge that would carry them in safety to success.

REPORTS OF ORGANIZERS

Washington, D. C., May 4, 1923.

Local Union No. 3 of Paterson is going along quietly but steadily and has been holding a fair share of business in the local shops. With a few of the manufacturers trade had reached the point where they found no complaint in disposing of the goods, whilst with others business was less brisk, but viewing conditions on the average from a local survey, things were quite tolerable, and prospects for even greater improvement seem probable in the coming season.

Members of that union are alive to the necessity of agitation for the label and are keeping the mind's-eye of the public centered on the demand for cigars made under union conditions. With that salient feature kept prominent as a guiding star, there is every reason to believe that the home market can be built up to stalwart proportions and scab goods will diminish from the field wherever the fight is waged with vigor for "organization and the union label."

A campaign of agitation and education was carried on there among the workers to impress the cause and effect of the organized labor movement and to arouse the smoking public to a consciousness of duty not to patronize the cheap-paid labor products made in trust factories nor consume cigars made under non-union or so-called open shop conditions, as that camouflage is used by "union-busting" concerns as a bait to conceal their real reason for filching greater profits from the employees by cutting wages to the bone and destroying the standards of labor.

The agitation committee co-operated splendidly in rendering valuable support and doing all things possible to make our mission a success. Twenty unions of different crafts and organizations were visited and appealed to and their moral assistance was sought and requests made to them when purchasing cigars "to give preference to cigars bearing the union label."

Washington, as viewed today, is not the cigar manufacturing center that it should be, for the business in that line that was once carried on here declined a decade or more ago and has not since recovered to former standards. The old guards and loyal trades union members of our organization are holding the lines of intrenchment and still fighting a gallant battle to preserve the ideals and principles for which the union stands and to keep the label cigars on the market against the encroachment of trust-made goods that is eating into the sinews of legitimate business and challenges fair competition in the field of honorable industry.

Fraternally,

R. S. SEXTON,
General Organizer.

Reading, Pa., May 7, 1923.

During the month of March district conferences were held by the local unions comprising each district, and at these meetings it was thoroughly gone over by the representatives of the local unions how to proceed with the campaign of organization in Pennsylvania. It was also presented by the delegates what objections the non-unionists had or might have for not joining the union, also how to meet those objections.

It was clearly set forth to the representatives that it was necessary for the members and officers of each local union to arrange committees to help visit the non-unionists, to invite them to join the union of their craft and endeavor to show them that if the standard of conditions and prices for making cigars were ever to be raised in Pennsylvania or any other state it must be done by the cigar makers and by all working in concert through the Cigar Makers' Int. Union.

Many locals responded by sending circulars to the workers in the cigar industry setting forth what it cost the worker not to belong to the union of his or her craft and inviting them to join with the organized workers to help get back some of the loss in wages they have suffered by staying out of the union.

In some of the circulars the unorganized have it clearly before them how the prices for work have been reduced since the war year after year, until now they are receiving almost pre-war prices for their labor, while the brands they perform the labor on are selling at war prices to dealer and consumer.

After the district conferences were held in April it was thought wise by the presidents and secretaries of the districts that the organizers should again visit the locals of each district and endeavor to have them push the plan of organization work and also to prepare to have a delegate at a general conference of all unions of the state, with a statement of number of people employed at cigar making under their jurisdictions, prices paid in 1919 and prices paid in 1923, thus showing the reductions suffered since 1919 up to the present time.

This was done during April and while some of the locals were slow in arranging local committees to work, nearly all of them secured the data requested and had a representative at the general conference of unions held in Reading, Pa., May 6, 1923, where they presented a report of conditions and prices.

From their reports it was shown that in all localities the cigar maker and packer have suffered a reduction and in most every case without a protest for the reason that the workers were not organized and without an organization they knew any effort would be useless.

The general conference was held in Reading, Pa., Sunday, May 6, and from the spirit shown by the delegates present it was apparent they were going to try to have their locals make a determined effort to present to the unorganized every reason why they should join the union and help to bring about collective bargaining through their organization. If this spirit will be kept up no doubt results will be obtained in showing the unorganized the light and bring new members into the organization.

Fraternally yours,

The accounts of this union are not in a very good condition at present. None of the members wants the office of secretary. All out of work cards missing. Some sick cards not on file. None of the vouchers signed by person receiving the money and some are missing. Expenditures entered on the monthly report at times with no record to show to whom they were paid and for what purpose. Instructed the acting secretary, the chairman of the finance committee and the president on the manner in which the accounts should be handled, who promised to see that a voucher is written out for each expenditure and that it is signed by the recipient of the money. These three members are making an honest effort in looking after the interests of Union No. 466, but receive little co-operation from most of the other members.

Union 376, Utuado, Porto Rico.

April 1, 1923.

As per your instructions I proceeded to Utuado to make a personal investigation of the claim for death benefit on account of the death of the member Belen Rivera. Charges made against Secretary Gerardo Colon by claimant proved to be true.

In view of that I thought that I should make an examination of the union and did so. Conditions of the union and accounts awfully bad. Strike benefits paid entered by thousands in totals in the books by weeks or months without specifying individual amount received by member. No voucher for any expense. Ledger practically unused. No benefit of any kind charged to members in the ledger and payments made not entered. On that account you cannot tell about the standing of the members. When the accounts of this union were examined by Int. Financier W. A. Campbell in Nov., 1918, everything was left O. K. and the proper instructions were left in writing for the secretary in the day book. Such instructions have been absolutely ignored and those issued by this office from time to time as well. Wilfull misconduct and malice have been apparently the aims of Secretary Colon in all the transactions of the union and to this has contributed to a large extent the almost universal criminal negligence of the members of this local, who have also contributed with their vote to make appropriations of the international fund for local purposes. The prosecuting attorney of the district, I hope, will tell about the end of this local and the men responsible for such conditions, which are a shame.

Special Financier's Examination of Union No. 182, Madison, Wis.

Madison, Wis., April 10, 1923.

The books and accounts here are in very bad shape; all entries were not made in day book, ledger was not posted correctly, no system for keeping benefit cards or vouchers on file; business has been conducted in a very unbusiness like way.

Attended special meeting of the local, aided them in installing officers and have instructed them as to their duties. Deposited the major portion of the general fund in bank on interest bearing account in the name of the union, requiring the signatures of secretary and three trustees to withdraw any part of same. The outlook here is bright for the future, with the proper spirit of co-operation and some good label agitation, no reason why they should not have at least 100 members here within a year.

My advice to the boys here and every other place is to hit while the iron is hot; go to it with all your might; the label is our best weapon; boost it at every opportunity; agitate, educate, and don't forget the other fellow's label.

Phraseologists.

W. Z. Foster and his "official staff" of disrupters, like those "superior intellectuals and natural leaders" going before them, are master phraseologists; they are drunk on phrases, and would build a labor movement on catch phrases and magic formulas. Like their predecessors, they have learned to play upon the strings of the heart, touching the tenderest cords of human sympathy, and to paint a vision of the horrors that surround us in such a way that the minds of their followers are taken away from the realities of the earth and the sad facts of life.

Foster's charge that the officials of the labor movement are opposed to his "Educational League" because they are afraid they will lose their jobs, is only a fair sample of the cheap appeal that is being made to every cheap feeling, cheap prejudice, cheap sentiment and passion in a desperate effort to win over a crowd and gain a following.

In posing as a consistent and perfect altruist, as well as a superior intellectual, Mr. Foster omits to make it known that he, himself, and most of his paid aids have been feeding at the worker's trough for more than twenty-five years; that after he left the I. W. W. destitute, and his Syndicalist League blew up, he cleverly worked himself into the confidence of a number of trade unionists and landed a job among the packing-house workers, afterward landing a well-paying berth in the campaign to organize the steel workers; and that just as soon as the steel strike played out, with no job in sight, he again started out to "save" the labor movement and launched his "new" league, which is providing a means for himself and other "natural leaders" to cash in on their "superior intellect" and so-called radicalism.

He made little complaint while on the pay roll of the A. F. of L., and we have yet to learn where he ever returned one penny of the sums received in salary and expenses, or that he donated any part to the cause of his fellows.—Electrical Workers' Journal.

Indianapolis, Ind.—How Big Business labor haters are urged to pool their strength in fighting trade unionism is frankly and brazenly told in a leaflet being circulated by Associated Employers of Indianapolis, one of the militant labor-hating organizations of the country.

This pamphlet is a reprint of the annual report of the president and secretary at the recent annual meeting, where employers were urged to get together for the anti-union shop.

The circular says:

"It is good business and cheap industrial insurance for all employers to pool their moral and financial support in helping some one employer defeat a strike in the effort to protect the freedom and rights of all employers and of all labor. By extending their collective influence to help some one of their number withstand the onslaught of strike agitation, other employers not involved can effectively keep the strike specter from their own doors. It is equivalent to buying any form of insurance. The small premium employers pay into the Association in membership fees constitutes a fund with which to meet and quench the fires of industrial strife before the conflagration becomes so widespread as to affect a greater area of the business and industrial life of the community."

What an inducement to hold forth to Americans: Cheap membership—bargain sales of strike insurance. Bargain sales where are to be had cheap weapons of oppression to prevent American wage earners from exercising the right to make life better and freer and fuller.

The Associated Employers of Indianapolis offer cheap ideals at low prices, indeed!

By International Labor News Service.

Substantiating labor's assertion that labor is not responsible for high building costs, Michael J. Collieran, president of the Building Trades Council, has submitted a tabulation of facts to the Advisory Committee of Fifteen on the Building Situation.

Mr. Collieran submits the following eight specific points in refutation of the charge that labor is responsible for high costs:

1. The cost of materials—not wages—is the chief factor in the cost of erecting a building.

2. No less than 63 cents on every dollar of construction costs which the contractor pays goes to building material manufacturers, while only 37 cents goes for wages to labor.

3. It was the profiteering price of materials—not high wages—which was the chief cause of the prohibitive cost of building in 1919 and 1920.

4. Material costs, according to the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, in 1920 were 275 per cent above the pre-war rates, while wages at the same time had risen only 97 per cent.

5. When material costs dropped in 1921 and 1922, the building boom immediately began.

6. Now that material costs are rising again, the cost of building is being rapidly increased and the continuance of the construction boom threatened.

7. According to the latest figure of U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, the cost of building materials had already risen 28 per cent in March over March of the previous year.

8. The profits which the contractor makes are also a large, but generally unknown, factor in the price which the public pays for construction.

Theories not founded on fact and experience will never make for the progress that a continual demand for the union label, card and button is bound to bring.

Organize the industry. It can be done.

Referendum Vote on Amendment of 132, Brooklyn, N. Y.

This amendment, providing for a convention Aug. 13, 1923, was adopted by a vote of 2,644 for and 2,147 against.

Another Temple to Labor.

Recently, the Bakery & Confectionery Workers International Union of America completed and took possession of their new home, which houses all of the executive activities of that International Union.

In connection with taking official possession, the officers of the various International Unions located in Chicago, the officers of the Chicago Central Body and the Illinois State Federation of Labor, as well as the local officers of the Bakers International Union located in Chicago, were the guests of the Bakery Workers International Union in their new home.

A most pleasing and fascinating impression is the view obtained by exterior observation of this new temple to labor—it being located in the northern division of Chicago, surrounded by homes and residences of the workers—the building's grounds consisting of 120 feet front by 125 feet deep, on which a massive and artistic two and one-half story building, 50x100 feet has been erected.

Interior inspection immediately convinces the observer that the Bakery Workers in the construction of this—their new home—have been guided by one of their most basic and sacred principles so frequently used in their trade union activities: opportunity for sunlight and fresh air ventilation provided everywhere. Every contrivance provided by modern science to make possible the height of sanitary surroundings has been employed.

The entire ground floor of this structure houses the printing establishment, equipped with all of the latest printing presses, linotypes and all other equipment necessary in connection with a thoroughly up to date printing establishment. Not one square inch of this establishment exists but that the sun's rays at sometime during the day will reach it, and under such conditions and environment all printing of the Bakers International Union, such as their publications and their union labels, which reaches nearly a billion a year, will be produced.

The next floor of this wonderful structure houses the administrative and clerical forces of the Bakery Workers International Union.

On the top floor is provided a large room suitably furnished for sessions of the organization's General Executive Board, connecting with which there is a smaller conference room and wardrobe facilities.

A practical way to confound our enemies and union "busters" is to withhold our patronage from them. Demand the union label, card and button.

If good judgment and common sense are applied in making purchases, an increase in the demand for the union label, card and button is sure to follow.

Increased demands for union labels, cards and buttons are indications of trade union education and progress.

GIBSON WEBER, 1710 N. Gratz St., Station C, Philadelphia, Pa., Treasurer.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members, who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also as per section 146, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study section 146 of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member, if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

Notice of the special assessment of $1 on all 30c and 60c members and 50c on Class B members, in compliance with Section 92 (a) of the Constitution, is herewith given. This assessment takes effect March 26, 1923, and may be paid in two weekly installments. New initiates who have not been members for four months are exempt from all assessments. All who join after March 26 are exempt from payment of the March assessment. Class B members do not have to pay any international assessments until they have been members for six months. Forty-cent beneficiary members do not have to pay the special strike fund assessment. Members out of work are not exempt from this assessment.

In compliance with a resolution adopted at one of the recent conventions providing for a census of all members at stated intervals, we are mailing under separate cover cards for all unions having more than 25 members. In this instance we have adopted the card system in order to lighten the work of the secretaries. These cards can be given to the shop collectors, who in turn can place one in the hands of each member in the shop in which he is collector. The members can then fill them out and the shop collector gather them up and return them to the secretary, who in turn will forward them to his office. However, these cards may be filled out by the secretary, the shop collector, or the members themselves. The main point is that the card should be absolutely accurate. Where cards are filled out by the shop collector or the member and essential figures as to date of initiation and age are not given the secretary is requested to supply this information from his records. In the case of unions having less than 25 members, we are sending blank sheets to be filled out by the secretaries. A convention will be held August 13, 1923, when the information given on the cards will be necessary and of material value to the delegates to the convention.

UNION NOTES

The office of Union 2, Buffalo, N. Y., will be closed afternoons on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Union 150, Sioux City, Ia., notifies unions that L. J. Ririe, 80992, is suspended for failure to redeem his card.

Hattie Sterrett, secretary of Union 142, Lockport, N. Y., wishes to hear from Frank Glassford at once. Important news for him.

Any secretary holding card of Thos. J. Keenahan, 14925, is requested to duplicate same and send old card to the International Office.

Secretary holding card of Loltes Chismarek (105316) please collect $8 board and room bill and $1 private loan and forward to the secretary of Union 157, Rockford, Ill. If not heard from by June 5th action will be taken by Union 157.

INTERNATIONAL FINES

The International Executive Board approved the application of 5, Rochester, to fine Benjamin Esterman, 10358, $250 and annul his card for working in the Jacobstein unfair shop and refusing to come out, and slandering the union. Vote—Affirmative, 5; one member disapproved the annulment of card; one member approved only $50; and one member disapproved the fine as excessive.

DECISIONS OF THE INT. EXECUTIVE BOARD

Washington, D. C., May 3, 1923.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., of Union No. 97, of Boston, Mass., against the decision rendered by the International President, the vote was as follows: Affirmative, none; negative, Ornburn, Kennedy, Gonzalez, Hall, Stevens, Gompers.

The basis of the appeal was, Union 97 adopted a five-day week rule. A member appealed to the International President against the action of the union, claiming that according to Section 195, the action was unconstitutional. The International President sustained the appeal of the member, whereupon the union appealed to the Executive Board against the decision of the International President.

The International President bases his decision on substantially the following grounds: That while Section 195 provides that "Every Local Union shall have the power to regulate the hours of labor in its respective locality, but in no case shall they exceed eight hours per day on and after May 1st, 1886. Manufacturers who are members of the International Union and members having charge of a shop shall be exempt from those regulations, provided they do not work at the bench more than forty-eight (48) hours per week," it in no case gives the Local Union the right to limit the days per week, nor does any other section of the Constitution contain such provision. Not only does the constitution make no such provision, but to show the sentiment of the International Union on the question, a proposition to limit the days to five per week was overwhelmingly defeated by the Cleveland convention in 1922. An amendment to the constitution was subsequently offered proposing to limit the working days to seven hours. This proposition was submitted to popular vote and was defeated. These actions showed that our International Union was opposed to lessening the days per week and that the membership was opposed to limiting the hours per day to seven. The decision was in strict compliance with the constitution and in accordance with Section 49, which not only gives the member the right to appeal, but provides that "the President shall decide all questions of law or regulate any controversy or difficulty that may arise between the Local Unions or members of the Union or the Local Unions and the International Union."

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President was sustained.

Fraternally,

SAM'L GOMPERS,

First Vice-President.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED

The amendment of Union 516, Wheeling, West Virginia, as published in the April issue, as follows:

Add after the word "dues" on line ten the following, "except Class B members who shall pay one-half the regular initiation fee and fifteen-cent weekly dues."

Received no endorsements.

The amendment of 218, Binghamton, reducing the dues to 50c, as published in the March issue.

Received the endorsement of 315, St. Cloud; 129, Denver; 168, Oshkosh; 301, Akron; 114, Jacksonville; 331, Crookston; 138, Newark.

Not having received the required number of endorsements, it cannot be submitted to a vote of local unions.

The amendment of 141, New York, as published in the April issue, as follows:

Amend Section 4 of the Constitution by striking out on line 3 the figures 25 and insert the figures 100; also in the same section on line 4 strike out figures 25 and insert the figures 100; strike out all in same section on line 6 after the word delegates.

Amend Section 5 by striking out all after the word "number" on line 3.

Amend Section 9 by striking out on line 3 the figures 25 and insert the figures 100.

Amended section to read as follows:

Section 4. The basis of representation in the International Union shall be one delegate for each local union, providing that said union shall not contain less than 100 members for three consecutive months prior to the election of delegates; unions having less than 100 members shall combine with their nearest sister unions for the purpose of electing a delegate.

Section 5. Each delegate shall be entitled to one vote. Delegates representing more than 100 members shall be entitled to one additional vote for every 100 members in excess of that number.

Section 9. In the first part of the month of January prior to each convention, the International President shall notify all local unions having less than 100 members to combine with the nearest sister union or unions, also the number of members each union represents.

Received the endorsement of 44, St. Louis.

The amendment of 20, Decatur, as published in the April Journal, as follows:

Change Section 117 on line five (5) and after the word least, also strike out Sections 118 and 119, Section 117 to read: Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one (1) year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of employment for at least one week, and he or she shall also receive due stamps and be exempt from assessments while unemployed (no members allowed to register from Dec. 16th to Jan. 8th of any year).

Received the endorsement of 133, Richmond; 44, St. Louis; 215, Logansport; 248, Jacksonville; 168, Oshkosh.

Union 248, Jacksonville, proposed the following amendment to Sec. 171 of the Constitution:

Unions numbering 30 members or less, 30 per cent; from 31 to 50 members, 25 per cent; 50 members and upwards, 20 per cent, and insert in place thereof the following:

Unions numbering 50 members or less, 30 per cent; from 51 to 99 members, 25 per cent; 100 members and upwards, 20 per cent.

Amendment submitted by Local 165 of Philadelphia:

Strike out in Section 130 on line (13) after the word report, and on line (14) ending with the word periodical, the following, "whether such inability has been continuous or periodical" and insert "or for longer than ten weeks in all for any one continued sickness or inability or any recurrence thereof," Section 130 as amended to read:

Any member who shall have been for not less than one year continuously a contributing member of the International Union, and who is not under any of the restrictions specified in these laws, shall be entitled, should such member become sick or disabled, or who may be held in quarantine by an authorized board of health in such manner as to render such member unable to attend to his or her usual vocation, to a sum of $7 per week out of the funds of the union, provided such sickness or inability shall have continued for at least one week or seven days and shall not have been caused by intemperance debauchery or other immoral conduct. No member shall be entitled to any sick benefit for a longer period than ten weeks in any one year commencing from date of first report or for longer than ten weeks in all for any one continued sickness or inability or any recurrence thereof, but no member while absent from the United States and the Dominion of Canada, or outside of the jurisdiction of the International Union shall be entitled to any benefit during such absence.

Union 192, Manchester, submits the following amendment:

Amend Section 150 by striking out, "Where the manufacturer deals in Chinese, tenement-house or non-union cigars, it shall be optional with local unions to withhold the label from such firms. It shall be optional with local unions to grant the union label to any manufacturer or firm whose name or firm name appears in or about the box containing Chinese, tenement-house or non-union cigars, or whose name or firm name appears on or about such non-union cigars." And insert the following:

"No manufacturer shall be granted the blue label that deals in Chinese, tenement-house or non-union cigars."

Balance of this section to remain unchanged.

Union 464, Tampa, Fla., offers the following amendment to Section 171 of the constitution:

Strike out line six, seven and eight, commencing with the words, Union Numbering, and insert the following: Union Numbering, seventy-five members or less 30 per cent. From seventy-six to two hundred 25 per cent, from two hundred and one members upwards 20 per cent.

With the above amendment, the rest of this section to remain the same as at present.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted herein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues for 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $8.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter, in the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearsages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a securing employment in a factory using the label or which pays the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 180. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessment levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width.

and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue in color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

The first paragraph of Section 2 of the Constitution shall read:

The next convention of the Cigarmakers' International Union shall be held on the second Monday in August, 1923.

The amount of dues payable in Dues. any union must be prefaced upon its financial obligations. If a union agrees to pay benefits its dues must be equivalent to enable it to meet the outgoing amounts. The question of dues has been forced to the front by several means and reasons, and must be met and settled at the coming convention. The outstanding issue at that time will be to provide means whereby the trade can be more effectually organized and at a rate of dues that will give those in or now outside the ranks no just cause for complaint or excuses. Material facts will be presented for consideration by the delegates, and it is hoped they will be helpful to the convention to adopt effectual methods such as will enable us to go forward unhampered in our work of organizing the trade. This we feel sure can be done if delegates are not bound down with cast iron instruction. Elect your best, tried and true members as delegates; give them your wishes, but leave them free to act when in full possession of all material facts. The situation can be successfully met and solved without repudiation of benefits and at a rate of dues that will satisfy any reasonable-minded person who does not care particularly for the benefits. Whatever the convention may do has no binding effect; all its actions or changes made in the constitution must go back to the members, who in their individual capacity under the referendum have the final say. Some old-time members seem to be under the impression that somebody is going to take away their benefits; hence we deem it necessary and proper to say that no one can take away any of your rights or benefits except the membership by majority vote under the referendum system. All laws now in the constitution were ratified by popular vote; every member had an opportunity to cast his vote for or against.

A secretary, writing on the Criticism back of his report says: "What's wanted is 30c dues and moreover says $3.00 a day and 60c dues won't go." He also indulges in some other captious criticism against the union. If all members were of the same opinion we might find ourselves in the same position that the non-unionists are in in Pennsylvania and several other non-union centers.

True, it costs 60c per week to belong to the union, out of which thousands of dollars are spent for sick, strike, and death benefits. This amount is a mere trifle when compared with what it costs not to belong to the union. It costs the non-unionists about $4 to $12, for every one thousand cigars they make not to belong to the union. In one instance the cost goes to help the sick and needy, to maintain wages, hours and shop conditions. In the other instance it goes to enrich Cheap John, profiteering, slave driving, non-union manufacturers. Cheap dues make cheap unions. We all, except bosses and their submissive tools and spineless followers, believe that the trade should be organized. The sooner this is done the sooner the workers will put a stop to low wages, long hours and miserable working conditions. High dues never did keep any one out of the union. Those who use that alibi and excuse will have to look further for the real reasons. Any one who is able to see and reason with an unprejudiced mind won't have to look far for the real reasons. Knocking and misunderstanding and misstating conditions won't help any old kind of a union.

Driving force is generated, hu- Faith. manely speaking, from within. A people who want to be saved and are worth saving must depend upon their own efforts. All wage earners are worth saving, should be and must be saved if civilization is to endure and properly function. In our complex, interdependent system of production and distribution there are no natural or made laws that will advance and safeguard the rights, interest and well-being of the wage earners. The only safe, sure and tried plan is organization along industrial trade lines. Calling names, resolving, talking and hugging the false delusions of isms, dogmas and dreaming dreams of the millennium will not raise wages or shorten the hours of labor. The thing to do is to organize, agitate, educate and boost for the union. The slogan should be: The union right or wrong, I am for the union. The union is fundamentally right. It may make mistakes. It does. Who does not make them. The next thing to do is to have faith in ourselves, in our union and the justice of our cause and the courage of our convictions.

Women can be organized in the Women. cigar industry. There are no people on earth who have a finer sense of justice and fairness than women. Give them the chance and they will prove this statement. Women must be recognized and considered, at least in our trade. For centuries women have been held in subjection and taught to depend on mere man in the management of all affairs affecting the well-being of the human race. Equal rights of suffrage, together with women's rapid entrance into the offices, shops, business and many gainful occupations as wage earners have aroused a new sense of responsibility, determination, courage and willingness to assume her place in efforts to improve the working conditions of all wage earners. She will quickly see the advantage of the trade union movement and can be counted upon to do her share of the work.

Local unions are warned to Propaganda. be on their guard against certain propaganda now emanating from a certain eastern city and which seeks to commit local unions and delegates upon vital and important issues which will be up for settlement at the coming convention.

The same questionable methods were resorted to just prior to the Cleveland Convention, when countless attempts were made to commit local unions and to instruct delegates on questions only one side of which had been presented.

Local unions are strongly urged not to commit themselves until they know and hear both sides. The delegates will hear at the convention things that will enlighten them upon this propaganda.

In the May issue I took occasion to say concerning the coming convention:

"These convention matters are of such vital importance that they suggest the thought that the delegates selected should proceed to the convention with open minds. All unions, however, should thoroughly discuss and give expression to what they think should be done and what they would like to see done. The vital facts will be presented to the delegates, and all sides of every question and issue will be fully discussed. The knowledge of material facts acquired at the convention will be helpful in creating a mature judgment which, predicated upon the facts will, after all, render the delegates better qualified to discharge their obligations.

It should be borne in mind that whatever the delegate does or the convention does has to be referred to the popular vote and the members in their individual capacity have the final say.

The success of the labor movement in general or of any international or local union in particular is the result of

The Measure of service extended the ora True Unionist. ganization by the men and women in it. No union has been successful, nor is there any hope for success, unless the membership in general qualify to the measurements exacted of a true unionist.

The true unionist is a worker. He does not dismiss his obligation to his organization by paying his dues. He attends the meetings, accepts the responsibilities of office or committee work, and cheerfully does whatever is necessary for the advancement of the cause. He may not agree with the generally accepted policies, but his criticism carries a suggestion instead of a knock. He is a booster in the meeting, in the shop or on the street. He does not, without the substantial facts to bear him out, criticize the work others are doing. He remembers that his organization is only a unit of the great body of organized labor and that the cause of one becomes the cause of all, so he boosts the other fellow's game by purchasing the things the other fellow makes. He employs union labor to make the things he needs and he tells the world to buy his product by boosting his union label. He is a regular fellow, willing to play the game with tolerance, accepting with the same smile victory or defeat, for he knows that the defeats of today furnish him with the experience upon which he can force the victories of tomorrow.

The question What is
The Open Shop. an open shop? is often asked and more often discussed.

We find in common use the terms "open shop," "closed shop," "union shop," "organized shop" and "label shop." The terms "open shop" and "closed shop" are terms invented by the enemies of the trade union movement. An "open shop" is a place where both union men and non-union workers are supposed to work. Dooley's definition of such a shop is good. He says it has two doors, one in front through which the union man enters and a back door through which he is kicked out as soon as the foreman finds out that he is a union man. A "closed shop" is one in which our enemies say only union men can work. They try to make it appear that non-unionists are not permitted to work in these shops. The facts are that all union shops are open to any qualified workman, and all that is required is that he join the union and help, through his dues, to maintain these strictly union shops. Instead of being called closed shops they should be called strictly union shops. In our trade an organized shop is one in which all workers belong to the union, but under special rules the shop is not entitled to the use of the label. A label shop is a strictly union shop, but in some places where there are organized shops not entitled to the use of the label they are, in order to differentiate them, designated as label shops.

Statistics show that the average life in the United States has been extended ten per cent in the last twenty years. Average Life Lengthened. ness, the greatest single cause of poverty, has been reduced through preventive measures and proper care.

It is not beside the mark to state positively that the reason for the foregoing good news is organized labor. Labor unions have reduced the hours of labor, increased the pay of the workers to an extent where they can live in better homes as well as better provide for medical attention, forced the building of ventilated sanitary workshops and they have compelled the employer to safeguard life and limb with properly guarded machines.

Organized labor has also forced the state and the municipality to provide sanitariums and hospitals where the workers, unable to pay for private service, may receive such treatment as may be necessary free of any charge.

The general public accepts these improvements in public welfare as the natural progress of the times, but back of every one of these humane improvements stands the insistent demand of organized labor.

The foregoing should be argument enough in itself to convince the average nonunionist that he should become a part of the movement intended to further the common good and to safeguard the public welfare, but he accepts all these things, welcome as he is to them, without a single thought to the many other good things organized labor might accomplish were he to do his bit by becoming a part of a movement that has done so much for humanity in general.

Labor is finding that it must fight with facts. It must be able to array its facts in such a way that they will be Facts come suitable ammunition in Necessary. any contingency and particularly in wage disputes. Facts are indispensable to the proper knowledge that trades unionists must have in order that they may properly plan and execute the changes in their policies that modern industry and its constantly shifting base makes necessary. The more facts a union has that are pertinent to their particular industry the more strength they have as an organization and the better fortified they are when the time comes for conference with the employer.

We cannot rely on supposed facts offered us by those whose interests are directly opposed to us. We cannot depend on so-called facts that are compiled by those who are not well grounded in the labor movement or who are not well versed in labor's aims and aspirations. It therefore becomes necessary for labor unions to set up their own fact-finding machinery and to make labor research a part of their activities. Some organizations are doing this now and the day is near when all organizations that really aspire to forward their movement will have to make fact finding a part of their official business.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The fellow who waits and depends upon others to do the things that he should do is generally found holding the empty bag.

"Oh, what's the use" never got anybody anywhere or anything worth having.

Inactivity and lack of label agitation has been helpful to the trusts and big non-union factories and correspondingly harmful to members working in union shops.

A union to be fully successful must throw the doors wide open to all wage earners in the industry in which it functions.

In the transitory period to complete organization restrictive laws that prevent natural development should be eliminated.

Co-operation with fair-minded union employers in efforts to save the unnatural waste and eliminate restrictions will rapidly develop into better shop conditions, more jobs and finally better wages.

Discontent against unfair wages and conditions is one of mankind's greatest benefactors. Without unrest there would be no progress industrially, socially and politically. The great problem up for solution is how best to utilize in the proper direction these two elements that make for substantial progress. The trade union movement is the first step in the right direction.

Energy wasted in advocating non-essential isms and Utopian ideals amounts to just so much power and force taken from the development of the trade union movement. It results in no immediate good to any one except the "open shop" non-union manufacturers. We are all entitled to have our day dreams and special hobbies. But our first duty is to care for and advance our unions in a manner best calculated to care for our economic condition.

The more mankind gets the more we want. There is no better means now at hand by which wage earners can get more and add thereto than is the good old faithful trade union.

Tuberculosis in Porto Rico.

United States Public Health Service.

The laboring classes in Porto Rico suffer greatly from tuberculosis, says Dr. J. G. Townsend, of the U. S. Public Health Service, who recently returned to the United States after a five months' study of the tuberculosis situation in the island. The tuberculosis death rate is a little more than 200 per hundred thousand. This is greater than that of any state in the Union except Colorado, where the tuberculosis death rate is of course enormously increased by the constant immigration of tuberculous patients, for whom there is no longer any hope. In Porto Rico, moreover, the tuberculosis death rate of the well-to-do classes is very much lower than that of the laboring classes. In the industrial cities on the practically level coast belt it averages about 8 per cent of the total death rate; in the mountainous central portion it is less, averaging about 4 per cent, except in certain industrial towns, especially those dependent on the tobacco industry. The death rate for industrial women is higher than that for men. This condition is the exact opposite of that in the United States, and is supposed to be due to the fact that in Porto Rico industrial women are also wives, mothers and housekeepers.

These high rates are not due to the climate, which is both delightful and healthful, but to the conditions under which the poorer classes live. A survey of more than a thousand houses occupied by the laboring classes in seven of the larger cities on the island reveals that practically all of them consist of two rooms, and shelter an average of six persons. Each room has an average floor space of less than a hundred square feet, and the total air space is considerably less than ten thousand cubic feet. As the one window and the door are kept closed all night long to keep out the greatly dreaded "night air," this 10,000 cubic feet has to suffice for three persons for about eight hours. As Rosenau estimates that to keep healthy a man weighing about 160 pounds requires about 2,400 cubic feet of fresh air, renewed every hour, the state of air in these rooms after being occupied all night by three persons may be imagined. Such conditions are, of course, ideal for the transmission of tuberculosis.

The usual diet of the people for the most part is also ideal for the propagation of the disease. Black coffee, rice and beans in great quantities and sometimes bananas, oranges and plantains complete the list.

Both the housing and the diet are due chiefly to the prevailing economic conditions. A wage of thirty cents to one dollar per day (generally fifty cents) makes it impossible for the laborer to support his family, to furnish habitable homes, and to purchase adequate food. Employers say that the average laborer does not do enough work to entitle him to higher wages; and this may be admitted. But the laborer cannot do better work, because he suffers not only from tuberculosis, but also from hookworm and malnutrition. He cannot afford to do what his doctors advise, and in consequence he cannot give his employer better labor. This vicious circle can be broken, but it has not yet been.

A comparative check by name of all the reported cases and reported deaths from tuberculosis in Porto Rico during the last 2½ years showed that sixty per cent of the tuberculosis deaths were never reported as cases. In other words, more than one-half of the death reports supplied the first official intimation that the patient had been ill at all. The illness is probably concealed as long as possible, sometimes until death, and in many of the reported cases until the patient was in a moribund state.

Most Porto Rico cities employ physicians who hold clinics for patients at convenient places and who later visit patients who are unable to come in person. More of these clinics are recommended. Other recommendations are for the establishment of social work, the supplying of free sputum cups, better reporting of cases, increased hospital accommodations, education of children along health lines, and the working out of a wage scale that will give the laborer a chance to preserve his own life and the lives of his family.

The great mass of the workers of the island are employed in the sugar, tobacco, fruit raising and coffee industries.

Boring from Within.

In a communication to Socialists and Communists of Canada, Nicholas Bucharin, of the executive committee of the Communists Internationale, Moscow, states that he deems the attitude of the Workers' Party of Canada "as from time to time expressed to us, to be the correct one."

Bucharin instructs the Workers' Party to concentrate upon the trades union movement. "Especially we would urge in the future in the trades union that you continue with intensity the good work you have already started and apply yourselves to the extending of active party groups in every trade union branch and section, as being one of the most important tasks in preparing for coming victories," is his advice.—Commercial Telegraphers' Journal.

Delegates Take Notice.

The following resolution was adopted at the 1920 Cleveland convention:

Whereas, The union label represents one of the main ideals of the labor movement, and

Whereas, We believe we should at all times be consistent and demand the union label on any article we purchase; therefore, be it

Resolved, That no male delegate to the C. M. I. U. of A. Convention shall be seated unless he can show on his person to the credentials committee at least five union labels.

The following talk on Good Health was broadcasted by G. W. Perkins, president, from the powerful KYW station Chicago, Illinois:

Good health is one of the world's greatest assets and should be conserved in every possible way. Preventable waste in industry in particular and in trade and commerce generally, caused by preventable illness and accidents amounts to astonishing figures. The continuance of this waste without effort to prevent it amounts to criminal negligence.

Every dollar that is lost from this cause adds just so much to the cost of living, and consequently affects everybody. In demonstrating these facts I shall quote the figures recently submitted in a report of the Federated American Engineering Societies on the elimination of waste in industry, under the caption, "Lost Production from Ill Health."

"In discussing public health conditions there is no clear distinction between the standing of the 42,000,000 persons classed as gainfully employed in the United States and those specifically engaged in industry. The 42,000,000 men and women gainfully employed probably lose on an average more than eight days each annually from illness disabilities, including non-industrial accidents—a total of 350,000,000 days. Of the 500,000 workers who die each year it is probable that the death of at least one half is postponable by proper medical supervision, periodic medical examination, health education and community hygiene.

"It has been estimated that the economic loss from preventable disease and death is $1,800,000,000 dollars among those classed as gainfully employed, or over $700,000,000 among industrial workers in the more limited meaning of the term."

The same report says: "Tuberculosis is the most important disease among industrial workers, two or three deaths per thousand per annum occurring at the working ages. It is estimated that 3 per cent of the wage earners or about 1,250,000 lives are affected. The economic loss from tuberculosis death rate as affecting the working population is $500,000,000 annually."

By proper application of common sense methods this financial loss, as well as the more important items—the mental anguish and physical suffering, can be eliminated.

Enough money is lost through preventable illness and accidents to pay the entire running expense of the National Government, and then some.

If this frightful, unnecessary, and criminal waste were saved it would pay off our national public debt of $22,000,000,000 in about twelve years, and would greatly reduce the tremendous burden of taxation, which in the final analysis comes out of the pockets of all concerned.

An international conference of the world's greatest scientists and physicians, generally known as one for the Prevention and Eradication of Tuberculosis, held in Washington, D. C., took on the wider consideration, discussion and declaration upon all forms of human ills, and in more emphatic form reiterated the attitude of former congresses to the effect that the source of human physical and mental ailments and decease are:

1. Over-burdensome work.
2. Too long hours of daily labor.
3. Unsanitary workshops.
4. Unsanitary homes and surroundings.
5. Adulteration of foods.

6. Adulteration of drugs.

7. Lack of nutritious food.

8. Mal-nutrition.

I am not a physician. I am not going to discuss how to cure disease. As laymen we have a right to discuss preventatives. In addition to the general declaration which came out of the congress of the world's greatest scientists and physicians, it should be said that there are at our hands simple devices and means which if put into operation would prevent four-fifths of the industrial accidents. It is the duty of society at large to insist that the state or those whose moral duty it is shall enforce the laws and apply methods that will safeguard and protect human lives from preventable illness, premature death and industrial accidents. The public schools should teach the common elementary rules of health.

The rigid enforcement of all known and simple means will bring about one of the world's greatest assets, good health and longer years of productive life, cheapen the cost of production, lessen taxation, reduce the cost of living, and bring more sunshine and happiness into the lives and homes of the great mass of the working men and women of our glorious country. The possession of good health by the great mass of the producers of a country in agriculture, in industry, and in commercial life, makes such a country the strongest morally, mentally, and physically, offensively and defensively.

An internationally-known statesman of a certain foreign country once said, "Strong and up-to-date guns and other means of destructive warfare need strong and virile men back of them." This sentiment is true in so far as every walk of life is concerned, in times of peace as well as in war.

Every single year of our lives more people are killed or wounded by preventable disease and accidents, in so far as our country is concerned, than were killed or wounded during the world's great war. We lament and declare with mighty acclaim, which vibrates around the world, against destructive warfare, while we placidly permit a more and greater devastation of life and limb through indifference or negligence or both in our complex industrial and commercial system.

However, this is not a mercenary question nor should commercialism enter into it. It is a matter of fact and an effort to conserve human life, limb, and energy. That is the paramount, all-gripping incentive. That should be the propelling cause for enlistment in the great crusade against preventable illness and accidents.

You insure your home, your life, your furniture, your car, your horse. Why not enlist and become active in the great cause, thereby insuring you and yours against the frightful prevalence of preventable accidents and disease? Join the crusade and help to create a great white wave of prevention instead of the great white plague of destruction. He or she who helps to conserve good health is engaged in a work that will bring the glow of satisfaction to the heart and conscience.

In the struggle for achievement a race or country must remain strong and virile. The leadership of the world will be finally vested in the hands of the people who are strongest physically, mentally, and morally. Leadership in economics, civilization, and social advancement will finally fall to the lot of those who have protected and safeguarded the health and physical well-being of their people.

Efficiency in industry is of paramount importance. Good health makes for efficiency. The development of good health and constant adherence to this principle will enable us to make wonderful progress in a higher, better, safer, and more permanent civilization. Society, the state, and our people can not afford to ignore the fundamental principles which make for success.

CORRESPONDENCE

Chicago, June 10, 1923.

In propaganda circulated with the hope of clouding the issues that may come before the Convention and with the malicious intent of prejudicing the minds of those who may be elected delegates against our International officers, a self-styled "Educational Committee of the Cigar and Tobacco Industry" proceeds to file many charges, replete with untruths, and to lay out a program crowded with "Immediate Proposals."

First they build up a mountain of real and imaginary shortcomings and then calmly proceed to "rightfully blame our International officials for the present sad state of the industry."

The facts are—and cigar-makers who permit reason instead of passion to sway their judgment in the matter know—that our policies are not controlled by our officials. We have the referendum, and whatever our policies are they are fixed by this method. Officials have nothing more to do with it than any other individual member. They have the right to express their opinions, as have we all, and they have the same right to vote on the proposition when it is up for adoption.

They devote considerable space to lauding the long defunct Propaganda League, and then give as the especial reason for its demise, "because of the secessionists within the league itself." It seems, therefore, that the self-appointed regulators could not even agree among themselves as to what they should regulate or how it should be regulated.

If these super-regulators would devote one-half as much attention to rectifying the things that really stand in the way of progress as they do to "blaming" some official who is usually more progressive in thought and in action than they are themselves we could show the unorganized a united front and offer them more than the propagandists have as yet even dreamed of.

It requires time, skill, patience, perseverance coupled with co-operative effort to produce a finished article but a child or a half-wit bent on destruction can knock it to pieces with a hammer in a few minutes.

R. E. Van Horn.

Leavenworth, Kans.

The membership by popular vote, having decided to hold a convention, I would like to offer a few suggestions. I believe as has been said, the coming convention will be historical and no doubt the most momentous in the history of the International Union, and I am satisfied beyond all reasonable doubt that we are on the eve of a crisis, in the affairs and destiny of the International Union, and to my thinking, it behooves the membership to be up and doing. We must make a careful survey of the class of representatives we send to the convention, and it goes without saying that the most capable loyal men should be selected as delegates. We need the best material we have, men from our ranks who we know from experience are qualified in every respect and have the determination to carry forward in a manner the work of the organization, and of greater protection of the rights, the interests and the welfare of the workers.

I am satisfied the worker today has found his place through organization. He has found the way to express himself to the whole entity, of thought, and to secure consideration for his contribution. As I write my thoughts run back, I recall the early days of our organization, the awful struggle and handicaps. But we worked, we had faith and confidence in the justice of our cause. With a realization of proper economics which leads to success I have seen the infant organization grow into a giant; so we have stood the acid test in the past, we will stand it in the future. We face the future with high hopes, relying as we do on the known power of organization. The trades union movement is just what its membership minds to make it, so proper headway in the interest of all will depend upon the extent of co-operative aid from all concerned.

The coming convention should go on record as being more successful than any previous convention in harmonizing and adjusting the differences that now exist in our ranks. Harmony, good will and good hard sense will bring them to an understanding and they will then realize that the success of our union can only come through a common ground stand, co-operate, cut out the petty jealousies and work together for the upbuilding of our organization which has accomplished so much. When the delegates meet in convention and give the best they have in them, which they will do, if God's in the heart, they can then retire satisfied that they have fought a good fight, followed the course and kept the faith. And then like the Arab of old in the small wee hours of the morn fold up their tent and silently steal away.

Fraternally,
OLIVER ODELL.

Vancouver, B. C., June 7, 1923.

The Union Label League of the Vancouver Trades and Labor Council have been holding a series of whist drives and dances all winter and have been meeting with wonderful success both financially and morally. The object has been to advertise union label goods and create a more brotherly feeling among the workers of this city. They held their last one in April. Our delegates to the Label League asked them if it would be possible to hold a whist drive and dance for the benefit of our local, explaining that we had a deficiency to pay off and didn't have the wherewithal to pay as most of our members had been out of employment for 2 years. The Label League seemed very enthusiastic about it, so we set May 4th as the date and preceeded to advertise and sell tickets. We canvassed all the leading merchants of our city and were successful in obtaining nearly 40 prizes to be given away at the dance. Each ticket sold had a number and a duplicate put in a hat and the prizes awarded to the lucky numbers. Six of these prizes were put up for the whist drive and the rest given away in the above manner. Among the prizes donated were 10 boxes of cigars, donated by the different factories here; brooches donated by one of the leading jewelers of Canada; boxes of chocolates, cuff links, silk stockings, a silk umbrella, one tobacconist gave pipes valued to $10.00.

At 8:15 the card tables were filled and we had to turn lots away. The dance was a wonderful success, netting us $145.70 clear of expenses. We rented the finest dance hall in the city and spared no expense to make it a success, something the public would talk about for some time to come. Every patron was given a small card with a list of the local union-made cigars and a small cigar attached with a ribbon.

Baltimore, Md., June 4, 1923.

Union No. 1, of Baltimore, is persevering in its efforts to hold the local union together with strengthened bonds of security; to keep the organization functioning with unity of purpose for the workers; and, cement the economic welfare with a stronger cord of lasting protection for its members; by diligently pursuing efforts to increase the consumption of "label goods" and gather new members into the fold of the International Union.

Industrial environments in this vicinity have been one of the chief features in retarding the growth of the union. Conditions none too wholesome in the general labor market in this section have prevailed for years; and especially in the non-union branches of the cigar industry, with cheap labor at the command of greedy employers, ever seeking more and more profit at the expense of defenseless workers, and surrounded as it is with a vast space of country known as the "cheap district" in the cigar line; with the Trust, and many large non-union concerns, filling the roll of "Plunder Buns" and setting the standard for low wages to the deluded; but ever to be pitied unorganized group of employees.

The agitation committee here has resumed its activity, which for some time in the recent past it had suspended, or at least allowed to wane, but now they are up, and doing; and conditions look more prosperous for increased business in the near future. With the assistance of the committee, a vigilant agitation campaign has been carried on in behalf of union goods and the label, and with all solicitation to organized workers, to co-operate, and assist in the organization of non-unionists in our craft. Some twenty-five unions were visited with urgent appeal, "To demand the union label on cigars, and insist on having it on all goods when purchasing merchandise."

R. S. SEXTON,
General Organizer.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 7, 1923.

Since my last report business in the cigar industry has taken quite a slump. Employment in the automatic machine factories is a scarce article for the past few weeks. The Consolidated Cigar Co. who have three automatic machine factories here, have been working on part time, also laid off several foreman. As a member of the Organization Committee of the Central Labor Union, have aided in many ways in making the organization campaign of this body a success. We hope in the near future to boast of having one of the strongest Central Labor Unions in the country. Have spent considerable time in obtaining the exact number of cigar makers employed in the cigar industry in Philadelphia and its jurisdictions, let me say at this time I have a complete list of all of the factories and the number employed, also the system of production.

The organization work in this district is moving along as well as can be expected under the circumstances, due to the slump in the industry considerable number are unemployed. The meetings of Local Union No. 165 are well attended and the spirit to do things predominates. The spirit of organization is slowly creeping into the minds of the unorganized girls in our industry. The conditions under which they are compelled to work in a good many cases are unbearable and these conditions are doing much to awaken them.

Poor conditions and the organization work carried on by the International Union through the channels of education are bound to bring results. ORGANIZE THE INDUSTRY. IT CAN BE DONE. Let this be our slogan.

HARRY GIFFORD,
Organizer.

Union Men and Women and Friends of Organized Labor.

Your painting and paperhanging done by Union men assures good workmanship. Be positive that the painter and paperhanger who enters your home is a Union man. Demand to see his card or membership book; do not take his word for it and do not listen to the story that he is a contractor and needs no card. If he is a recognized Union Contractor he has an agreement with the organization and can show it.

You would not let a scab of your own trade enter your home. Then why a scab painter or paperhangers? They smell just as bad.

Your earnest co-operation is solicited.

REPORT OF INTERNATIONAL FINANCIER

Orlando, Fla., June 5, 1923.

Since last report have examined the accounts of the following unions—viz:

Union 336, Tampa, Fla.

This union's accounts are certainly well handled—day book and ledger accounts as fine as I ever saw—shows every member's standing complete. Even during the big strike, every strike benefit card was ledger indexed and numbered in the rotation in which the names were entered in the expense. I never before have seen accounts covering so much strike expense as here in Tampa this time. The cigar trade never had anything like it before. Everybody in the trade in Tampa should appreciate a man capable of doing the union's work as it has been done in No. 336. The secretary acts like a union man at all times, in or out of meetings he stands for the right in union affairs. Given the assistance of the workers of Tampa that he deserves, and our union will be better able to assist everybody in the shop and the cigar trade generally in Tampa, and the influence that will be given other localities will do all the cigar workers much good. There is not a place in these United States that needs the full co-operation of all the workers of Tampa more than does Tampa at this particular time.

The books and accounts of this local during strike days were just as might be expected, when the members showed so little discipline, especially on pay day. At this time the secretary has the books and accounts in very nice condition, but imagine having to give a union credit for an expense of $997.33 to balance strike expense account. Union 474, Tampa, Fla.

The books and accounts here are simply fine. Again I found the strike cards, ledger indexed and numbered in the rotation in which the names were entered in the expense. Cash and stamp accounts correct. Here is another secretary that has the courage of his convictions, is a member of the union, and for the union at all times, willing to stand up and be counted; will not be bluffed or bulldozed by anybody in or out of the union. We need more of just such men. Give them the help they are entitled to, and the union will be able to do the things it is organized for. But the union like everything that we humans manage, can go no further than the desires and ability of the membership to live up to union discipline and the will to not let a few men unreasonably control union activity and work contrary to the best interests of our membership. Tampa is now, and has been in the past, overrun with illogical leadership. Prejudice, passion has no place in an organized effort. If the men and women in the cigar trade in Tampa would organize, stay organized for one year, face the conditions as they now exist, it would not be necessary to strike to better working conditions. Show the employers that you are organized into a solid compact body of workers, they will appreciate what that means and will meet you, and re-arrange unreasonable working conditions; but stay as you are, growling about everything but the real reason, for the condition in which you are today, is absolutely your own fault. Many of you joined the union only for the money you could get away from your fellow workers, "and then quit" like many other poor misguided workers have done. You will have to organize and stay organized if you ever expect to change the opinion your employers have of you. You can, you should, you must, if you ever expect to enjoy reasonable working conditions again in Tampa.

Sect'y Muniz had to use money for the Int'l Union is why he had so much in his possession May 1st. Before I had examined the accounts he had sent it away.

Union 480, Orlando, Fla.

The accounts of this local in many respects are in good condition. Explained to the secretary how to balance every member's dues account with each credit; why vouchers were necessary. The funds of this union are always in bank at the end of each month.

Statement as follows:

Financier's balance May 1, 1919	$ 243.54

Union 500, Tampa, Fla.

So far as the books and accounts of this local are concerned they are in capable hands. The strike cards, and endorsed vouchers for expense are nicely filed. Cash and stamp accounts correct. The deficiency here is where the union voted to use more money than the constitution provides for at the burial of ten members and one other funeral expense, and one week of overdrawn sick benefit; total, $56.00.

April, 1923.

The charter of this union has been taken up and all union property in possession of Ex-Sec. S. S. Olson has been returned to the International Office. The cards of members remaining here will be transferred to Union 111, Des Moines. The ex-secretary, Mr. S. S. Olson, was very lax in conducting the business of the union and not having paid any dues for months he of course stands suspended.

Plans for an educational campaign to instruct union members on the true relationship of communistic ideas with the labor union movement and to equip each member with arguments in favor of encouraging unionism through use of the union label have been formulated by the Allied Printing Trades Council, according to an announcement made at headquarters of the International Typographical Union here.

"Leaders of the printing unions believe that more general recognition of the justice and soundness of the trade union principle will go far toward preventing spread of dangerous and troublesome ideas of governmental reform," said J. W. Hays, secretary-treasurer of the typographical union. "Sympathies of sensible men can be drawn to revolutionary movements only when no other avenue for escaping economic hardships can be discovered.

"It is hoped that by arming each craftsman in the printing trades with a thorough understanding of union aims and policies many thousands of men and women, outside the ranks of unionism, may be reached. Each union man may be able to clear up misconceptions in the minds of friends and acquaintances."

To possess a card and pay our dues
Brings us not to our duty's end.
If to demand the union label we refuse
When we go shopping and money spend
We truly give the scab employment,
When we purchase goods he has made;
We deny ourselves true enjoyment
Of good conditions, and render to him aid.

It is but natural to the unfair man
To purchase goods that are made unfair,
But a union card should place a ban
On goods that do not a union label wear.
We are organized to secure protection
For all who own a union card;
To buy unfair goods with no objection
Makes union labor's struggle hard.

Get the habit, union men of every craft,
Purchase only goods of union make;
Cut out this doing things by half.
If you would give a union brother aid,
The more we buy that are union made,
The more we strengthen unionism's cause,
And make advances which have been delayed
By neglecting to practice union laws.

Harry Gifford.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members, who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also as per Section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study Section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member, if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

Notice of the special assessment of $1 on all 30c and 60c members and 50c on Class B members, in compliance with Section 92 (a) of the Constitution, is herewith given. This assessment takes effect March 26, 1923, and may be paid in two weekly installments. New initiates who have not been members for four months are exempt from all assessments. All who join after March 26 are exempt from payment of the March assessment. Class B members do not have to pay any International assessments until they have been members for six months. Forty-cent beneficiary members do not have to pay the special strike fund assessment. Members out of work are not exempt from this assessment.

DECISIONS OF THE PRESIDENT

J. E. Falkenhan appealed against 129 Denver, Colorado, for refusing to accept his card. The union replied that the ban on cards had been removed. The appeal was dismissed.

John O'Rourke and Harvey Bagget appealed against 248 Jacksonville for fining them $100.00 each in connection with the J. P. Smith shop. In view of the general mixup and all-round misunderstanding and in the interests of restoring harmony and facilitating organization the appeal is sustained and the fines rescinded.

Jos. Vincklerengel appealed against 192 Manchester for compelling him to pay an assessment. The right of appeal has expired by limitation hence no action taken on the appeal, which is dismissed.

Alfred Curry appealed against 490 Orlando for fining him $25 for allowing himself to be suspended. The constitution distinctly provides that no union may increase the amount of the reinstatement fee and for that reason the appeal is sustained.

IN MEMORIAM

In reporting deaths kindly comply with the following and you will save time and unnecessary work: Give full name, number, date and place of initiation of member. Has member had retiring card? If so, did he pay his dues? This information relates only to such as you can obtain from the records of your own union. If admitted by card, state when and where from, and, in addition, send in such cards, but place in your letter the information necessary, as the letter is filed as a matter of record. Before paying death benefits study Sections 139 to 145, inclusive. Send in a death blank properly filled out for all death benefits paid.

Union 129, Denver, Colo.—Oscar R. Johnson (5925), who died May 18; Antonio Lopez (102979), who died June 6.

Union 42, Hartford, Conn.—Sol Sontheimer, formerly a representative of the A. F. of L. and Organizer for the C. M. I. U. and active in the local and state movements.

Union 44, St. Louis, Mo.—Charles Kassel, who was a member for 44 years, an ardent worker in the trades union movement and for some time an organizer for the A. F. of L.

Give your fellow trade unionist a square deal—boost his union label, card or button.

INTERNATIONAL FINES

The International Executive Board approved the application of Union 5, Rochester, to fine Joseph Goldstein (111339) and Thos. D. Franklin (57725) each $200.00 for working in the strike shop of Jacobstein Bros. Vote—Affirmative, 5; one member approved only $25.00.

Approved the application of 488, Middletown, to suspend Edward Connors (23172) and fine him $100.00 for taking a striking shop man's job with the Central New England R. R. Vote—Affirmative, 5; one member approved only $25.00.

Approved the application of 25, Milwaukee, to place a fine of $50.00 each on Herman Hunsicker (8841) and annul his card for working in a strike shop and refusing repeated requests that he quit; Frank Miccas (43610) and annul his card for taking a position of foreman in an unfair shop and trying to persuade other members to work for him; Morris Prest (8822) and annul his card for quitting a union factory and opening a cigar factory and employing non-union cigar makers and paying less than the union Bill of Prices; John Zeisger (31171) for working in a union factory during the day and then working in a non-union factory in the evening; Francis Rosploch (8541) for working in a strike factory. Vote—Affirmative, 5; one member approved only $25.00.

Approved the application of 425, Astoria, to fine Einer Johansen and Frederick Johansen $100 each for employing a non-union cigar maker and otherwise working against the interests of the union. Vote—Affirmative, 5; one member approved only $25.00.

Approved the application of 365, Havana, to fine George Carman $50.00 for running a non-union shop. Vote—Affirmative, 8.

Charles and Minnie Gerrein would like to know the whereabouts of Benjamin Lagos. There is very important news which is to his interest. Address Charles Gerrein, 548 Theodore St., Detroit, Mich.

E. J. O'Neill would like to hear from W. E. Knight, also Pete Leonard. The Hammond Union or anyone knowing their address please send it in care of Union 14, Chicago. Important.

Joe Malliff would like to hear from John Koenig. Address in care of Union 97, Boston, Mass.

UNION NOTES

Any secretary knowing the whereabouts of Charles Kratz, kindly notify R. P. Hayes, secretary 192, Manchester, N. H.

Notice to Traveling Members: The two largest shops in Denver, Colo., have laid off for an indefinite time which means that 85 per cent of our membership is out of work. While we have hopes for an early resumption of work, we can not tell at this time when these shops will start up. No possible chance to catch on here for some time even if shops do open up.

The office of 2, Buffalo, N. Y., will be closed the afternoons of Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, as the secretary is doing agitation work. It will be open all day Mondays and Saturdays.

Organize the industry. It can be done.

It shall be optional with local unions to grant the union label to any manufacturer or firm whose name or firm name appears in or about the box containing Chinese, tenement-house or non-union cigars, or whose name or firm name appears on or about such non-union cigars." And insert the following:

"No manufacturer shall be granted the blue label that deals in Chinese, tenement-house or non-union cigars."

Balance of this section to remain unchanged.

Received no endorsements.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted herein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues for 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $8.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter, in the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a securing employment in a factory using the label or which pays the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 180. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessment levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue in color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

The first paragraph of Section 2 of the Constitution shall read:

The next convention of the Cigarmakers' International Union shall be held on the second Monday in August, 1923.

PRIVATE LOANS

Cornelius Snyers, 9408. When you lost your job in Cleveland through your own fault and wanted to leave town, Local 17, Cleveland, granted you a private loan. Some members in No. 17 need money more now than you did then. We hear of you often and what you are doing. Don't forget the constitutional law on this. Get busy, and now is the time.

By order of Executive Board.

The union label makes the strike unnecessary by making compliance with union conditions an advantage in business.

To the Wage Earners in the Cigar Industry:

A COMPARISON

It costs the non-unionist about $4.00 to $12.00 per 1,000 cigars not to belong to the Cigar Makers' International Union.

It costs the union member from 30c to 60c per week to belong to the union.

The usual crop of fault-finding in-Dual sinuations preceding a convention Union or an election of the International Union is now floating into the hands of secretaries of local unions and into the hands of some of the members.

Just before the Cleveland Convention, 1920, and during its session one Billow, who was a delegate to the convention, and his followers were loud in their insinuations and in Billow's favorite pastime of denouncing the International Union and especially the International President. Shortly after the Cleveland convention Billow was charged by the union of which he was a member of being a spy and on the payroll of a private detective agency, found guilty, and fined $200 and expelled by the union.

Mr. Black of Toronto and Mr. Levitsky of Philadelphia, both loud in their denunciations and lying insinuations, stopped paying dues and became suspended soon after the Cleveland convention. Levitsky was and is particularly active in the dual union known as the Amalgamated Tobacco Workers.

Some of the members of this alleged union are especially vitriolic in their mudslinging and in a few instances are encouraged and cheered on by some of our own members. A few quotations from the Amalgamated's official organ, The Cigar Workers, will illustrate. In one of its recent issues it says, "This paper has a mission to encourage and spur the cigar and tobacco workers on to more serious thinking, to accomplish unity by spurring on the progressive forces in the old union to agitate and combine themselves solidly for the overthrow of the black machine (administration) who like a vampire dug its fangs into its membership and sucked and is still sucking the membership, sapping them of their blood, energy, and ambition."

Again they say, "Organize,—that is our mission. Move all black obstacles to progress vigorously away."

In another part, speaking of the haphazard, ill-timed, ill-advised, planless strike which occurred in 1919 and 1920 they say "All moneys contributed by the members (Amalgamated) were used for the benefit of the members and others in the industry fighting to better their conditions."

They moreover say "Those in our (Amalgamated) union will not join the International Union in its present form. If our union breaks up or is dissolved the present membership, which constitutes a militant body and are a great moral force for good, will at first aimlessly drift about with disastrous results to the cigar workers everywhere, and when brought down to a demoralized state in the factories will organize another union which will face greater difficulties until it will attain the position we have already reached."

I quote from a letter from one of our representatives in New York who says, in speaking of the Amalgamated Union's recent strike there,—“They made collections among the Amalgamated members in the city and collected in the past two weeks about $140 per week, but would not give it to the people on strike but placed it in the Amalgamated funds. This amount which they collected if distributed among the workers would mean about fifteen cents per week after meeting room, pickets, and other expenses were paid.” Many other things which are quoted in the letter are so shameful that we shall not give them space in our journal.

Out of their own mouths these dualists or worse convict themselves. They say in one part of their scurrilous official organ that they are for organization and harmony in the movement. They then proceed to throw brick bats at any one who opposes them, and then a little later on they say, “If our present dual union is dissolved they will drift aimlessly about and then finally form another dual union.” They profess to be for harmony on the economic field, yet deliberately say that they won't permit it if they can help it. Their real purpose outside of their feeble efforts to disrupt the legitimate organization in our industry, in their own words, is “It is the mission of the working class to forever abolish the wage system and its class struggle by capturing the powers of government to bring about industrial freedom. Try as the capitalist may they can not avoid their overthrow. Their end is near and our cause is thus ennobled by this martyrdom." Here we have it in a nutshell,—to establish the communist republic and its soviet form of government, is the principal purpose of the dual union. In the meantime the poor cigar workers can drift aimlessly about in their unorganized state to further demoralization and degradation.

Education along economic lines and subjects leads to right-thinking and constructive action. The paramount issue of our time is more light and more information, and a clearer concept of economic conditions.

There is a tremendous waste in industry. The very nature of the system of production and distribution developed by and still being developed by the big captains of industry naturally breeds a condition of affairs that cheats the worker, the fair-minded manufacturer, and the consumer of billions of dollars annually.

The right remedy must be applied to correct these evils. The trade union movement has found a means and given its membership the opportunity to apply the remedy. It is of paramount importance to society at large that the trade union lines be extended so as to embrace all wage earners, including all who give service whether by hand or by brain. The trade union movement, moreover, is the logical means whereby correct information can be given and a truer and clearer concept of conditions as they exist can be imparted to the membership. The sooner this is done the sooner much of the inequality and glaring mismanagement now existing in our economic system will be overcome. At present there is no other means whereby this great problem can be more advantageously developed and worked to its logical end than through the trade union movement.

It is a criminal waste of time and energy to adopt high-sounding resolutions extolling the virtues of the Millennium, which can never be reached, and neglecting and in some instances despising the trade union movement, the ready means at our hands and command whereby the right remedy can step by step and day by day be adopted which leads to improved conditions that are beneficial and to the advantage of wage earners as we journey into an ideal state befitting the conditions and lives of those who give service.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The fruits of industry should go to those who give service whether it be by brain or brawn or both.

Opposition to and sometimes hatred of each other in our unions are mostly due to misunderstanding.

Class distinction has since the beginning of recorded time developed in all walks of life. There is no class distinction in reality among those who give service. The privileged few have obtained power and control by keeping the workers divided and fighting among themselves. Those who profit most by class division in the ranks of the wage earning workers are profit mongers.

It was never intended that the abundance of nature and natural resources which were imbedded in and on the surface of the earth should be used only as the means of profit for the few, Mr. Baer, the coal mine baron, to the contrary notwithstanding.

"Love thy neighbor as thyself." The foregoing statement is one which we think no one can take exception to. If the spirit of this quotation were more generally observed among wage earners the trade union movement would more rapidly become the most powerful agency on earth for the protection and advancement of the best interests of the wage earners and society in general.

Any man or corporation that compels a worker to work twelve hours a day in the midst of seething tanks of molten iron and steel at low wages and then tries to kid him into the belief that it is good for his health has neither love nor consideration for his neighbors.

A mighty responsibility rests upon the delegates to the coming convention.

All that any real trade unionist asks is that the workers rally round the trade union standard leaving the members thereof free to vote, pray, and do otherwise as they please.

Wages, working conditions, and hours of labor can not be separated from our daily lives, hence are the real, paramount issue confronting all service givers.

Organize the industry. It can be done.

CONVENTION NOTES.

The convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union will go into session August 13, 1923, at the North Side Turner Hall, 820 N. Clark St., Chicago, Ill. The hall selected is an ideal place for the holding of the convention. It is well calculated to conserve the health, comfort, and convenience of the delegates. It is within ten minutes' ride of the Loop which is the heart of the Chicago business district. It is convenient to hotels of all prices, and is adjacent to a rooming house district in which an abundance of good rooms can be secured at fair prices. A circular issued to the delegates in care of the secretaries of the unions will give a more detailed account of hotels and rooming houses and the prices. The headquarters will be at the Hotel Morrison, Clark and Madison streets.

Section 10 of the Constitution provides that the International President shall appoint a committee of five on Constitution, which committee is to meet one week prior to the convention. The names of the members of the committee are R. E. Van Horn, Henry F. Hilfers, E. J. Stack, E. B. Hanson, and Manuel Gonzalez. It moreover provides that any local union may send proposed amendments to the chairman of this committee. Any union desiring to offer an amendment for consideration by the Committee on Constitution should send it in a sealed envelope addressed to R. E. Van Horn, chairman of the Committee on Constitution, 40 North Wells street, Chicago, or G. W. Perkins, 620-503 South Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill. Any amendments received will be promptly handed to the chairman of the committee as soon as it convenes.

A rate of fare and a half has been secured from the various railway passenger associations for delegates and dependents or friends who may attend the convention. We must have, however, the required number of delegates dependents or friends, which is 250. All delegates are therefore instructed to secure from the agent when purchasing a ticket a certificate which must be preserved and presented to the convention where it will be vised and the delegate entitled to one-half fare on the return trip. Delegates who are accompanied by their wives or dependents should be careful to secure a certificate for each one who accompanies him. The full fare is paid for going to the convention and vised certificate entitles the holder to one-half fare returning home.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Louisville, Ky., June 14, 1923.

Cigar Makers' Union No. 32, Louisville, Ky., most urgently requests that the points involved in the Philippine cigar question, be published in the July Journal, considering it of the utmost importance that the entire membership may have the information on the subject and facts in the case, immediately, needing the co-operation of all for the movement to remedy same, and further that the Delegates to the coming Convention, may be fully prepared on the most vital question and issue confronting the American cigarmaker, the leading cause of much unemployment, which great evil must be cut at the roots at once.

Enclosed find copy of letter received by a Cigar Company, of this city, from Treasury Department, Washington, D. C. In reply to questions pertaining to the Philippine cigar question, an extract of letter. The internal revenue laws governing the manufacture of cigars in the United States do not extend to the Philippine Islands, manufacturers of cigars in those islands are not subject to the regulation allowances in production prescribed for manufacturers in the United States.

The number of cigars which may be brought into this country duty free from the Philippine Islands is not limited, but such cigars are admitted duty free only if they do not contain more than 20 per cent of foreign tobacco, and all such products must be taxpaid properly, etc., before release from customs custody. Our opinion in regards to same, on the subject of regulation allowances in production believe this is one reason why the many Philippine cigars flooding this country are about twice the size of a normal cigar, a point to open up the question and propaganda for the movement to remedy the entire affair, and under present conditions, we consider it practical that our doors are wide open for Philippine cigars, "Free Trade," at a time when many commodities have protective tariff, and consider it a gross injustice to the American cigarmaker, cigar manufacturer, tobacco growers and dealers, and we need the co-operation of all, in order to receive a square deal, which can and must be done, by propaganda, and the movement that a law be enacted placing a high protective tariff on all Philippine cigars, and other foreign cigars of like nature.

From information received, there was a time when Philippine cigars imported to this country, duty free, were limited, and according to this it seems lawful to again limit same, and have a limit that not more than 100 of such cigars be allowed to be imported duty free in a year.

Information from newspaper notice, according to figures obtained from the Bureau of Customs, exports of cigars from the Philippine Islands to the United States, 173,-317,045 cigars in the year 1922. In averaging one cigarmaker at making 67,500 cigars a year, from these figures, at least 2,566 cigarmakers in the United States were forced to lay off or quit the trade for the entire year of 1922. We consider such a condition absolutely unfair and unjust to the American cigarmaker, and further figure the many tobacco growers and those in allied industries in connection with the cigar trade. The many Philippine cigars being imported, duty free to this country, being about twice the size of a normal cigar and selling for 5c or less is the leading cause of great unemployment to the American cigarmaker, as our cigar manufacturers cannot compete with such low price cigars and pay a reasonable wage to the cigarmaker, in order to maintain the American standard of living.

We should have the co-operation of all true Americans and all Union men in the movement for the enactment of a law that is a leading necessity and a square deal to the American cigarmaker, and in our opinion neither is there an excuse from anyone not to favor the change in law that is needed, that is right and will be might, and the many affected by the present conditions being ready and feeling the need that something should be done, have waited a long time for the other fellow to start the movement that will right the wrong that has been done, and, further, we need the full support of the American Federation of Labor and their co-operation in the movement, and when such a bill is being voted upon, to list the representatives who vote for or against same, and inform American Labor through the Non-Partisan Political Campaign, during primaries and elections, in order that we may know our friends and enemies, and further seek the co-operation of all affected under present conditions, cigar manufacturers, tobacco growers and dealers, and subject be taken up if possible with the tobacco journals, and the time to start is now, immediately, and consider the points involved in the Philippine cigar question, being published in the July Journal, of more vital importance than any other subject, and the need is now and for all the membership to start the movement to protect the American cigarmaker, and those in allied industries in connection with the cigar trade in the United States.

Yours fraternally,

WM. RENTSCHLER,
Fin. Sec. No. 32, Louisville, Ky.

Copy of Letter Received by Cigarmakers
Co-operative Co. from Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

June 7, 1923.

Cigarmakers Co-operative Co., Inc.,
600 Fehr avenue,
Louisville, Kentucky.

Attention Mr. John Curtis, Treasurer and Manager.

Sirs: Reference is made to your letter of May 24, in regard to the regulation allowance for materials used in the production of cigars which you understand is 15 pounds of unstemmed and 25 pounds of stemmed leaf per 1,000 cigars, you inquire whether a manufacturer who produces large cigars only is subject to pay tax on excess tobacco used in production, and also whether there is any allowance if the manufacturer sweats his tobacco. You inquire whether manufacturers in Philippine Islands are subject to the same allowance as domestic manufacturers, and whether there is any limit on the number of cigars they may ship into the United States, duty free. You request a copy of Revenue Act applying to those Islands known as the Philippine Act.

In reply you are advised that under the terms of Regulation No. 8, revised February, 1922, Section 149 (b), cigar manufacturers in the United States are allowed 25 pounds of unstemmed leaf tobacco and 20 pounds of stemmed leaf tobacco, scraps, cuttings and clippings for every 1,000 cigars produced.

Manufacturers purchasing damp re-sweated tobacco are allowed 30 pounds of unstemmed or 22 pounds of stemmed. Manufacturers who produce only large sized cigars should keep a supplemental account, in duplicate, showing daily the number of cigars of each different weight manufactured, the total of which must agree with the revenue entry, and the weight in the aggregate of each group. The original of this statement must be attached to the manufacturers' monthly return Form 72, at the close of the month, after the several totals have been ascertained and entered in the manufacturers' account.

Where deficiencies are apparent in a manufacturer's accounts and evidence is submitted to show that such deficiencies are the result of manufacturing larged-sized cigars or of using tobacco which has been re-sweated after its receipt at the factory, careful consideration is given such evidence, and if it is found satisfactory an allowance is given the manufacturer.

Since the internal revenue laws governing the manufacture of cigars in the United States do not extend to the Philippine Islands, manufacturers of cigars in those islands are not subject to the regulation allowances in production prescribed for manufacturers in the United States. The number of cigars which may be brought into this country duty free from the Philippine Islands is not limited, but such cigars are admitted duty free only if they do not contain more than 20 per cent of foreign tobacco. All such products must be tax paid properly as prescribed by Regulations No. 8, Sections 159 to 162, inclusive, before release from customs custody.

The latest provision concerning taxes on cigars brought into this country from the Philippine Islands is contained in Section 301 of Title II, of the Tariff Act of 1922, copy of which may be procured from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, this city. A copy of the Philippine Organic Act of July 1, 1902, may also be obtained from the same source.

Respectfully,

F. G. MATSON,
Deputy Commissioner.

An Open Letter to Cigar Workers.

We wish to ask the cigar workers, When are they going to wake up as to the future of the industry?

When will the men and women, who have to toil and struggle for a living, realize the responsibilities to themselves and, once for all, take a step in the right direction?

Every opportunity offered the cigar workers by the Cigar Makers' International Union and the rest of the organized labor movement of this country has been cast aside by false leadership and destructive propaganda, which led the cigar workers nowhere, conditions becoming more deplorable, making of themselves willing and submissive prey for the trust, they to own the cigar workers body and soul without any power of resistance.

We ask particularly of the few who believe that, while they are earning a fair living and think that they are secure for all the time.

Do you not know that unless you get in the real organized labor movement, and uplift those that are in the rut, your condition will become weaker from time to time?

Do you not know that, in order to create a proper standard for an industry, such standards cannot be created by small groups? It can only be achieved and retained by a bona fide organization, fortified by practical and sound laws, with the added strength and support of organized labor in general.

Do you not know that the industry is not confined to a few shops? It is a large and broad question of Capital and Labor. It must be taken in a serious way, by men who have minds big and broad enough to realize its responsibilities.

The Joint Advisory Board of the C. M. I. Union of New York is carrying on a most wonderful agitation in the interest of the cigar workers, supported by the organized labor movement of this city.

The Central Trade and Labor Council of Greater New York and vicinity, the Central Union Label Council, and the United Hebrew Trades are taking an active interest and have thrown their entire strength in the struggle to help the cigar workers. They have resolved that they will leave nothing undone for the interest of the cigar workers.

Would it not be to your advantage, cigar workers, if you realized and recognized the powerful hand of organized labor, and by a little effort of your own grasped this friendly advice—once for all tear away the hand clutched at your throat that is gradually choking the life out of you?

Does it seem possible, in view of the helpful hand extended to the cigar worker by the Cigar Makers' International Union, with the assured help of the entire organized labor movement, that the workers will not respond to the call and will destroy every opportunity and security for themselves and their dependents?

We believe that the cigar workers cannot afford to ignore the call this time; therefore, once again, we say our doors are wide open; come inside and help take up the struggle for the men, women and children who are grinding their lives away in the interest of and at the mercy of the trusts.

The Joint Advisory Board of New York has received an invitation to attend a convention of the Amalgamated Tobacco Workers. Do they, who have sent the invitation, believe that the organization has fallen into such a depressed state of mind? The Cigar Makers' International Union is still in healthy condition, in spite of them; it is always alert and on its feet to fight the cigar workers' battles. It will continue to do so with the help of those who realize the necessity of solidarity and not destroyers and dividers of forces.

Would it not, to say the least, be more practical to have consulted with the Joint Advisory Board of New York the advisability of some definite program of and for an understanding to the interest of the cigar workers before calling this inter-shop convention?

Now, it is up to you, cigar workers, friends, to realize and make use of your thoughts for your own interest. We offer you the hand of fellowship; if you accept it, the good will of the whole organized labor movement will be with you, ready to help you in your gigantic struggle. And if you don't accept it, our struggle in your behalf will continue just the same. We are alert and on our guard to achieve a higher standard of living and a better day for the cigar workers. This is our mission and no power on earth will divert us from our path.

(Signed)

COMMITTEE OF JOINT ADVISORY BOARD, NEW YORK,
Cigar Makers' Int'l Union of America.

I wish to call your attention to a few facts, as I have found them in my travels. Some of these questions will come up at our convention and I hope all will consider them, not with the intent of finding fault, but with the idea of adding to. I have often heard our international president criticized, and have done so myself, but the proper way to criticize is to offer a better way. One reason our trade has drifted to the trust is that our manufacturers have let them get about all the retail stores and drug stores, hotels and all places where most cigars are sold, instead of opening retail stores themselves. My remedy for fighting the trust is for every cigarmaker, as soon as he can, to open up a factory, with a retail department. We must be the man behind the counter. Anyone having a retail store in a small town can live cheap, and can work the towns close to him. When we have the man behind the counter, then we have the trust and non-union people going. We have a law which permits a capitalist to employ one union cigarmaker and he can have an apprentice. Let us change that and give the union man who can save enough to start a shop, let him have an apprentice, for he needs a boy to do stripping and delivering. We have aided the trust and others enough, now let us work and help each other. Regarding the bunch breaking and rolling system, let me say that it is ruining us and helping the other side, for a great many reasons. I will mention a few. It takes us at least three years to turn out a first-class union cigarmaker. It does not take the opposition three weeks to turn out a bunch breaker or roller. Then we want to organize them. What would we do with them all? We surely can not use them for there are no jobs for them. That is why we are getting so many classes or grades of cigarmakers. I would suggest that we do away with that class stuff altogether, but keep those who are now booked, but take in no more, only those who serve their time in union shops. Do you realize that they will soon be able to out-vote us? The old time hand workman will soon be a thing of the past under the system now working. Go into any factory of other kinds today and you do not learn a trade. You become a machine operator. You learn one operation and you become skilled at that, but if you get out of work there, you may have to go a long way before you can find the same kind of work. So with bunch breaking and rolling. The trust knows and some of our large manufacturers know that as long as they are only bunch breakers or rollers it is hard for them to find work only in non-union shops. Hence the system. If we start retail stores, we can inaugurate a plan by which the presidents in our cities can make agreements with leaf top houses under which they will sell to our union shops one standard grade of leaf at a certain price, no matter how large or how small the order. There are some cigars today bearing the label, which are so poor that they are a disgrace. Under the above plan we could get out a certain brand or brands which all union manufacturers would be entitled to use, but in which they would have to put in the standard stock which would be sold them. Doing less than that would forfeit them the right to use the brand. Ask our tourists if there is room for all of us to start retail stores in this country. If you have any better way, let us hear from you through the Journal, and our president will be glad to do his part. We get around and see conditions as they are and meet things that probably he does not, so come out in the journal and the president will help us and grow with us. I want every member to criticize this with a better solution of our problems.

Tobacco Workers—Two congresses of tobacco workers have been held recently. The annual congress of the federation affiliated to the General Confederation of Labor was held in Paris on May 7. According to the report submitted by the secretary, the Federation includes 40 branches with a total membership of about 15,000. Amongst the demands formulated by the congress were the following:

- (1) That tobacco workers should be included amongst civil servants entitled to pensions;
- (2) That the cost of living bonus should be increased from 720 to 1,800 francs;
- (3) That the tobacco monopoly should be continued and reorganized;
- (4) That tobacco factories in Alsace-Lorraine should be brought under the monopoly.

After an address by the secretary of the International Federation of Tobacco Workers, Mr. Elchelsheim, it was unanimously decided to apply for affiliation to the International Federation.

The Federation of Tobacco Workers affiliated to the General Federation of United Labor had sent a deputation to discuss the possibility of securing unity in the trade union movement. As the deputation had not full powers, no agreement was reached. The congress, however, decided to communicate the following declaration to the Federation affiliated to the General Confederation of United Labor:

"Whereas, the Federation, in accordance with the decisions of its congresses, allows all its members freedom of opinion, and whereas there are already minority unions within the Federation, whose views are opposed to the decisions adopted by the majority, the congress considers that unity could be effected if these comrades merely re-entered the confederal organizations, accepting the policy of the present majority and observing trade union discipline in their actions."

This resolution was submitted to a congress of the Federation affiliated to the General Confederation of United Labor which was held in Paris on 15 and 16, May. No agreement was reached on the question.

The standpoint of the latter congress was expressed in a resolution declaring that federal unity can only be realized on a national basis and that meanwhile efforts should be made to secure a united front on particular points in every branch union.

Resolutions were passed concerning wages and pensions similar to those adopted by the congress of the Federation affiliated to the General Confederation of Labor.

A PROCLAMATION.

Labor Day and Labor Sunday Observance American Asked by A. F. of L. Executive Council in Inspiring Appeal.

Having regard for the need of keeping constantly before the masses of our people the highest ideals of our labor movement and the requirement of our people for the complete fullness of life in all things, the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor declares as follows:

The labor movement of America demands for all of our people the full benefit of the life-giving force of our marvelous civilization through constantly increasing wages and improvement of working conditions and through a reasonable and proper reduction in the hours of work.

The labor movement of America demands for the wage earners and for all who serve usefully in any capacity, a sound and just economic basis for life and freedom in the fullest meaning of those terms.

The labor movement of America has ever had high regard for the development of the ethical and the spiritual in life, realizing the right of all humanity to partake freely of the great satisfaction that comes to enrich life as a result.

The labor movement of our country, recognizing the fact that all freedom and all higher development of life, rest upon first providing assurance of the essentials of existence, has first demanded economic justice as a basis for all other things.

But the labor movement has always taught that the material is essential to something higher, and that the inspiration of our movement has its deepest springs in something above and beyond the material.

The labor movement strives for economic improvement with unrelenting zeal and fidelity because economic improvement is the first fundamental requisite; but it holds out to all mankind a flaming torch lighting the way to a greater fullness of life, to complete realization of the finer and nobler aspirations of the mind and soul.

The labor movement fixes as its goal nothing less than the complete richness of life, without limitation of any kind, the attainment of the complete human ideal, in all of its economic, ethical and spiritual implications.

Through the inspiration of our labor movement, the Sunday preceding Labor Day, which is the first Monday in September each year, has come into general national observance as Labor Sunday. On this day it is fitting to give thought to the aspirations of Labor and to find in what way the soul of Labor may give thought and expression to its longings.

Because of the aims and aspirations here set forth, we hold it fitting that all churches draw close to their altars the soul of Labor on the coming Labor Sunday and that the men and women of labor everywhere make special effort to co-operate with the churches and to secure the co-operation of the churches with them, in order that there may be in the churches everywhere on that day a great union of expression in behalf of a higher, nobler life for the masses of our people; and in order that there may be everywhere a consecration to the cause of human betterment, particularly in those things that lead to ethical and spiritual growth—in those things that give flower and fruit to the great idealism of our labor movement, the embodiment and the expression of the idealism of our people.

May Labor Day Sunday each year bring home to the masses of our people the great good that humanity may yet achieve, the lofty heights to which it may climb, the inspiration and the enrichment to be found in the great American labor movement which is the hope of the millions who toil.

We ask also that Labor Day, the great holiday of the toiling masses, dedicated to them and to their cause, be ennobled and enriched by an expression of the same spirit, the same high idealism and purpose, the same uplifting, inspiring search for the fullness of life and the same determination to achieve triumph over all ills and wrongs through our great movement in its ethical and spiritual aspects, as well as through its purely economic operations.

CORRESPONDENCE

Action of the International Executive Board of the United Mine Workers of America on Dual Organizations.

The International Executive Board views with great concern the activities of certain sinister individuals who, in various sections and under diverse circumstances, are obviously attempting to create discord and confusion within the United Mine Workers. These individuals, many of whom are without trade union standing and some of whom are of questionable character, seem to derive their energy from the same general source and are apparently actuated by similar motives and work for the same objective.

We have witnessed the formation and temporary existence of the "Working Class Union" in the Southwestern coal fields and the trail of confusion and trouble which it left in its wake; we have witnessed the organization of the "One Big Union" in the Northwestern provinces of Canada and its later annihilation by the diligent efforts of the loyal trade unionists in the mining industry of those fields; we have observed the almost continuous activities of the birds of passage, who for years past have sown broadcast the malignant germs of industrial hatred which have marked the history of the "Industrial Workers of the World"; we have in comparatively recent times been obliged to openly oppose and strike down the propaganda of the "Red Trade Union International of Moscow," which openly reared its serpent head in the ranks of the organization in the maritime provinces of Canada.

All of these organizations, drawing to themselves the worst elements in industrial America, were dual organizations to the United Mine Workers, having for their purpose: first, the control, and later, the destruction of our trade union organization, committed as it is to the principles of collective bargaining and the perpetuity of established governmental institutions.

With the lapse of time evidence has appeared to definitely indicate a visible bond of affinity between these several aggregations of malcontents. Various individuals active in one of these so-called organizations and driven by the extremity of circumstance to other fields have appeared as the proponents of others of the above named dual movements. A common inspiration and a common objective unite them, and it has at various times required great diligence to combat their intrigue and render futile their machinations. In every instance, however, the United Mine Workers has emerged from the conflict with their philosophy with an enhanced prestige and greater loyalty among its members, which vividly depicts the triumph of truth over sophistry and the worth of true industrial service as against the false vaporings of industrial zealots.

The material accomplishments of the United Mine Workers, committed as it is to recognized trade union principles, commend it as an organization to the minds of thoughtful men, and its marvelous growth and expansion in influence is a tribute to its founders and its members who have governed and regulated its affairs.

In virtue of these facts, it is, therefore, entirely proper that the United Mine Workers should give attention to the latest of the adversaries which has issued a challenge to its integrity. This band of self-styled industrial crusaders have classified themselves under the high sounding title of the "Progressive International Committee of the United Mine Workers of America." These men, without warrant for their acts, have undertaken from time to time to meet in secret conclave and there, amid the enthusiasm which always prevails in the adoption of resolution, have highly resolved to assume control of the United Mine Workers and thenceforth direct its affairs along lines conceived by their deranged mental faculties.

Crowding for position in the front ranks of these doughty warriors appear many faces known of yore as enemies of the American Federation of Labor and its allied international unions.

At a recent conference held in Pittsburgh, Pa., assembled under call from this aggregation, appeared William Z. Foster, the moving spirit and counselor of the "Trade Union Educational League," known and recognized as an adjunct of the Communist Party in America. From the prolific mind and the facile pen of Foster came the various resolutions antagonistic to the United Mine Workers and the American labor movement which were adopted at the Pittsburgh meeting of these irreconcilables. Cheek by jowl with Foster appeared one Howat, one Merrick. Listed among the faithful is the name of Caleb Harrison, for many years an organizer of the Industrial Workers of the World; J. A. Hamilton, Jos. Manley, son-in-law of Foster, and many others of their ilk. These individuals, with ample funds, are undertaking a campaign of vilification and misrepresentation of reputable leaders of the organization and the established tribunals of the union for the purpose of undermining the confidence of its members and setting up their own dictatorship within its ranks.

In consideration of these facts, the International Executive Board feels warranted in warning the members of the United Mine Workers and other trade unions in the organized labor movement against giving aid or comfort in any form to the promoters of this dual union. The constitution of the United Mine Workers definitely classifies such organizations as the Progressive International Committee as being dual in purpose, and membership in dual organizations is expressly prohibited.

The International Executive Board through the adoption and issuance of this authoritative document definitely places the so-called Progressive International Committee as being within the scope of the constitutional provisions of the United Mine Workers with respect to dual unions. Instruction is hereby given to the officers of all subordinate districts of the United Mine Workers and to the officers and membership of all affiliated local unions to apply the provisions of the International Constitution to all members affiliated with the dual movement or giving aid and comfort thereto. Charges should be filed against such members and trials legally held in conformity with the provisions of the International Constitution governing such matters.

The United Mine Workers of America must purge itself of its secret enemies who draw substance from its bosom, as well as contest with its avowed enemies who openly prate of its future destruction. Our officers and our membership must awaken to a proper appreciation of this sordid industrial menace and loyalty to our laws and support to our ideals must be given by all.

Adopted by the International Executive Board at Indianapolis, Ind., June 20, 1923.

J. P. M. L. LEWIS,
President.

WM. GREEN,

Secretary-Treasurer, United Mine Workers, of America.

July 8, 1923.

No wonder conditions are bad. There is a lack of the old union spirit here. No one wishes to give any time to the cause, but they do wish union conditions. They expect the Int'l Union to make union wages and conditions for them just like lots of others who always cry the Int'l Union has done nothing for them. They belong to that element who wish to change over everything for something they know absolutely nothing about, or what they are going to transfer to, just change. If it is possible to get that which they seek by a change, why is it not possible to get that same thing through the present union? Theirs will be a union also. Have the manufacturers agreed to give them all they desire for the mere changing from a conservative organization to a radical one? To my mind that is just the real reason we are in the rut. The bosses know we are nagging each other. They are sure our forces are split and just so sure as it continues we will never accomplish anything. I honestly hope, at this coming convention the opposition to the Int'l Union will put forth that same energy to the vital questions concerning the best interest of the Int'l Union. Then and only then will we be able to do that which is of great importance to our whole movement.

With best wishes for a successful convention. As ever,

Yours fraternally,
A. T. UNIONIST.

REPORTS OF ORGANIZERS

Montreal, July 4, 1923.

Since my last writing the cigar business has continued very bad in this Province. Only since a few days has there been any signs of some change taking place for the best. Few shops have raised the limit and have taken on new help, although there are still some people out of work.

Owing to the prolonged dull state of trade the progress of organization work was very much retarded, but, notwithstanding this, we have added quite a few new members to the roll of the Union. If business continues to improve, and all shops get to work again as in normal times, new recruits will be much easier to get and our efforts will meet with better success.

I have been visiting, monthly, Union 373, Sherbrooke, Que. They needed assistance and advice. I expect some very good results from my visits to this local, and this in the very near future.

I have visited several local unions of other trades in the interest of our label and of our organization campaign. In these meetings I have been generally well received. This is no doubt one of the best modes of procedure we can follow, so long as we can have the privilege of addressing these meetings.

A few months ago we have organized what we call "The Quebec Conference of Organizers and Business Agents." This organization meets monthly. Its purpose is to try and obtain better results in organization work in the different industries through the co-operation of the different paid officials of International Unions here. I have had the honor of being elected president of this institution. The Conference has held several meetings to date and I am in hopes that the International Trade Union Movement will be very materially benefited by its work.

A. GARIPEY,
Organizer.

Norfolk, Va., July 3, 1923.

The cigar makers of Local No. 133, Richmond, are not making the progress that circumstances warrant, or keeping abreast with the trend of industrial improvements that are prevalent in most lines of business. Trade in the local field is very quiet there and little effort has been made in recent years by those whose interest is at stake, to stem the tide and keep business flowing in the channels of Home Made-Union Label Cigars. In times gone by that local had a creditable membership and wielded a powerful influence in the cigar industry. The possibilities are within reach to again revive the trade, providing manufacturers and our members will co-operate, each doing an equal share to boost the trade along. A rose bush must have water to make it bloom. Fruit orchards yield most prolific when the husbandman is on the job. A garden of most fertile vegetables will soon go to weeds if the man with the hoe is "asleep at the switch."

Agitation for the union label is paramount and should be constantly kept to the forefront. Activity and advertisement bring better results than inertia and indifference. Employment, working conditions and wages are most vital to the worker. Why not urge efforts to stimulate them? Unfortunately we have a few self-styled "progressives" in the trade who disparage label agitation, and classify it as "local patriotism"; such condemnation makes easier sledging for the sale of scab goods. Pessimism never made the sun shine or paid the house rent. Too many of the "progressives" do too much tearing down without offering something to take the place of what they seek to destroy. There can be no real constructive progress where members of our union go around "knocking" on the established order of things in the organization, and its fundamental laws, where pessimism is the general mental attitude and pessimists offer nothing scientific as a cure for the ills they seem to have found to complain of. The chap that lies down in the middle of the road with a pessimistic frown is in danger of being run over with an ice wagon.

The American Tobacco Trust has a strong hold in this center, but their non-union goods can be rooted out; with persistent effort in agitation and work of organization, results are sure to follow, if our members do not flag in their duty. A spirited campaign of label propaganda was carried on during my visit, twenty-five organizations were addressed in behalf of union made goods, the atmosphere seemed changed for the better. But the work must be carried on by the local committee.

Norfolk is well situated and ought to enjoy better business in the trade than it does. This town also was more forcible in membership, and "alert in local patriotism, and self pride for home made cigars" than it is at present. But it's only a repetition of the old story; activity ceased, interest subsided, and business skidded out of the hands of local manufacturers; our members here have not kept in touch with the organized labor movement. "Label boosting and agitation" show the marks of neglect. All hands must be on the job and pull in unison together, and there is no reason under the sun why union made goods, sold on merit (and they make good cigars here) should not predominate on the market.

Fraternally,
R. S. SEXTON,
General Organizer.

REPORT OF INTERNATIONAL FINANCIER

Philadelphia, Pa., July 7, 1923.

Since last report have examined the accounts of the following unions, viz:

Union 110, Washington, D. C.

The books and accounts here are fine. Benefit cards and endorsed vouchers on file for every item of expense. Did not find one error in figures—nice work. Some of the members here do not take their stamps, neither dues or assessments—causes quite a surplus in stamps. One of these days it will make trouble for somebody. Better take your stamps and keep your due book straight. It verifies your membership. Statement as follows:

Financier's balance for May 1, 1915 ..$ 504.00
Int'l receipts to June 1, 1923 13,627.45

Total$14,131.45
Int'l expense to June 1, 1923 13,937.59

Financier's balance for June 1, 1923..$ 193.86

Funds of Union.

June 1, 1923, in Farmers' and Merchants' Bank, Georgetown..$ 43.00
In possession Treas. Fred W.
Spless 20 05
In possession Sect'y Fred J.
Dahler 20.00

Total $ 83.05

Deficiency of Union June 1, 1923 ...$ 110.91

This is a balance still due on account of old deficiency. You are requested to at once make arrangements to refund this deficiency.

Union 1, Baltimore, Md.

The accounts here are in excellent condition, accurate work all around and complete to date.

Statement as follows:

Financier's balance for Jan. 1, 1917 ...$ 1,061.99
Int'l receipts to June 1, 1923 43,545.65
Expended over percentage in 1921-22.. 232.21

Total$44,835.67

Int'l expense to June 1, 1923	44,177.54
Financier's balance for June 1, 1923..$	662.83
Funds of Union.
June 1, 1923, in Nat'l Central Bank	$171.56
In possession Sect'y Gustav Mehan	76.35
Total	$ 247.91

Deficiency of Union June 1, 1923 ...$ 414.42
 Their attention is called to the provisions in the constitution regarding the refunding of deficiency.

Union 133, Richmond, Va.

The books and accounts here are handled honestly—a nice effort is made. Cash and stamp accounts are now correct. This union had not received credit for $50.00 that was deposited in bank. However they made the correction when I verified the bank account. Sect'y Smith has deposited in bank $68.00 since June 1.

Statement as follows:

Financier's balance for May 1, 1915 ...$	27.82
Int'l receipts to June 1, 1923	11,081.61
Correction in Int'l account	7.72
Total	$11,117.15
Int'l expense to June 1, 1923	10,588.06

Financier's balance for June 1, 1923..$ 529.09

Funds of Union.

June 1, 1923, in Am. Nat'l Bank..$459.00
In possession Sect'y N. J. Smith. 70.09
Total	$ 529.09

Union 165, Philadelphia, Pa.

It is hard to believe the change for the better that has taken place here. This is the first examination, for any union in Philadelphia, where the examiner did not increase their deficiency. All benefit cards and vouchers for expense on file—nearly the same improvement shows in the ledger also. The members here should appreciate the different officers that brought about these almost wonders. The present secretary can handle the money and correctly account for it. Another new feature—as all will admit—$2,316.42 is the amount of deficiency refunded in the last twelve months.

Statement as follows:

Financier's balance for July 1, 1922....$	3,816.14
Int'l receipts to July 1, 1923	15,653.50
Expended over percentage in 1922	396.14
Total	$19,865.78
Int'l expense to July 1, 1923	17,453.68

Financier's balance for July 1, 1923..$ 2,412.10

Funds of Union.

July 1, in Producers' and Consumers' Bank	$524.42
In defunct Chester St. Bank....	89.10
In possession Sect'y Chas. P. O'Brien	79.35
Total	$ 692.87

Deficiency of Union July 1, 1923....$ 1,719.23

Union 240, Norfolk, Va.

The present secretary tries to have his accounts correct. Some of the members will not take their due stamps—causes a surplus. One of these days they will wish they had their due stamps. It will make them trouble some time. Cash account and ledger correct. Complete vouchers now on file. A dependable man is secretary.

Statement as follows:

Financier's balance May 1, 1915	$ 176.68
Int'l receipts to June 1, 1923	10,552.50
Over percentage in 1915 and 1917.....	102.66

June 1, 1923, in Nat'l Bank of Com.	$300.67
In possession Sect'y-Treas. T. M. Wilson	78.20
Total	$ 378.87

Deficiency of Union June 1, 1923....$ 60.00

Union 296, Wilmington, Del.

The books and accounts here show a wonderful improvement over the work of previous officers, since the present secretary has had charge. There is an honest excuse for the funds not being deposited the last few weeks. It is a pleasure to find the accounts as Sect'y Burke has them.

Statement as follows:

Financier's balance for Jan. 1, 1917	$ 325.56
Int'l receipts to July 1, 1923	4,276.45
Over percentage for 1919 and 1922.....	5.06

Deficiency of Union July 1, 1923

Yours fraternally,

W. A. CAMPBELL,
 International Financier.

Special Financier's Examination.

Union 10, Providence, R. I.

July 7, 1923.

The accounts of this union are in good condition and correctly kept. Owing to business conditions here it was necessary to change financial secretaries three times during the past year. This caused the mislaying of some monthly reports and vouchers, but there was sufficient to show that the accounts were properly kept.

Statement as follows:

Financier's balance March 1, 1922	$ 237.57
Int'l receipts to June 30, 1923	2,892.34
Expended over percentage in 1921	15.02

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members, who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also as per Section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study Section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member. If there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

DECISIONS OF THE PRESIDENT

Charles Nellson appealed against the Joint Advisory Board, New York, reference his claim for pay on a certain cigar. The appeal was not sustained.

E. Van Der Cammen et al. appealed against Union 266 Memphis for illegally reinstating a member whom the financial secretary had constitutionally suspended for non-payment of dues. The appeal was sustained.

Union 90 New York appealed against Union 213 New York for neglecting to take more drastic action in a case in which Union 90 claimed illegality reference the matter of representation in a certain convention. The union replied that no harm was intended and they did not approve of such action and ordered the secretary to apologize to Union 90. The appeal was not sustained.

John A. Dippo appealed against 311 Auburn reference the nomination and election of delegate to the convention. The appeal was not sustained.

U. M. Lee appealed against Unions 404 Austin, 262 Dallas, and 128 El Paso reference their vote for delegate to the convention. The appeal was not sustained.

UNION NOTES

Union 33: Springfield, Ill., would like to communicate with Frank Schaaf on some important business.

Secretary Thomas O'Dea of 22, Detroit, Mich., notifies those interested that his hours are Saturday only from 10:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m., and at home after 5 p. m., 1693 Porter St., between 10th and 12th Sts.

The office of Union 2, Buffalo, N. Y., is closed the afternoons of Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, but open all day Monday and Saturday. The secretary is doing agitation work.

INTERNATIONAL FINES

The International Executive Board approved the application of 3, Paterson, to fine Leo Tamorolgio, Wm. Van Winkle and Fidel Haas each $50.00 for working in the non-union factory of the Times Cigar Company. Vote—Affirmative, 5; negative, 1; one member approved $25.

Approved the application of 339, Kokomo, Ind., to fine Frank Dempsey $200 and annul his retiring card for going to work at the non-union Great Western Pottery Co. Vote—Affirmative, 5; negative, 1; one member approved only the annulment of card.

Fines of $10.00 or Less.

Arie Docks (3601) was fined $10.00 by Union 17, Cleveland, Ohio, for ignoring the rule of the local union that before going to work a member shall appear before the regular or executive board meeting.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted herein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues for 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $8.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter, in the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a securing employment in a factory using the label or which pays the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 130. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessment levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue in color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

The first paragraph of Section 2 of the Constitution shall read:

The next convention of the Cigarmakers' International Union shall be held on the second Monday in August, 1923.

Before this edition of the Journal reaches the membership the work of the 24th Convention will be well under way. In fact, many of the problems confronting its delegates will have been solved in so far as it is within the power of the delegates to solve them, their ultimate solution, of course, being the referendum of the membership.

As this is written, prior even to the opening of the convention, it is little short of guesswork to say what disposition will be made of any of the vital questions that should by all means be disposed of at this convention and its following referendum. We feel safe in saying that all, or at least the great majority, of the delegates are going to do their best to perpetuate and improve our International Union. With this thought uppermost in the minds of the delegates and with this determination the driving force of the Convention there is much remedial legislation that should be enacted.

If it is really the desire of the membership that we organize the trade, this Convention, backed up by the coming referendum on its recommendations, must tear down every barrier to membership that now exists in the constitution.

Much criticism is aimed at the International officers for "their failure to organize the industry." The facts in the matter are—and an open mind that really has the welfare of the union at heart can not fail to see them—that our officials are helpless, tied hand and foot, by the barriers that now stand against the admission of non-unionists.

Despite a steady increase in the team-work system, despite the rapid increase in machine work, in whole or by part, we keep the bars up against those who are employed on this sort of work.

The Cleveland Convention slipped a little bit, and as time has proven a very little bit, too, the noose that has so thoroughly strangled our growth. At this Convention was proposed the law which allows bunch-breakers and rollers to join.

"It shall be optional with local unions to permit the introduction of the roller and bunch breaking system under their respective jurisdictions, wherever this system does not exist at the present time."

This law means that team-workers are entitled to join the union and work in union shops in Cincinnati, but even with cards in their pockets they are not recognized and cannot work in Boston.

Such a law will not organize the 42,817 teamworkers that are now making cigars in non-union shops. To organize these people we must give them as broad a field in which to find work as we give to the out-and-out cigar-maker.

There are 15,851 employed on bunch machines, 13,668 on suction tables and 1,928 on automatics.

We say to these cigar-makers, "We don't recognize your work with our label." They reply by refusing to join the union.

Thus do our laws instead of our officials "Fail to organize the industry."

If it is the desire of the membership to organize the industry—and we believe it is—they must recognize now that it's a real job. We must take the industry as we find it with all of its different styles of work, with all of its many angles and with all of its heart-breaking hazards, and decide to forget everything except that the unorganized are cigar-makers, that they are entitled to organization, and then proceed with the job with no local autonomy to stay the progress of the good work.

President Perkins' Address to the 24th Convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America.

Tables which are a part of this address and which are omitted from this Journal will be found in the Proceedings of the convention.

Chicago, Ill., August 13th, 1923.

Greetings:—

In the name of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America I extend with pleasure official welcome and greeting to the delegates to the 24th convention of the C. M. I. U. of A.

The outstanding issues demanding solution rank among the most important that have heretofore confronted and perplexed and now challenge our combined judgment and wisdom to the limit. Overshadowing all other questions and of paramount importance is organization of the wage earners in the cigar and tobacco industry.

During the 1920 Cleveland, Ohio, Convention all material facts concerning the industry, with recommendations, were presented. That convention made substantial advancement in the right direction. It is of paramount importance and vitally necessary that this convention complete the task there commenced. The situation can not take care of itself nor should it be permitted to drift along the river of inaction, hope, and expectation. Stern facts demand courageous and heroic action. It is my purpose to place the facts squarely before you in as plain and logical language as I can and without reservation.

By our presence here we have voluntarily accepted a tremendous responsibility. A stern sense of duty coupled with a true spirit of constructive trade unionism, loyalty to and faith in our organization as well as in ourselves will, I trust, through combined wisdom and judgment blossom into fruitful accomplishment by the enactment of amendments befitting and fully meeting existing conditions.

Any movement, state, fraternal, or economic, to be entirely successful must be fundamentally right. In our economic organizations our laws must conform to existing conditions if we hope to be entirely successful. Our Constitution needs amendments.

The primary, fundamental, original purposes organizing cigar makers into local unions and finally the International Union were to increase wages, shorten hours of labor, and improve working conditions, and for the mutual protection and advancement of all those engaged in the industry. The conditions prevailing at that time, about 60 years ago, and for a long time thereafter, were vastly different from those prevailing today. Hand work was the prevailing system for making cigars. A deep-seated, lasting psychology was developed in and gripped the minds of most cigar makers that cigars could not be produced under any other method.

During the Civil War, '61 to '65, an import tariff law was enacted by the federal government and a heavy import tax placed on cigars. At that time there were between three- and four-thousand cigar makers in the United States. Nearly all cigars consumed here were imported. A demand for home made cigars was soon created. This and other reasons created a shortage of cigar makers. Molds were imported. Manufacturers offered from $1 to $4 a thousand extra to the cigar makers if they would make cigars by mold. The cigar maker, at that time imbued with the false notion that cigars could be made only by hand, refused. Strikes against the molds were precipitated but the molds being in line with natural evolution triumphed.

At one time our Constitution read "All male white cigar makers shall be eligible to membership." The founders of the International Union, building with the best intentions, placed the bar against anyone entering the union except the male white cigar maker. It took years of persistent agitation to remove these bars against complete organization.

Finally the bunch-breaking and roll-up system was introduced. Practically all unions barred the bunch-breaking and roll-up system, and the optional clause permitting the local union to reject such methods remained in the Constitution until the 1920 Cleveland Convention, when it was slightly modified.

As evolution went on rapidly in the industry we have kept the doors of the International Union partly locked against those employed under the evolutionary methods—machines, bunch-breaking, and roll-up system. Later on in this address I shall present to you facts and figures showing to what extent these new processes have progressed.

As our union developed we added to the original primary objects of the union the payment of benefits—strike benefit, sick benefit, death benefit, and out of work benefit. These are incidental to the fundamental cause and reason for organization. The real object confronting us today under an entirely changed condition and methods of manufacturing is how to effectively and permanently bring about more rapid enrollment in a stable organization. That is the more outstanding issue. Anything that interferes, regardless of how much that any one thing or things may be cherished in our hearts and memories, must not stand in the way of the complete organization of the industry. That is a duty imposed upon us. Unless we work for its fulfillment we shall fail to fully meet the situation and the hopeful expectations of our fellow workers.

The real cause of the present condition of the union is the restrictive laws in our Constitution, which in themselves drove men and especially women into the great non-union shops and were a potential force in helping to build them up into large going concerns. These restrictions of all kinds, including the use of the union label, should be removed. They will have to be before we can be entirely successful.

Thomas Edison once said, "The whole world will be run by machinery, but the workers should be the brain behind the machine. Brain power in the form of highly developed mechanical apparatus must supplant man power in all forms of industry." Edison may be right. I think he is. In any event there have been more wonderful inventions and improved machinery put on the market and into operation in the short space of 50 years than were produced and marketed in the previous thousand years.

There are some wonderful inventions and marvelously improved machinery now perfected and patented that are kept in vaults and cold storage for the economic reason that if put into use it would send billions of dollars worth of expensive machinery to the scrap heap. Inventions and improvements are being made so rapidly that they can not be used without upsetting the whole present plan of production and distribution.

No power on earth can stop the at least gradual introduction and use of improved machinery and progressive methods of production. Any effort in that direction will react against those who attempt it. Our own condition proves that our efforts at restriction were futile and ineffective and injurious. Without an exception every organization since the beginning of the factory system that has attempted to restrict the use of improved machinery and improved methods of production has met with defeat.

Progressive evolution in industry in this enlightened age will reach its normal level. There are no laws of restriction at the disposal of the wage earners that can successfully stem the tide of evolution in industry, and the organization which attempts to do so brings disaster upon itself. It is true that the highly skilled when organized were able to maintain wages and conditions up to the point where an improved machine was brought on the scene. In all cases where the skilled workers have embraced improved machinery and organized those who work the machine they have proved uniformly successful in maintaining their organization, wages, and hours of labor.

We must shape our actions to conform to plans and methods that will enable union manufacturers to operate under modern means of production. We must in addition cooperate in an effort to save the now frightful waste in industry and thus enable competent union manufacturers to pay good wages.

The proper helpful methods applied now will lift the organization above the clutches of inertia and will enable it to renew its strength, quicken its active helpfulness and will place it in a position where it can more readily and more effectually adjust wages, regulate working hours and shop conditions, and place the wage earners on a higher and better living and social plane where they can more readily develop and enjoy a more equitable and a better material, intellectual, moral, and spiritual state of existence.

Wages.

Regular, uninterrupted employment is predicated upon the wage earners' ability to consume. Unemployment is caused by underconsumption and not overproduction, hence wages are of basic importance. Unless the rate of wages is raised to a point that will enable the workers to consume the bulk of what they produce our economic system will crumble and fall to pieces.

Observation and a study of recorded facts has convinced me that it isn't skill or the character of the work so much as it is the spirit of solidarity that makes for good wages and better working conditions.

All wage earners, skilled or unskilled, are entitled to and must receive an adequate wage while working at reasonable hours and under decent shop conditions. Otherwise society and civilization can not properly function, and stand in mortal danger of being destroyed. It is the duty of the Cigar Makers' International Union to raise wages and shorten the hours to a point where all wage earners will receive not only a good wage but their full share of the value of the product. To accomplish this we must first organize the industry.

Can we organize with the present restrictions in the constitution? Answer to this is recorded in the facts and figures which will later follow. I hold that the sick and death benefits are not the cause of our present numerically unsatisfactory state of organization. The restrictions in our constitution are more largely responsible than any of the benefits. The benefits have helped to keep us together despite the other material drawbacks in the constitution that have held us back. The sick and death benefit features have been seized upon as an alibi by those who have failed to join the International Union and as an excuse, by some who are trying to tear us down, for our lack of progress in the line of organization.

In an address I made to the Baltimore Convention in 1912 I pointed out that when we were working under the low dues plan with no benefits the membership fluctuated from the high point during the so-called good times and dropped nearly to zero during periods of stagnation and unemployment. I also showed that with the commenacement of the payment of high dues and the chain of benefits the membership never receded during periods of depression.

The real reason for the loss of membership recently and the slackened pace of organization work was the rapid development of the bunch-breaking and roll-up system, the bunch-breaking machines, the suction table, and our refusal to take those so employed into the union on an equality.

Trade Unions.

The trade union movement is the greatest living potential factor in the regulation of our economic well-being. It can not properly function unless predicated upon a solid foundation with broad and rational operating lines. Man can not feed or protect himself with his hands tied behind his back. Neither can a trade union grow and prosper with its doors of ingress barred with restrictive laws. I am sure that it is our duty and that it is your purpose and intention to place the International Union in a position where it can be even more useful and helpful in the future than it has been in the recent past. We all must realize that it has outgrown its present restrictive laws and that it needs up-to-date laws consistent with changed conditions and new problems which must be solved. Small union shops are rapidly becoming a memory. Bring them back! The trade is crystalizing into large shops, chain shops, chain stores, and trusts. We must change our course and shape our laws to meet these changed conditions. Many towns that formerly had prosperous union shops are left with a scattering of "Buckeyes." Remove the restrictions, including those surrounding the label, in the constitution, and start out with fresh determination and renewed courage and with faith in and loyalty to the union, the best friend the workers ever had, and the trade can be brought back into those towns that have been made barren of union shops, and the trade reclaimed from the big non union shops which have heretofore unmolested enjoyed all the advantages of improved methods of production.

Methods of Production.

The replies of local unions to the questionnaire with reference to the cigar industry, totaled, balanced, and analyzed, show there are 114,585 wage earners employed in the various branches of the industry that come under the jurisdiction of the C. M. I. U. of A.

Classified they show 90,180 cigar makers, 4,573 packers, 996 stogie makers, and 18,836 strippers, banders, etc. Of this number 25,- 605 are members of the union and 88,980 are non-union.

Of the 90,180 cigar makers 23,155 are union and 67,025 are non-union. There are 38,927 men and 51,253 women making cigars. Of the men 19,798 are union and 19,129 are non-union. Of the women there are 3,357 union and 47,896 non-union.

There are 4,573 cigar packers, 949 union and 3,624 non-union. This brings the total of those making and packing cigars to 94,753.

My address to the Cleveland Convention, April 1920, based upon a similar questionnaire showed a total of 111,378 people making and packing cigars. As compared with the present report this shows that there are 16,625 less people making and packing cigars now than in April, 1920. This loss as reported shows that there are 15,132 less unionists and 1,493 less non-unionists than in 1920.

The loss in the number employed in the industry is fully accounted for in the decreased number of cigars manufactured in 1922 as compared with the number manufactured in 1920. In 1920 there were 8,304,618,762 cigars manufactured; in 1922 there were 6,621,298,886 cigars manufactured, showing a loss of 1,683,319,876 cigars.

Another factor that has had much to do with the loss in the number of cigar makers is the enormous increase in the use of machinery. The rapid increase in the use of machines is proved by the reports which show that there are now 1,928 persons employed on the automatic machines as compared with 451 in 1920. There are also 15,851 employed on bunch breaking machines and 13,668 on suction tables.

Of the 996 stogie makers 749 are union and 247 are non-union and of the 18,836 strippers, banders, etc., 752 are union and 18,084 are non-union.

Classified as to methods of making the reports show there are 13,305 hand workers, 9,184 union and 4,121 non-union; 29,323 mould workers, 9,236 union and 20,087 non-union; and 47,552 bunch breakers and rollers (team workers) of which only 4,735 or less than ten per cent belong to the union.

(To this 47,552 team-workers as listed in the questionnaire should be added those working on the automatic machine, the suction table workers, and those employed on the bunch breaking machines as they are team-workers in every sense of the word.)

Hand work, the original style of making cigars, is steadily decreasing. My address to the 1920 convention showed 17,346 hand workers. We now have 13,305, a decrease of 4,041 within the past three years, while the 1912 address to the Baltimore Convention shows 21,030 hand workers.

Mould work shows an increase over the 1920 report of 11,962. Many of these mould workers are team-workers in practice and should be so classified.

Bunch breaking and rolling (team-work) is steadily increasing, there being few if any of the large non-union or chain shops that use strictly hand or mould work methods to any extent.

The total number of shops reported by the local unions and estimated from Internal Revenue reports is 10,648. Of this number 7,228 are reported as employing one or more journeymen and 3,420 are reported as "Buckeyes" not employing a journeyman. Four thousand, nine hundred and seventy-eight of the total number of shops are reported as union and 5,770 as non-union.

The total number of trust and chain shops reported is 186, an increase of 88 over the 1920 report and the number of cigar makers and packers employed in these shops has increased from 21,383 in 1920 to 44,293 at the present time. Of this number 8,546 are men and 35,747 are women. The trust and chain shops employ all except 15,506 of the women in the industry.

With the full knowledge of the facts as to the real conditions the time has come when we must take note of facts and use all helpful methods in the interests of our organization and the wage earners, including the so-called unskilled, employed in the cigar industry.

The population of the United States from 1860 to 1920, inclusive, in ten-year periods follows:

1800	5,308,483
1810	7,239,881
1820	9,638,453
1830	12,866,020
1840	17,069,453
1850	23,191,876
1860	31,443,321
1870	38,558,371
1880	50,155,783
1890	62,947,714
1900	75,994,575
1910	91,972,266
1920	105,710,620

Statistics show that the manufacture and consumption of cigars are steadily falling off, and that the population is steadily increasing. In 1902, twenty years ago, there were manufactured 6,103,567,265 cigars. At that time the population was approximately 76,000,000. For the year ending June 30, 1921, there were manufactured 6,758,756,368 cigars at which time the population was approximately 106,000,000. Practically there was no increase in the number of cigars manufactured and yet the increase in population was approximately 30,000,000.

In 1913 there were manufactured 7,699,037,543 cigars while for the fiscal year ending 1922 there were manufactured 6,621,298,886 cigars. The population in 1913 was approximately 94,000,000. The population in 1922 was approximately 110,000,000. With an increase in the population of 16,000,000 in the period just cited, 1913 to 1922, there was a decrease in the manufacture of cigars of 1,077,738,657.

The steady decline in the manufacture and consumption of cigars is due to several causes, prominent among which is the steady increase in the internal revenue tax exacted by the federal government. In 1902 the aggregate tax collection on cigars was $18,311,142.25. In 1922 this tax on the cigar industry for internal revenue alone had jumped to $41,183,505.34, or an increase of $22,872,363.09, an increase of about 120 per cent. These figures where comparisons are made don't include small cigars or all tobacco cigarettes. If these were included it would simply accentuate a little more the differences.

There has been a phenomenal increase in the number of tax paid cigarettes manufactured. In 1902 there were 2,651,618,795 tax paid cigarettes manufactured; in 1922 there were 50,068,203,132 tax paid cigarettes manufactured, showing an increase in 20 years of 47,416,584,337. This increase has been more pronounced in the last six years. In 1916 there were 21,087,677,077 tax paid cigarettes manufactured, which compared with the number of tax paid cigarettes manufactured in 1922 shows an increase of 28,980,526,055. The foregoing figures are official for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1922. The trade papers estimate that (on official and unofficial figures) the output for cigarettes for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, was 60,000,000,000.

In 1902 the total tax from all sources including manufactured tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, and snuff, exacted by the federal government was $51,937,925.19, while in 1922 this had been increased to $270,758,695.68, an increase of $218,820,770.49 or over 400 per cent. With the heavy import duty on raw material and the excessive internal tax the tobacco industry is carrying a heavy burden, the results of which have already been portrayed in the foregoing tables and statement.

The steady increase in the price of good tobacco suitable for cigar purposes aided and abetted by the monstrous tariff law is a potential force in enabling the trusts and combinations to corner and control the market and charge whatever prices they choose for tobacco suitable for cigar purposes. Through combinations of big interests and the unfair taxing system the cigar industry is struggling under a heavy burden.

In practically all foreign countries as well as our own tobacco has always been looked upon by the law-making forces as legitimate prey for the purpose of raising revenue for governmental and other purposes.

Strikes and Lockouts.

The records show that since January 1, 1920 up to June 1, 1923, three years and five months, there were 555 applications, the greater number of which were for an increase of wages, against reduction of wages, and to revise the bills downward from the high peak bills adopted during and just following the world war. Of the 555 applications, 30 were disapproved, leaving a total of 525 constitutionally approved applications.

The approved applications involved 42,016 members, of which number 38,334 were beneficial, and 3,707 non-members. The 30 disapproved applications involved 9,174 members, of which number 8,958 were beneficial, and 92 non-members. Involved in all applications submitted there were 51,190 members, of which number 47,292 were beneficial, and 3,799 non-members.

During the period covered by this record, three years and five months, there was expended for strike and lockout purposes $1,490,411.84 from the international funds. Contributions and purely local assessments in aid of these strikes and lockouts are not included in this amount. Thousands of dollars through local assessments, of which the International office has no record, were contributed in the Tampa and Porto Rico strikes. It would be interesting to know the total amount contributed from these sources.

Of the grand total $1,490,411.84 expended for strike and lockout purposes from the International funds $1,015,840.34 was expended in Tampa, Florida, and $245,678.36 in Porto Rico. These difficulties involved 14,813 members of which number 12,843 were entitled to benefits. The difficulties in both these places had to be recorded in the non-successful column. In both instances a magnificent, heroic struggle was maintained by our members who struggled in the face of difficulties seldom encountered in any other part of this or any other country. Our members in Porto Rico in particular and in Tampa generally had arrayed against them employers who were entrenched behind bulwarks of privileged conditions which involved the control of those whose duty it was to enforce the law, and an intimidation, oppression, and abuse against the workers that have seldom been surpassed in brutality and heartless application.

In Porto Rico the industry is controlled by the all-powerful American Tobacco Company, which knows no mercy and has no conscience in the pursuit of its determination to extract the most dollars at the very lowest compensation for the workers in its efforts to gain great profits. The trust maintains factories in many parts of the Island. Practically whole towns consist only of cigar makers and tobacco workers. Every factory in some given town deliberately closes and the cigar makers are thrown out of employment with no other means of obtaining work at any occupation and are driven about from place to place suffering the pangs of hunger in the vain search of the opportunity to work at their chosen vocation as union men and women.

In Tampa, Florida, during the great struggle friendly manufacturers or those who were inclined to meet and make terms with the union were prevented from exercising their right and desires in this direction, by subtle methods. Any manufacturer who desired to make an honorable settlement with the union was denied first credit, second boxes, third raw material, and fourth he was made to sacrifice the sum he had posted with the manufacturers' association. Many of these manufacturers had permitted the manufacturers' association to pay their most pressing bills and had given notes as collateral, and if any of these attempted to do business with the union these outstanding obligations or notes which were overdue would have been immediately placed in the hands of a sheriff who would have concluded the negotiations, and the manufacturer would have found himself bankrupt.

In the successful applications 123 were for an increase of wages, 29 against a reduction of wages.

These figures don't cover the many strikes that were indulged in without taking the formality of even consulting our strike laws, and totally ignoring them. These ill-timed and ill-advised strikes have done as much perhaps as anything else to retard organization and the maintaining of union shops.

On previous occasions while discussing this important phase of our activity I have urged that fair and honorable methods be adopted whereby all of the material facts in connection with contemplated strike or lockout difficulties can be placed before the members and voters in the strike or lockout applications. I have said and here repeat that no local union should be allowed to pay strike benefit even when their application is approved without first meeting the employers and endeavoring to settle the difficulty without a strike, by means of mediation, conciliation, and arbitration. If this principle had been adhered to it would have saved us many shops, many dollars, and much misery, want, and privation.

I regard the right to strike as one of the fundamental principles of economic activity and a right that should never be surrendered. It is labor's best friend. It should not be misused or abused. It is a two-edged sword that unless handled with discretion and vision it is very liable to cut more deeply in the direction which we did not intend than in the direction we had aimed at.

The Union Label.

The following table shows the number of labels printed, issued, and their cost from January 1, 1920, to January 1, 1923:

Large Labels for General Use.
	Labels Printed.	Cost of Printing.	Issued.
1920.....	21,000,000	$2,625.00	20,650,000
1921.....	13,000,000	1,925.00	14,550,000
1922.....	11,000,000	1,650.00	11,660,000
Total	45,000,000	$6,200.00	46,860,000
Small Labels for Packs.
1920.....	3,300,000	$ 412.50	2,496,500
1921.....	3,600,000	540.00	2,647,500
1922.....	1,200,000	180.00	2,205,000
Total	8,100,000	$1,132.50	7,349,000
Stogie Labels.
1920.....	640,000	$ 96.00	1,050,000
1921.....	2,160,000	388.80	1,100,000
1922.....	600,000	108.00	1,300,000
Total	3,400,000	$ 592.80	3,450,000
Grand total all labels	56,500,000	$7,925.80	57,659,000
Label paper purchased...		3,266.85
Total cost of printing and paper		$11,192.15

The total number of regular sized labels issued during the years 1917, 1918 and 1919 was 69,950,000. In the last three years, 1920, 1921 and 1922, there were issued 46,860,000. A like comparison for similar dates shows an increase of 4,350,000 in the small label (which is used for packs) and an increase in the stogie label of 560,000.

The Union Label in order to be able to justify itself and our rightful expectations of its being a potential force in organizing and maintaining union shops should be linked up with natural, workable laws. The Union Label can not function to capacity if handicapped by restrictive laws. The Union Label in itself to be successful must be free to jointly work with other broad, natural, evolutionary, progressive methods of production. A powerful weapon may be rendered impotent and detrimental instead of a helpful means of organization if not properly handled.

Heretofore in this address attention has been called to changed and changing conditions in the methods of manufacturing cigars and serious attention and action has been recommended. Conditions governing the use of the label should be amended, corrected, brought up to date, and made to fit into other necessary changes that should be made in the Constitution.

The primary intent of the Union Label is to show that the product to which it is attached was made by a member of organized labor. All other unions having Union Labels hold to this view and don't burden the labels with any other meaning. The Union Label in order to be entirely successful in the purpose for which it was originally intended should be allowed to function without restrictions except that its use by any manufacturer is predicated upon the fact that the workers employed are members of the union.

Wages, hours of labor, and conditions are always predicated upon organization. The workers in any industry or factory must first be organized and that once accomplished, wages, favorable hours, and good working conditions naturally follow. This being true it brings us back to the oft-repeated statement that we must first organize and for this purpose the label should be allowed to function without burdensome restrictions. Organization being necessarily our primary purpose, elements that will hasten organization and strengthen it should be encouraged. Making conditions under which the union label shall be granted to manufacturers is of paramount importance.

All members should be treated upon an equality and in so far as it is possible precisely the same. If members or those entitled to affiliation are good enough to join and worthy of membership they in the final analysis should become entitled to elements that make for protection of any other wing or class of membership.

The label now is forced to carry the making price and the selling price of cigars. Give the workers in the industry an unrestricted opportunity to organize and become affiliated and the question of wages will rapidly take care of itself. Wages and hours are dependent upon organization and not upon the union label. The selling price of cigars, wholesale or retail, is not within the power of the union to regulate. We never were and are not now organized for that purpose. That is a proposition that belongs to the manufacturer and the retailer, and in the regulation of this the label has not infallible force. In attempting to fix the wholesale price of cigars as a condition for the use of the label we assume a responsibility as to quality over which under present laws we have absolutely no control, and no set of rules concerning the use of the label can be perfected, for obvious reasons, that will enable us to successfully assume such responsibility.

The extent of organization furnishes the element of power which determines and regulates wages. This basic power is the one clearly within the purview and undisputed sphere of trade union activity.

Vast changes heretofore and now being made in the distribution of cigars are partly responsible for these views, chief among which is the centralization of the industry with its chain shops for making and chain stores for distribution. These are mostly non-union stores. They make a studied effort to discredit the union label and will not handle goods bearing the label if they can help it.

The years immediately following the attempted enforcement of Prohibition show a marked decrease in the use of the Union Label.

The proper action in this direction with the application of suggestions which have been made reference organization will bring the union factory and the Union Label back into the field from which its former glory and activity have been well nigh eliminated. A rounded up Constitution made to fit the present methods of production will bring back the union shop to many towns and places where it formerly existed and thrived, and to the advantage of the workers and all others directly and indirectly concerned. The union label, under present conditions and changes contemplated, perhaps can be safely left to mean that if it is displayed on the manufactured product that product was made by a member of organized labor.

For these and many other reasons I recommend that all burdensome restrictive laws concerning the use of the Union Label be properly amended and in some instances entirely removed from the Constitution.

Death Benefits.

Figures that follow will give you some idea of the cost to maintain our death benefit system. At the Cleveland Convention, 1920, steps were taken that would partially overcome the difficulties we find ourselves in reference to death benefit laws which were originally placed in our constitution in 1887. Such legislation, however, was not sufficient to meet the requirements.

If a convention had been held last year as the Cleveland convention provided, additional measures could and undoubtedly would have been taken to more easily bridge over our present difficulties. Unfortunately popular vote postponed the holding of that convention.

In the three years past we paid out $17,080.00 for 70 mothers and 357 wives. The age of death of the mothers averaged 73 years and a fraction and of the wives 51 and a fraction.

The total deaths in the three years past of those entitled to $50.00 death benefit on account of age limit of 50 years was 12, and their average duration as dues paying members was 13½ years. Allowing for $26.30 per cent. to unions on the average of $105.30 paid in dues it left a surplus of $29.00.

During the same period we paid 19 death benefits of $75.00 each of those who came under the same constitutional (50 years age) restrictions. These members had contributed dues for 12¼ years, or about $116.35. Deducting the percentage allowance to unions of $29.10 there was a favorable balance of $12.25.

There were in addition to the above 17 deaths of members that were entitled to all benefits and the $50.00 death benefit up to August 1, 1920. These 17 members had paid on an average $28.60 in dues and since they were entitled to all benefits were carried at a loss.

There were 76 who were of the regular full dues paying class entitled to $75.00. Their average duration as dues paying members, 30c and 60c dues was 3 3/10 years and they paid an average of $89.15, and as they were entitled to all benefits we may approximately figure a loss of $25.00 on each one in this class.

There were 47 members whose claims amounted to $125.00 each. Their average duration as dues paying members, 30c and 60c, was 6 9/10 years, and each paid approximately $145.35 in dues. The percentage cost of collection was about $36.35 and the average sick benefit about $36.00, which shows that even this benefit for which a five-year membership is required was operated at a loss.

In the $200.00 class we had up to August 1, 1920, 28 deaths who paid on an average in 77/10 years $120.05 dues and as they were entitled to all benefits we carried them at a considerable loss.

There were 43 deaths whose average membership time up to August 1, 1920, was 121/10 years. The dues paid were $188.75, and they received $350.00 each at death. Being entitled to all benefits it clearly follows that the loss on this class was considerable.

Under the new law in force since August 1, 1920, we paid 48 death benefits of $275.00 each. The average duration of membership was 12 years and 8 months. They paid average dues of $217.20. Add to this death benefit the percentage allowed local unions and the other benefits and the usual loss becomes apparent. Assuming that during the 12 years and 8 months' period these members had paid 60c dues part of the time (instead of 30c and 20c), they would have paid in $395.20 in dues and received in return $275.00 death benefit, and an average of $64.20 sick benefit, and the union would have received percentage allowance of $98.80, making a total of $438.00, leaving a loss of $42.80 and nothing for strikes, out of work, or running expenses.

In the period from August 1, 1920 to December 31, 1922, we paid 80 death benefits each of $475.00. The duration of membership was a fraction over 18 years. If they had paid 60c dues constantly it would have amounted to $570.00, and for this we have paid death benefit $475.00, percentage allowance to unions for overhead $142.50, and at least the average sick benefit $96.50, a total of $714.00. Hence under the most favorable conditions permissible under the present law the loss would be $47.50 per death, regardless of any other benefit expenses.

From January 1, 1920 to August 31, 1920 we paid 251 death claims at $550.00 each, costing the International Union $138,050.00. These members had paid an average of $429.00 dues on 27 years and 6 months membership, a total of $107,679.00. A fair average sick benefit during this period would be about $100.00. Hence we paid in sick and death benefits about $650.00 for $429.00 dues paid.

However the total death benefits paid during the three-year period of the $550.00 class was 1,025, costing the International Union $563,750.00. Making allowances for 40c dues paid by many of these members we are liberal in saying they paid on an average $456.00 for a 29 year and about 9 months membership. This includes 60c dues from August 1, 1920 to December 31, 1922. Their total payment was in round figures $467,400.

If our figures were on a continuous 60c a week dues paying basis for 30 years we should receive $948.00 in dues. From this we should pay death benefit $550.00, collection percentage $237.00, and the lowest average sick benefit for 30 years $161.00, making a total of $948.00. This showing, the most favorable that is possible under our present law would without continued assessments leave no balance for strike or out of work benefits or general overhead expenses.

There were during the three-year period 180 $350.00 disability claims amounting to $63,000.00. The average duration of membership was 30 years and a fraction. The average age of the claimants was 67 years. Making allowance for 20c, 25c, 30c, 40c, and 60c dues paid it is placing it high to say that these members paid an average of $468.00 in dues. We paid each $350.00 benefit. The collection cost was $117.00, and we are adding a low average of sick benefit—$109.00, making a total of $576.00, or an approximate loss of $108.00 on each claim paid.

It must be born in mind that there is a loss in each class except the old age members, hence we can not equalize the loss by shifting from one group of payments to another. We are paying beyond our means and income based on the specified dues. The total disabilities paid in other cases are not enumerated as these were not enough to draw conclusions from.

The following table shows briefly the ages of members who died in the past three years:

70	died between 18 and 30, average age 26 2/10.
137	died between 30 and 40, average age 35 1/10.
273	died between 40 and 50, average age 44 6/10.
416	died between 50 and 60, average age 55.
552	died between 60 and 70, average age 64 3/10.
385	died between 70 and 93, average age 77 8/10.

In the above are included all deaths and the total disability members. The combined age years of members of the 1,833 classified above was 106,509, or an average of 58 1/10 years at time of death, or payment of disability benefit.

In the three years past we paid in death benefits $813,401.70, or an average of $443.75 4/10 for each death. It is a liberal allowance to place the average dues paying life at 20 years. In 20 years a member paying 60c dues would pay in $624.00 in dues. Against this the member would receive according to the average given death benefit $443.75, sick benefit $146.00, and the union in percentage $156.00, making a total $745.75. Hence under the law of averages we should operate at a loss without considering the strike or out of work privilege amounting to $121.75 on each death benefit paid.

Assuming that for the next 8 years the dues are on a 60c a week basis, then the 30-year collection for dues would be 20 years past at 30c a week $312.00, and 10 years at 60c a week $312.00, making a total of $624.00. We are liable for total disability benefit $350.00, percentage of local union $156.00, sick benefit average (with probable increase) $154.00, total $660.00. Thus leaving out of consideration the likelihood of the member's paying part of the time 40c a week, and the possibility of strike or out-of-work benefit we shall still under the law of averages be operating at a loss of $36.00 per disability benefit paid.

To pay all death and total disability benefits for the year 1922 it cost 18 3/10c per week per member.

The cost rate per member per week rises and falls with the fluctuation in membership. Figured on the cost per week per member for the past ten years the average was about 13 2/10c per member per week.

As already indicated in my opening remarks, organization is the paramount issue. When we agreed to pay certain benefits we assumed a moral obligation, which we should fulfill if it is possible to do so and without strangling our efforts to fully organize the industry. We shall have discharged our obligations and avoided repudiation of benefits if we shape the laws so that those members now entitled to death benefits shall pay insurance rates predicated upon American actuary figures for these benefits.

To date we have discharged all obligations in the payment of all benefits. Some definite plan should be adopted whereby we can meet the expectations and claims of the older members for death benefits. In view of the changed condition in the industry no one should object to a fair readjustment that will protect and safeguard the rights and interests of present members and meet the requirements necessary to stimulate active enrollment of new members. It has been pointed out in figures that heretofore no one has paid a sufficient rate of dues to meet our insurance obligations. In continuing the payment of death benefit or reinsuring in an insurance company we are justified and within the bounds of honorable dealing in providing that all who elect to continue to participate in the death benefit feature shall pay in addition to the regular dues for economic purposes a premium based upon actuary figures that will meet all our obligations.

There are several possible ways out of the present difficulty, among which are:

First, a continuance of the present death benefit laws with dues, predicated upon American actuary statistics, sufficient to warrant the payment of these benefits.

Second, a reduction of all death benefits to a minimum to such an extent that it will permit a reduction in the dues to a point that will be inviting to those not now affiliated to the International Union.

Third, the organization of a purely insurance department of the International Union, with its compulsory insurance up to $100.00 death benefit and an optional clause for any sum beyond that, and that insurance rates governing under the American actuary rates be adopted.

Fourth, the reinsurance under the group plan without physical examination in a substantial insurance company under a plan that it would be compulsory for all members to become insured to the extent of at least $100.00 for funeral benefit, and that will permit the present members voluntary insurance in any sum that will enable their beneficiaries to realize upon the sums they are now entitled to under our present laws; that dues be limited to an agreed upon amount for all those who take only the $100.00 death benefit, and an amount to be paid by those who take the voluntary insurance to be known as insurance premium, based on American actuary rates, sufficient to cover such amounts. Under this plan all those who may hereafter become members would be entitled under fixed dues to $100.00 funeral benefit, and under the optional plan could take out up to $500.00 or any sum not to exceed $1,000.00.

At the last three or four sessions of your International Executive Board the question of continuing the payment of death benefits and stimulating organization in the industry has been brought to their attention, and considerable thought and study devoted to this important question. The Board has studied the question from all angles and has unanimously endorsed a proposition, which they request me to present to you in an appendix to this report, whereby we can reinsure our death benefit members under a group insurance plan and without physical examinations, which plan contemplates a compulsory insurance on the part of all members of a funeral benefit limited to $100.00 and an optional clause for present and prospective members on any sum above that amount up to $500.00. Those who embrace the optional clause and desire to continue their claim on death benefit will of necessity have to pay in addition to the purely economic dues scientific actuary rates that will make the payment of the benefits sure and secure.

At the request of the International Executive Board at its recent meeting, June 17-18, 1923, I appointed a committee of four on insurance, consisting of Vice-Presidents I. M. Ornburn, E. G. Hall, Samuel Gompers, and the President. The Board also requested that the propositions of the two insurance companies be submitted to this convention and they strongly recommend that you adopt one of these plans.

Both requests have been complied with, and the Board's report and the insurance plan will be submitted in an appendix which is an official part of this address.

Sick Benefit.

The payment of sick benefit displays a fraternal spirit and helpfulness that should appeal to the minds and hearts of all mankind. I strongly urge the continuance of the payment of sick benefit under a plan that will limit it to the original purpose of paying a fair amount of sick benefit and lifting it from what it has drifted into, an annual pension in many instances.

To pay sick benefits for the year 1922 it cost a fraction over 14c per week per member. With the proper limitation through amendments based upon equity and justice, this amount can be considerably reduced.

Restrictive Laws.

Your attention is directed to a few restrictions which in view of past and present events can be safely said are hindrances to more rapid organization.

Section 67 of the constitution provides a penalty of an increase of the initiation fee from $3 to $5 for a suspended member and is a source of much complaint and is often used as an excuse by suspended members.

Section 79 provides "No union shall be allowed to hold a charter without having a bill of prices; a union having no bill shall adopt the bill of the nearest union." This should be amended for the reasons more clearly set forth when treating restrictive laws under Section 164.

Section 150 reference the price for making and the selling price of the finished product should be changed. Your attention has been directed to this matter under the caption of "The Union Label."

In the same section (150) is the following clause: "No union shall be allowed to furnish the labels for cigars made in whole or in part by machinery." An amendment striking the clause just quoted from the constitution recently went to popular vote and fell short of adoption, by the two-thirds vote, by only 30 votes. This matter is more fully dealt with in this address under the caption of "The Union Label."

The second paragraph of Section 155, wherein it prohibits the use of the label to manufacturers "Who sell cigars to a manufacturer who was put on the unfair list or any agent or representative of such firm." Where a manufacturer entirely retires from the field of manufacturing and continues as a jobber there seems to be no legitimate reason why other union manufacturers should not be permitted to sell their union products to him as a jobber. An unsuccessful manufacturer sometimes makes a good jobber.

The second, third, and fourth paragraphs of Section 157, relating to constitutional restrictions, no one can successfully say are not actual hindrances to organization. These three paragraphs can be eliminated and should be if we are to make necessary progress.

We ask non-unionists in the trade to become members and try in every way to induce them to, and yet in Paragraph 2 of Section 157 we say to these people that they cannot work in a label shop until they have been members of the International Union for one year.

There is a provision in Section 164 that newly organized unions shall receive the same bill of prices in force by the nearest union. This brings us back to the old fundamental economic truism that we must do first things first. The first thing is to organize the workmen. Wages and conditions follow organization. Under the present laws we say to the non-union center, "We will admit you into the International Union and give you a charter if you will get the same bill of prices established in the neighboring town or city." We must not overlook the fact that at one time in the neighboring town or city wages were low and hours of labor long and working conditions miserable. They did not first establish a bill of prices. They first organized and the bill of prices naturally followed. This law needs amendment.

Section 190 provides that fines in excess of $10 must be submitted to the International Executive Board for approval. In all such cases the International Executive Board hears only one side of the case. The member involved is not heard by the International Executive Board. The union makes application to fine a member anywhere from $25 to $10,000 and states the reasons. The application is then forwarded to the International Executive Board for approval. This law should be amended so that the unfortunate member should at least be given an opportunity to be heard in his own defense before a fine is approved by the Executive Board.

Section 208 reference length of term served by apprentices should be amended. The attention of the delegates to the Cleveland 1920 convention was called to this important matter. Under the present law no one is eligible to membership in the International Union unless he has served three years' apprenticeship. This law was placed in the constitution when the hand work system of making cigars was universally in force. With the introduction of different methods such as the mold, the bunch breaking machine, the suction table, and the automatic machine and the team system which have become the predominating systems by which cigars are manufactured today it naturally follows that this law should be amended. While it may have required three years' time to become proficient as a hand workman it certainly does not require three years to become proficient as a bunch breaker, a roller, a team worker, or as an operator on a bunch breaking machine, on a suction table, or on an automatic machine. I again renew the recommendation made at the last convention that the law in this respect be amended.

The General Fund.

The general fund should be maintained in so far as it is possible on our fixed income—that is, the regular dues.

The records show that the total expense of the International Office for the year ending July 1, 1923, was $69,640.39. The average membership of the International Union for this period was 29,069, thus making the average cost per member for maintaining the International Office aside from the organizers and financiers for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1923, $1.50.

The amount expended for regular and special organizers and agents was $26,069.27 for the same period, making the cost per member $0.89 6/10 for maintaining the organizers of the International Union.

The cost, including that of organizers and financiers as well as all other expenses for maintaining the International Office for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1923, is $2.39 6/10. Practically all of the expenses are fixed charges regulated by organic law, over which the administration has no control.

I am fully conscious of the profound duties with which you are met. You are placed in a position in reference to past legislation in which you are only as individual members remotely responsible. You are in no wise responsible for conditions imposed and policies pursued by the employers and managers in the cigar and tobacco industry.

You have my unqualified assurance of any helpfulness and assistance I may be able to render to you in reaching a just and effectual solution of the perplexing problems that are forced upon us at this time and place. I am sure the remedy to meet and overcome all serious difficulties can be found and applied. The time is ripe, the occasion and opportunity is here and yours.

The answer will be reflected in your action. The defenseless wage earners are in a receptive mood; they are looking for a message from this convention such as will revive and rekindle the spirits of our members and convey a ray of hope and encouragement to the great army of the unorganized in the industry. To successfully meet the situation and these expectations requires vision, courage and determination, and the sacrifice of any and all prejudices that may stand in the way of successful accomplishments. With full knowledge and belief that our cause is right and just, let us go forward undaunted and determined to fully discharge the obligations resting upon us.

Fraternally and respectfully submitted,
G. W. PERKINS,
International President.

Organized street car men in Chicago have started a war on disturbers at the meetings preceding wage negotiations.

This noisy group were only active during negotiations, and subsided after all possibilities of a strike disappeared.

"Is there a man on these properties so innocent as to believe that the companies would not welcome the destruction of our organization in this city?" asks Editor Bland of the Union Leader. "Could the companies wish for anything better than disorderly meetings, dissension and destructive tactics at contract time, when our members should be a unit in promoting their welfare? Would it not be to the interest of the companies to have our organizations out of the way in Chicago, so that they might institute welfare plans, reduce wages, increase the hours of labor and eliminate the good conditions that our union has brought us?

"There is no question if the plans of the destructionists were carried out the desire of the companies would be realized and our membership would have been up against a real fight."—Exchange.

GOOD TOBACCO GREW ON MANHATTAN SOIL.

Used as Exchange Medium.

Among the many interesting and almost forgotten things about early New York days, revealed through a careful investigation of old records, is the fact that Manhattan Island, under the Dutch, gave promise of becoming a very prosperous tobacco-growing center.

"Tobacco plantations often became causes for court business, and on June 13, 1640, Thomas Hall proceeded in court for slander against the Rev. Everardus Bogardus, because the latter had accused Hall of having rendered the minister's tobacco unsalable. As was often done, the matter was referred to arbitration and must have been settled out of court, since nothing more is heard about it. A more serious case was that of Dr. and Councillor Jo-it.

"Tobacco finds continual mention in the records as a medium of exchange. It was considered as currency and frequently put up as security in commercial transactions, showing that it must have been produced regularly and in great quantities. The absence of metallic money and especially of paper currency (an invention of more recent times) rendered absolutely necessary the substitution of a generally acceptable commodity of reasonably stable value as a medium of payment, and tobacco, owing to its generally stable value, was much preferred. Even Director Kieft, on Feb. 17, 1639, had offered Isaac Allerton to accept tobacco from him in place of corn or money."—Exchange.

How the worker can "spot" bad investments is told by the Treasury Department in a new booklet on "How Other People Get Ahead." Twelve danger signs by which the small investor can detect fraud and risk are given by the department as follows:

1. Mining stock. The best looking mine in the world may prove a "white elephant." Mining is a very expensive undertaking and the risks are unusually great. There is a saying that "a mine is a hole where fools dump their money."

There are many good mining investments, of course, but this branch of the investment market is generally not for those who work for and depend upon wages.

2. Oil stock. Drilling for oil is costly. The hazards are great. Oil investments are speculative and in a class with mining investments.

3. In the wake of every important discovery or invention there comes a host of schemes—"airplanes," "radio," "wireless." The promoters of these may have only the best of intentions, but frequently their enthusiasm is about all they have to sell. Look before you leap.

4. Investment in "real estate" situated in some distant place is some times as dangerous as mining stock. People have been known to buy swamps advertised as "sea-shore frontage." Know what you are buying before you invest.

5. "Land development" schemes frequently do not pan out. At best it is a long time before any money comes in from sales. Investment in "new companies" that are going to "sell by mail" should be generally avoided.

6. Patent rights and processes distribution. It is rarely the patentee who makes the money.

7. "New manufacturing methods" should always be closely checked and investigated.

8. An investment requiring a quick decision is often a fake. If there isn't sufficient time to "sleep over it," something is probably wrong.

9. "Special inducements" in cash discounts or stock bonuses urging you to be one of the first to invest are suspicious symptoms.

10. "Tips" alleged to land you "on the ground floor" are rarely to be taken. Those who are "on the ground floor" will monopolize the opportunity.

11. "Playing the stock market on margin" and all other forms of speculation are decidedly not for the small investor. Beware of the "bucket shop." If you buy stocks outright for investment do so through a member of a legitimate exchange.

12. Stock in "mail order companies" being organized with promises based on what others have done rarely turn out well.

REPORT OF ORGANIZER

York, Pa., Aug. 6, 1923.

Since my last report I have visited most of the cigar towns in the counties of York and Lancaster, Pa., and find all the cheap districts working. Some of the big chain shops were reported dull and in a few cases their hands were laid off, but when these chain shops laid off their hands, other chain shops put the cigarmakers to work, so by this operation all cigarmakers have been working and the trade has been reported fairly good.

The unorganized cigarmakers have not made any effort to get better prices for making cigars, only shifting from one shop to another when they thought the job was a little better, but they soon find that they are in the same old rut in every shop they go to, for there is no standard of prices for work and without an organization there will be no standard. I have visited many meetings of other trades and spoke on patronage of the Union label and if they would respond as they should many of the small label shops would have work for more cigarmakers and it would tend to raise the prices in other shops and possibly in the whole belt.

A good number of the workers are beginning to see if they want to better their conditions they must have an organization just as well as the employers have one to represent their interests and the workers must co-operate along the lines of patronizing the products of the fair employer who is willing to give something of a fair wage to the worker thus helping him or her to keep up a decent standard of living.

When union men and women realize this and will call for and insist on getting union label goods then there will be more union label cigar shops in every district and more union products of every kind sold. By persistent effort the unorganized of these districts may be aroused and in the near future look up and organize and help to get their share of the profits of production.

WM. A. McCABE,
Organizer.

CORRESPONDENCE

Boston, Mass.
Does wages paid represent cost of production? One pound=16 ounces. One yard=3 feet, the same whether used or sold in Boston or San Francisco. But in wages paid there is a great difference in the fields of wealth production between the east and west, north and south of this country.

Why should this be? Is the pound weight or the yard stick of more importance than the wealthy producers, universally, in measuring values and commodities?

CHAS. F. CLAUS.

Washington, D. C., July, 1923.
To Organized Labor, Greeting:

In their attempt to disrupt the labor movement, our enemies resorted to every means within their power, not the least of which was the creation of an army of 6,000,000 unemployed workers.

The object in bringing about this condition was a reduction of our earning power, so that a lower standard of earning and living conditions would be forced upon us.

Through the solidarity of the workers and their loyalty to each other, all of the schemes to disrupt our movement were defeated, and we are now in position to go ahead and regain any ground that may have been lost during that trying period.

THE BEST WAY TO DO THIS IS TO USE OUR GREAT POWER OF PURCHASE.

All trade unionists must see to it that none of the money which comes to them through their trade union is spent in aiding our enemies; it must be spent only to employ union workers.

When a purchase of any kind is to be made, demand the union label, the shop card and the working button.

INSURANCE.

Highest Form of Contracts.

Editor's Note.—The average man's knowledge of insurance is hedged with the single fact of cash benefits at his death, for the payment of a stipulated monthly or yearly sum. What the basis of insurance is, what its fundamental principles are, are matters beyond the average citizen, even if he be a policyholder. Thomas W. Blackburn, secretary and counsel of the American Life Convention, gives herewith some facts that every man, policyholder or not, should know.

A fiduciary financial institution, which, for three-quarters of a century in America, has withstood every assault, weathered every panic, outlived every epidemic and survived wars, experiments, pestilence, litigation and legislation, has earned, deserves, and should enjoy and maintain the respect and confidence of every right-thinking American.

There are individual banks, firms and families whose record is phenomenal in the length of service that they have given the people of America, but there are no commercial undertakings in this young land which can parallel the marvelous record of Legal Reserve Life Insurance.

It is the one co-operative corporate entity, which stands upon so firm a foundation that it could, and did, face every form of disaster without impairment, reorganization or revolution. No other form of commercial endeavor has so entrenched itself in principle, practice and accomplishment. There have been a very few mismanaged and unsuccessful legal reserve life insurance companies. There will be others. But the only possible excuse for failure, whether large or small, is weakness of management or corrupt manipulation. The probability of both is reduced to the minimum by supervision and publicity.

Safe as Government.

Based upon an immutable law of life, as it has been mathematically determined, Life Insurance on the legal reserve plan is safe as an established government. From the serene heights of a monument builded upon faithful application of the principles of average and co-operation, Legal Reserve Life Insurance shines forth in all its beauty of beneficence.

Widows and orphans praise it. Capital and Labor alike are its beneficiaries. Embarrassed business men and hard-pressed debtors find it the friend indeed in time of need. Estates builded and conserved, proclaim its value. Children educated and youths started in professions or business, mark its onward course. Wherever it is called upon for service, whether in financing the farmer, building and acquiring the home, protecting a business, tiding over a debtor or saving an estate from the sheriff, providing for old age or covering loss of employment, without discount, debate or delay, life insurance performs its great duties.

The life insurance contract is the highest form of agreement thus far devised by man. It is the only gainful undertaking which is not based upon the relation of gain and loss. Every other character of commercial advantage contemplates loss on one side, if there be gain on the other, in every step of every transaction. Legal Reserve Life Insurance is a recurring succession of gains.

Actuarially, Legal Reserve Life Insurance is a system of equations. Theoretically, every persistent policyholder in a Legal Reserve Life Insurance Company lives out his expectancy. The premiums he pays on his policy, increased by compound interest, are the mathematical equivalent of the sum payable at the maturity of the contract plus expenses and, in case of mutual companies, the refunds misnamed dividends or dividend additions.

Out No Money.

When a policy matures by its terms, the net premium payments and accretions are returned to the contributing policyholder or his beneficiary. Mathematically considered, the company is out no money, the policyholder has had protection throughout the term of the contract equivalent in money to his payments year by year, and the beneficiary is enriched by the amount paid by the company in settlement of the policy obligation. The community where the beneficiary resides has the amount received by the beneficiary added to its aggregate wealth. There is no loss anywhere along the line, for each party to the contract from the agent who solicits and the medical examiner who examines, to the community of which the beneficiary is a part has been compensated.

It will be urged by actuaries that there is a loss of the producing power of a life, where the policy matures by death, but this is an inaccuracy. When a man dies, another takes his place. In the economy of human life, death is merely the fruition of life. Death is not a property loss. In both these instances, there is only a partial or complete recoupment to the individual policyholder. The loss of time and the destruction of physical property are losses to the community which it is impossible to restore and for which compensation to such community is impossible.

An Individual Worth.

The distinctive characteristic of the life insurance contract is its power to extend his estate beyond the life of the policyholder, and maintain its integrity, in spite of the certainty of death. It differs from every other form of indemnity, because it is assurance against the happening of a contingency certain to occur. A fire or accident policy may mature as a claim or may not. These forms of indemnity are based upon the probabilities of accidents, and the premiums are calculated from the averages of experience. The life contract is a continuing assurance of indemnity against an event certain, and under the law of averages, inevitable, at a fixed date, though not determinable in advance as to the individual maturity.

In 1905, during the New York investigations, and for several years following, the citadel of Life Insurance, then represented by the largest aggregate of fiduciary capital which enterprise and genius had ever accumulated, in a single line of undertaking, was attacked by legislation, by demagogues, by self-seeking and self-serving interests of great wealth and by singular and ingenious malevolence. The newspapers of this great country, the muckrakers in nearly all the magazines, the statesmen big and little in states and nation, and the President of the United States, united in a sentiment of antagonism. Many persons were frightened away from the beneficent and misused institution. Attempts were made in courts, in legislatures, in Congress, in combinations of wealth, and by the most mendacious propaganda, to undermine and overthrow this tremendous fortress of protection.

Withstood War.

It survived and stood forth after a ten-year war of utmost violence unscathed and supremely solvent. No Bank of England, or Federal Reserve System, would have maintained its financial integrity against the attacks made upon the institution of Life Insurance. Not one policy contract was repudiated, scaled or postponed by reason of this unparalleled situation.

This magnificent demonstration of the soundness of the principles, the safety of the trust funds, the perpetuity of the organized beneficence which American genius and human prescience devised and constructed, is the most phenomenal commercial fact in all history.

When the United States became involved in the World War, the integrity of the life insurance contract was again assailed. Contracts based upon peace conditions without anticipation of war losses, were confronted with dire possibilities, before the Armistice brought about a cessation of the slaughter of policyholders, a world-wide epidemic of influenza was experienced and the normal mortality of the companies was doubled and in many instances redoubled. Again the institution demonstrated its marvelous perfection as a business enterprise and not a single contract was repudiated or a loss scaled.

The United States assumed an ultimate possible liability of more than $40,000,000,000 upon the lives of its soldiers and sailors, charging the legal reserve net premium, only, for its proposed indemnity. The greatest and richest government of the world stood back of its contracts and based its ability to meet unheard of possible losses upon legal reserve life insurance principles and the American mortality tables with 3½ per cent interest. Again the foundation of the most wonderful business in the world was shown to be sound. The government has carried its tremendous risk without adding a dollar to the net premium rates fixed by the experience of the companies, assuming voluntarily the expense element, but standing safely upon the mortality tables and the reserves which life insurance has made the groundwork of its great growth and its history and beneficence.

Must Be Sold.

In passing, it may be further remarked, that the government has demonstrated anew a fact long known to the life insurance companies. The fact that life insurance is not bought but must be sold. The forty billions written under the pressure of war opportunities and conditions, has lapsed to much less than one billion in volume, because in the parlance of the business, the policies of life insurance taken by soldiers and sailors were not sold. The personal appeal secures and saves the policy and protects the beneficiary. Advertising, oratory and statistics are ineffective unless they are followed up by the solicitation of the life insurance salesman.

The life insurance companies of America with all their aggressiveness have succeeded in writing only about $27,000,000,000 or ordinary legal reserve life insurance, which means about 9,000,000 policyholders. These figures do not include some $9,000,000,000 of industrial life insurance on perhaps 7,000,000 policyholders. There are not less than 50,000,000 of insurable people in the United States and every day a new host reaches the insurable age. "The field is white unto the harvest but the laborers are few," compared to the opportunities for successful soliciting.

The importance, yea the necessity, of Legal Reserve Life Insurance, is now an accepted fact. The unhappy experience of fraternal societies and assessment associations, has brought home to insurers everywhere, the value of the legal reserve system. All temporary make-shifts have gone, or will go later, into the discard, and Life Insurance as exemplified by the old line legal reserve companies, is recognized as the safe, scientific and supremely satisfactory plan of protection and indemnity for men, women, children, partnerships and corporations.

Some Basic Facts.

Summarizing it may be said:

1. The plan, principles, purposes and achievements of Legal Reserve Life Insurance entitles it to public confidence.
2. The contract is unilateral, unique and equitable. It is a contract by the terms of which all interested parties enjoy gains.
3. No other commercial undertaking approaches the Legal Reserve Life Insurance contract in character or performance.
4. Legal Reserve Life Insurance is the highest achievement of human commercial endeavor and the only fiduciary financial undertaking, which has demonstrated the possibility of creating a co-operative corporation, whose solvency is not endangered by panics, pestilence and pernicious propaganda.
5. Legal Reserve Life Insurance not only protects families and postpones bankruptcy, but it extends estates beyond the life of the builders and safeguards their property against the catastrophe of death.

6. Legal Reserve Life Insurance is so simple in principle that it cannot be misunderstood and therefore both the wise and the simple can appreciate its purpose and understand its requirements.

7. Legal Reserve Life Insurance takes no toll at the maturity of the contract, contests no honest claim, seeks out lost beneficiaries and pays all obligations within a day after the facts of same are established.

8. Legal Reserve Life Insurance is available to every healthy human being, upon terms within reach of the humblest, and coming to the door of desolation, it enters the chamber of grief, bearing the oil of consolation, burning in the lamp of hope.

9. Legal Reserve Life Insurance adapts its beneficence to the necessities of humanity, as does no other financial institution.

10. Legal Reserve Life Insurance is the handmaiden of thrift and the protector of home and family and business associates.

11. And the soliciting agent of Legal Reserve Life Insurance is the genuine I. W. W.—Insistent Welfare Worker of the World—who is derided by the procrastinating husband and father, but welcomed by the bereaved widow and orphan. He is the most helpful colporteur of co-operation, and to him and his kind America is indebted for the greatest thing in this world of struggle and selfish strife—the Institution called Legal Reserve Life Insurance.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states:
"No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members, who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also as per Section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show.
If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study Section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member, if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted herein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues for 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such member shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $8.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter, in the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments and be entitled to the full benefits.

Four—Any member initiated under Section 61a securing employment in a factory using the label or which pays the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 180. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessment levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half-inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue in color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

The first paragraph of Section 2 of the Constitution shall read:

The next convention of the Cigarmakers' International Union shall be held on the second Monday in August, 1923.

Chicago Convention. The Chicago convention is now history. This issue of our Official Journal contains the daily proceedings. The convention was historical and epoch-making. The delegates sensed their responsibility and discharged their duties in a manner that challenges and commands the admiration, thanks, and approval of popular vote. Facts and figures were presented to the delegates. They saw the absolute necessity of the application of new and efficient legislation, and they had the vision and the courage of their convictions and have given you beyond a doubt a constitution which remedies past evils and meets existing conditions and necessities. The delegates developed and displayed a fraternal spirit and determination that permitted of no compromise and no waiving of determination, to such an extent that at the close of the convention, among other things, I said:

"On the opening day of this convention I said that the organized cigar makers as well as the unorganized expected a ray of hope to emanate from this convention. By your action here in the last two weeks you have supplied that ray of hope, that encouragement that shall awaken the hopes and rekindle the spirit of not only the organized, but the unorganized. There has never been a convention held before in my time where a greater vision and courage have been displayed than in this convention. I compliment you upon the manly, straightforward, determined actions you have taken in this convention. I feel that if you will go home and among your constituents see to it that the actions taken here in this convention are ratified you will have further performed a duty to those now in the organization and those we expect to bring in—and will bring because of the action taken here—and you will have completed and rounded out in full a splendid performance, for which I thank you heartily."

The splendid work so ably and so fearlessly accomplished by your representatives needs your endorsement in order to finally complete the work so auspiciously commenced and in order to round out a necessarily changed constitution, which, when finally adopted by popular vote, will lead to unquestioned success in the matter of organization of the Cigar Makers' International Union.

To completely insure our success, every action taken by the convention reference restrictions in our laws and the death benefit, should be endorsed and approved.

The new death benefit plan Reinsurance. is simple and plain and there is nothing complicated or beyond the understanding of any member. Briefly, the plan provides for insurance compulsory to the extent of $100 funeral benefit and at the basic dues of 40 cents a week. All present or prospective members may voluntarily take in addition to the compulsory $100 in multiples of $100 up to $500 at an increase in the dues of 5 cents a week for each $100 additional.

The basic dues covering all benefits and all other activities and carrying $100 insurance are 40 cents. If the member takes $100 additional or a total of $200 his dues will be 45 cents; if he takes $200 additional or a total of $300 his dues will be 50 cents; if he takes $300 additional or a total of $400 his dues will be 55 cents; and if he takes $400 additional or a total of $500 his dues will be 60 cents.

The plan is compulsory only as far as the $100 is concerned and voluntary after that amount. (Those over seventy years of age or totally disabled will be treated in another article.) Under this plan every member that is now entitled to or elects to take $500 may, without any additional dues to what he is now paying, retain his claim. If he elects to take less insurance he pays less dues or according to the amount of insurance he takes.

The plan also provides that any present member immediately becomes entitled to $100 or such sum up to $500 as he may elect. If misfortune overtakes him the very next day his family will realize on his insurance; he does not have to wait for from two to twenty years as he does under the present plan.

The plan proposed accomplishes two objects: It positively guarantees the payment of all accrued benefits at no additional cost to the member and it permits of an optional clause for any amount over $100 and up to $500 to not only new members but to old members at a rate of dues based upon amount of insurance taken.

The rate we pay the insurance company is on the step by step plan and is based on the present average age of the membership which is forty-eight years, and we pay to the insurance company $1.51 per annum for every $100 that our members are insured for. If the restrictions in the constitution are removed by popular vote the organization of new members will go forward with leaps and bounds. This will rapidly bring the average age away below forty-eight and if it drops to, we will say, an average age of thirty-eight years, the cost will be $1.14 per annum for each $100. If it drops to an average age of thirty years, which is within the realms of possibility, the cost would be $1.02 per annum for each $100 insurance.

The rates under which we shall be insured under the reinsurance plan proposed are based upon American mortality rates. They have stood the test of time, and consequently these companies cannot fail, and our death benefit under this plan is made practically sure, while figures in the address I made to the convention on the opening day, show that under the old fraternal plan in vogue it would ultimately lead to failure and repudiation of death benefits.

You have everything to gain and positively nothing to lose if you endorse the reinsurance death benefit plan proposed. If you reject it you have nothing to gain and everything to lose in the matter of the payment of death benefit.

The Death Benefit Feature. There are deep-seated in the minds of many of the old time members a feeling concerning the death benefit and a desire to retain and make sure of the payment of these benefits.

Immediately after the Cleveland Convention, 1920, your President started to gather facts and figures for the purpose of presenting a plan whereby the payment of death benefits would not only be retained intact but safeguarded and made sure in the future as well.

The present or old plan of fraternal insurance has in nearly all cases proved wanting and has resulted in one failure after another. To make sure of our benefits and avoid repudiation of any death benefit guaranteed it became necessary to change to the reinsurance under the group plan without physical examination with a going insurance company organized and doing business under the federal and state insurance laws and on a basis that makes failure practically impossible.

To have continued under the old fraternal system meant failure in the end and the loss of our death benefits. The figures in your President's report prove this. To adopt the new plan without any increase in cost makes your benefits absolutely sure.

The new plan presented is the result of careful study and investigation. After having the plan perfected as best I could I presented it to your International Executive Board and they unanimously endorsed it. It was then presented to the Committee on Constitution and they unanimously endorsed it. It then went to the delegates and they unanimously endorsed it. It is now up to the popular vote, and if you consult your own best interests and you want to retain your claim on death benefit beyond any doubt or failure let your verdict also be unanimous for the adoption of this plan.

Democracy on Trial. The International Union has had the initiative and referendum, the popular vote, in some form almost from its inception. It has always taken justifiable pride in the fact that it is the most democratic organization of any kind in the whole world.

Our democracy, the popular vote, is now to be put to the supreme test. The radical, heroic, and necessary changes in our constitution proposed by the delegates are important and challenge the wisdom and soundness of this system.

It can be said that the popular vote has always been keenly interested and has universally given its approval to all necessary changes that make for the good of the majority and the welfare and stability of the International Union. It has been said that the masses as a rule are loath to make important changes, that they are more inclined to ride along in the old rut. Happily this has not been true of the members of the International Union who have heretofore measured up to the high standard of unselfish devotion to the cause and have manfully and sturdily given assent to changes made necessary in our constitution by evolution in the industry. There is no question that measured by the past the membership at large will give their unanimous endorsement to the changes in the constitution submitted by the intelligent action of the delegates, and which are so necessary for not only the present membership but for our continued welfare and the organization of the unorganized.

Popular Vote.

Your delegates to the convention, after listening to and digesting the facts concerning the cigar industry, squarely met the issue with the required and necessary changes in the constitution. They manfully discharged their full duty and obligation. It is now up to the popular vote. The responsibility of dealing with the things necessary to our own and our fellow-workers' well-being now rests in your hands. Of the result there can be no question if the members will carefully and painstakingly read the address of the International President, presented to the convention and published in full in this issue. The delegates were confronted and you are now confronted with conditions that require changes in the laws. Read of the conditions and your vote cannot help but sustain that of your representatives in the convention.

Members Over
of Age.

In view of the fact that we have a number of members who are over 70 years of age and that there is no insurance value under the American mortality rates for those who have reached and passed 70 years it was thought best that we limit our new plan of insurance to members between 15 and 70 years of age.

However, it was decided and agreed that the International Union as such, is to take care of the members of 70 years and over. They will continue to pay the present dues or 60 cents a week and whenever they cross the great divide the International Union will pay to their beneficiaries the amount due. This will continue until the few remaining members who are over 70 years have passed away. There will then be no such class.

Total Disability Members.

In order to keep the insurance rate down at the lowest possible figure the convention decided that we should carry the totally disabled and insane members as heretofore, that is, under the plan presented for your approval and vote.

The International Union is to pay the total disability claims and the claims of insane members. We, however, continue to pay to the insurance company the premium on the totally disabled or insane member until he dies and we then collect from the insurance company the total amount of death benefit the member would be entitled to, which amount goes into the funds of the International Union.

Nearly all open-shop manufacturers and especially those of any size are insuring their employees under the group plan of insurance. They know the value of this plan. Organized labor must go them one better. We must not only continue to pay insurance money but do it upon a fair and equitable basis. In the case of the non-unionist whose employer insures him, if he quits his job or goes on strike, he immediately loses his insurance. Under the plan of the union a member who leaves the trade, quits his job or goes on strike may continue to pay the premium and retain his hold on the insurance benefit.

The voting on the amendments to the constitution, by direction of the convention, will commence November 15 and end December 15. The amendments to be acted upon, however, will be submitted to local unions some time in advance in order that these questions may be before the membership for study and consideration, although the voting cannot commence until November 15.

When we started in to develop a reinsurance group plan I invited one insurance company after another to figure upon our business. They came in and had a pleasant chat and said: "You will hear from us later." But I never heard from them. They seemingly don't want the business of trade-unionists. Being open-shoppers themselves and in league with open-shoppers and big interests they apparently won't insure trade-unionists under the group reinsurance plan. I was diligently searching for a reliable company for six months before I finally found a reliable company that would do business with us.

There was scarcely a delegate in the convention who was not heartily in favor of the new plan of insurance. There were many, however, who were concerned as to details. The details will have to be worked out. They are plain and simple. The details need not concern us in any way. The main point is the principle involved and the desirability and necessity of making the change. When that once goes over, the details will be worked out to the satisfaction of all concerned.

It is claimed that of the fraternal insurance and assessment plan companies and organizations over 3,000 have failed. All fraternal and insurance associations that have survived are rapidly changing to the old line life insurance, sure and sound plan of insurance.

THINGS TO BE REMEMBERED.

That the company we propose to reinsure with can not quit as long as we pay the premiums.

That the International Union through its membership can quit at the end of any one year.

That at the end of a year the Union can change its own laws and can negotiate changes, modifications and alterations with the company.

That a year's experience will enable us to see defects, if any, which we may then correct to suit the wishes of the membership at large.

Fellow Workmen:

It is the sense and the unanimous conclusion of your International Executive Board that the great problem before the International Union is to remove all restrictive regulations contained in the Constitution which have prevented its normal and healthy growth. We believe the action of our Convention in amending the Constitution, which is submitted for your approval, will solve the problem.

We are, moreover, confronted with the fact that during the last ten years our total membership has decreased approximately 25%, due largely to restrictions on new memberships, the war, and the depression through which the country has since passed.

On account of the decrease in membership, the death benefits and cost per member have materially increased. It is therefore apparent that with the restrictions removed and our benefits placed upon a scientific basis, together with a zealous campaign for new members on the part of each and every member, the death rate will rapidly decrease.

We therefore earnestly urge as a necessary measure of preservation and the protection of our acquired rights to accrued death benefit the adoption of the Constitution as amended by the Convention.

Fraternally submitted,

REPORTS OF ORGANIZERS

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 8, 1923.

Since my last report some remarkable new developments have taken place. What in my opinion will go on record as the greatest convention in the history of the International Union has adjourned, having accomplished more than I had thought possible in two weeks. After thoroughly investigating each amendment, I cannot find words with which to suitably praise and commend the work of the delegates. I am in hopes that the membership of the International Union will, after due consideration, ratify the much needed amendments to our Constitution as recommended by the convention.

The organization work in the state of Pennsylvania has been progressing slowly, due to the membership watchfully waiting the developments in the convention.

Visited Allentown, Pa., where I addressed the delegates to the District Council Conference of Metal Polishers, Platers and Buffers on the organization work of the Cigar Makers' Int. Union and the assistance we would derive as a result of their demand for the Blue Label when purchasing cigars. I have spoken at many meetings of other trades, hoping to arouse them to the patronage of Union Label cigars and to cooperate with the organization work of the Cigarmakers' Int. Union. I recently addressed a large delegation to the Eastern District Conference Typographical Union on organization work and labels. Since my last report I have been elected vice president of the Philadelphia Central Labor Union, of which I have been a very active member.

As chairman of the committee in charge of Labor day demonstration held in Point Breeze park under the auspices of the Central Labor Union and Allied Trades Unions, addressed the gathering on the aims, purposes, achievements and accomplishments of the workers by reason of the trade union spirit in America.

In conclusion permit me to say that in my humble opinion the new constitution of the Cigarmakers' International Union will make possible the organization of the entire cigar industry.

HARRY GIFFORD.

CORRESPONDENCE

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 8, 1923.

Out of the strife and struggle came the Union Label. It is a sacred gift to us from those early trade unionists who fought fearlessly and unceasingly that the worker that came after them might enter the ranks of labor equipped for future victories. It is a priceless gift of power and helpfulness.

Therefore, we must be guided by the firm conviction that the label is supreme worth to us. Bear in mind that it is the aim of the label to advance all those who toll. It stands for fellowship. It helps to encourage, to inspire, and to uplift; it recognizes no obstacles except neglect.

Most of our troubles come from a tiny seed—indifference. Cease to be careless and neglectful and learn to be constant. CEASE TO BLAME OTHERS. TAKE THE MATTER

HOME TO YOURSELF. Make use of every opportunity given us to advance ourselves through the label.

To those who recognize the true scope and usefulness of the label its value cannot be overestimated. Keep this in mind when spending money and then watch results.

EXPERIENCE WILL REVEAL WHAT EXPLANATION CANNOT. REMEMBER THE VALUE OF THE LABEL IS THE USE WE MAKE OF IT.

Consider the present status of the label and you will readily realize what is the cause. Create desirable conditions. YOUR PURCHASING POWER IS YOUR WEAPON. LEARN TO WIELD IT.

Lancaster, Pa., Sept. 7, 1923.

Dear Sir and Bro.:

Received convention proceedings O. K. Have gone over them with much interest. I wish to congratulate you, the Executive Board and the delegates who made up the 24th Int. convention on the masterly way the earnest members handled a situation that was fast becoming a grave question, that would have taken years to counteract, but the O. B. U.'s were certainly handed a lemon.

There is no question in my mind that great progress was made in those two weeks by the untiring efforts of our representatives. If the remedial legislation enacted and to be submitted for ratification to the membership is ratified, surely real progress will be made towards the organization of the industry. As our present membership is constituted it should be an easy matter to go forward in the building up of our International Union. Let the slogan be: 5,000 more until Jan. 1, 1924.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owning loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members, who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference. Also as per section 146, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member; if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

Notice of the special assessment of $1 on all 30c and 60c members and 50c on Class B members, in compliance with Section 92 (a) of the Constitution, is herewith given. This assessment takes effect Sept. 24, 1923, and may be paid in two weekly installments. New initiates who have not been members for four months are exempt from all assessments. All who join after Sept. 24 are exempt from payment of the September assessment. Class B members do not have to pay any International assessments until they have been members for six months. Forty-cent beneficiary members do not have to pay the special strike fund assessment. Members out of work are not exempt from this assessment.

DECISIONS OF THE PRESIDENT

W. T. Powell appealed against Union 12, Oneida, for paying illegal strike benefit to William Kastner. The evidence shows that Kastner was offered a job but refused to take it on the plea that he was doing housework in the absence of his wife. The appeal was sustained.

IN MEMORIAM

In reporting deaths kindly comply with the following and you will save time and unnecessary work: Give full name, number, date and place of initiation of member. Has member his retiring card? If so, did he pay his dues? This information relates only to such as you can obtain from the records of your own union. If admitted by card, state when and where from, and, in addition, send in such cards, but place in your letter the information necessary, as the letter is filed as a matter of record. Before paying death benefits study Sections 139 to 145, inclusive. Send in a death blank properly filled out for all death benefits paid.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted herein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices, may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues of 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such member shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $8.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter, in the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a securing employment in a factory using the label or which pays the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 180. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessment levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. This label shall be light blue in color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

Proceedings of the Twenty-fourth Convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union

Monday, August 13, Chicago, Ill.

The twenty-fourth convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union was called to order at ten o'clock a. m., Monday, August 13th, in the North Side Turners' Hall, by Mr. Fred Bose, Chairman of the Local Committee on Arrangements.

Mr. H. R. Chapp, President of Local Union No. 14, Chicago, was introduced as temporary chairman, and presided during the opening proceedings. Chairman Chapp welcomed the delegates to the city on behalf of the local movement of Cigar Makers, and expressed his appreciation of the privilege accorded him of presiding for a time over a convention of the International Union. He invited the delegates to take advantage of their presence in the city to visit the parks, various public buildings, museums and bathing beaches.

Hon. C. M. Doty, Assistant Corporation Counsel of the City of Chicago was introduced as a representative of Mayor Dever, and welcomed the delegates officially on behalf of the Mayor. Mr. Doty assured the convention that Mayor Dever would be present were he in the city, and expressed regret that he was absent on a vacation and would not be able to welcome the delegates to the city in person.

Mr. Doty spoke briefly of the advantages to be gained by attending conventions and similar gatherings of people interested in one trade or calling, where they are enabled to interchange views and opinions with regard to the problems they meet in their work. In concluding the speaker expressed the hope that the delegates would take advantage of the hospitality that would be extended them while in the city, and that when they returned to their homes they would have nothing but pleasant recollections of Chicago.

Mr. John Fitzpatrick, President of the Chicago Federation of Labor, was introduced to the convention by Chairman Chapp.

President Fitzpatrick welcomed the convention to the city on behalf of the organized men and women of Chicago. He expressed the pleasure he experienced in being able to speak for all these organized men and women who were not able to assemble at the convention and speak for themselves and assure the delegates of the friendship they felt for the cigar makers. Speaking of the members of the Cigar Makers' Union as organizers, President Fitzpatrick said:

"The Cigar Makers, it seems to me, is a very difficult group to address, because in my early experience in the trade union movement I regarded the members of the Cigar Makers' Union as organizers, not only for their own trade and industry, but they were willing to give their time and effort in every direction so that the men and women of labor might be brought out of hopelessness and despair, might see some light, because the movement was presented to them through the cigar makers to a very large extent.

"Men who are interested in that way are qualified to keep pace with the times, and when somebody comes to talk to them on the proposition it seems like carrying coals to New Castle. It is well, however, to interchange thoughts and ideas, and because I express a thought that is in my mind it may create a thought in the mind of some other man, and he gives expression to his thought, and because of that it kindles a thought in some other man's mind. In that way we grow and develop our ability to think, and that is, I believe, one of the big things in the labor movement—to get the men and women of labor to thinking, because as sure as we get them thinking we get them acting, and the minute we get them acting they will do things in their own behalf.

"All of our activities seem to be too much in the other fellow's favor; we give so much of our ability and our skill and the very best that is in us in the interest of the other fellow, whereas, if we would apply a little of it to our own interests and needs we would be able to accomplish a great deal more than we have done.

There is one thing, it seems to me, that might be helpful in getting an understanding of the problem as we see it here in Chicago. The trade union movement of America has been through a severe contest, and when people talk about labor organizations indulging in conspiracies and things of that kind, why, they fade into insignificance when compared with the conspiracies of the big bosses. When they undertake to do those things they are able to set aside their differences, their prejudices and anything that might keep them apart; they make up their minds they are going to do a job, they set about doing it and they get results."

President Fitzpatrick proceeded to discuss the campaign for the open shop that was launched by the employers in recent years, and stated that the purpose of the campaign was to break the backbone of the labor movement. He then proceeded to point out the conspiracies entered into by the employers in their efforts to disrupt the trade union movement. He described conditions in five basic industries, those concerned with food, clothing, coal, transportation and building, and discussed in an interesting manner the result of strikes in some of these industries. He asserted that none of the strikes had been really lost and that none of the employing groups had really achieved a victory, and to illustrate that point called attention to the fact that in the packing industry some of those who had inherited great wealth and had been at the head of great establishments had been eliminated from the business and had been obliged to sacrifice many of their privileges and possessions.

President Fitzpatrick then dealt with the strike of the railway shopmen, and asserted that although the workers had received a setback they had not been defeated; that since the strike a majority of the railroads had signed agreements with the employees and that those that had not had suffered as much or more than had the organizations of the workers. He called particular attention to the fact that the government had gone to the assistance of the roads and had for practically the first time sued out an injunction in a labor dispute.

Speaking of conditions in Chicago, President Fitzpatrick gave a brief account of the troubles encountered by the building trades as a result of the Landis award and described the manner in which the trades had been divided by the award. He stated that the situation had been saved only by the fact that Chicago had been enjoying a building boom.

The general labor movement and the efforts that have been made to disrupt it was discussed by the speaker. He called attention to the failure of these efforts in the main, but pointed out that the public has been led to believe by the press and by speakers that in many cases labor had suffered severe defeats when, as a matter of fact, there had been no defeat but rather a victory.

Mr. Victor A. Olander, Secretary of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, extended a welcome on behalf of the trade union movement of Illinois. In describing the movement for which he spoke Secretary Olander announced that Chicago has a local union that is probably the largest local in the world, that of the Street Car Men; that the state could boast of the largest district organization of the United Mine Workers, District No. 12, while the State Federation, if not the greatest in the country, was at least equal to the best.

Describing the attacks being made on the movement of organized labor in Illinois and elsewhere, Secretary Olander said: "In front of us is the army of reactionary employers seeking to use the forces of government to stay our advance. You are all acquainted with that enemy, and I shall this morning devote no further attention to him. But turn your eyes to the ranks of our own movement and there you will find also that attacks are going on. On one side a group is being formed among professional men, politicians and others which has for its announced purpose, somewhat camouflaged, however, the destruction of the rights and liberties we insist are ours. They say that in the interest of the whole people it is necessary that the trade unions in at least some of their activities be curbed. On the other flank is another, and what to me is a far more dangerous group than the other two, because they appear in the disguise of comrades and friends. They, too, are directing sneers and ridicule and criticism against the legitimate trade union movement and insisting that the whole arrangement is wrong.

"Some may say that the motives of this third group are far different from the motives of the employers who stand on our front, or from the Fascista movement that has appeared on our right, neither of which claim they have any particular interest in the workers. But the third group on our left insist that their ridicule, their fault-finding, their suspicion, their accusations are intended for our good.

"How do they carry out their program? Let us take, for example, a great strike. Representatives of that group appear, as do also representatives in one form or another of the other two groups. The employer points to the officers of your organizations when he seeks to secure desertions and says: 'They are not to be trusted; they are misleading you; they are not doing right.' And he has a great industrial spy agency covering every part of the country whose paid duty it is to come into our midst on such occasions and there destroy our confidence in one another and convince the members—how they do not care—that something is wrong with our methods, that something is wrong with our leaders, that something is wrong with our organization.

"And on the right flank comes this other movement echoing the employers, with the same kind of fault-finding. And on the left flank come the men who parade as communists, if that word suits them, or as I. W. W., or if that does not suit them they talk of amalgamation and so on. They use the same tactics to arouse suspicion in our ranks that do the other two movements. Men under such circumstances may come to me and say their motives are different. I say I do not care what their motives are when their act is the same and the effect will be the same, and if we listen it will be our destruction in either of the three cases.

"I am referring to the third group with the greatest emphasis because they give me the greatest concern; not because they are the strongest, but because there are things in their philosophy and in the position they occupy in our movement which make some of even the most intelligent among us give ear to their blandishments. It is the talk of the One Big Union, that it is impossible for comparatively small groups of individuals to move forward; that humanity is a huge mass of clay that must be fashioned by the fingers of the more intelligent among us. That is the theory upon which the Kansas Industrial Court is based. That institution is organized for the alleged benefit of society and it is held the individual interests of the workers must be subordinated when in any way they clash with what for the moment appears to be the public good. That is the underlying thought in all this organization."

Secretary Olander proceeded to point out that the trade union movement is quite the reverse of the movement he alluded to, that the trade union movement looks upon each man as an individual entity and takes the position that the good of society can only be advanced by promoting the good of that individual; that it urges people to get together on the basis of natural association as they meet in their daily life and come in contact with each other and determine what is best for the individuals among them and then determine on that basis what is best for the mass.

He pointed out that those who preach in favor of mass organization take their cue from Europe in every instance, and then described the conditions of labor in our own country and in other countries. He asserted that conditions were immeasurably better in our country, as is evidenced by the flow of immigration to our shores.

As a concrete illustration of the point he sought to bring out, Secretary Olander spoke of the organization of seamen in America and the organizations of seamen in other countries, and called attention to the fact that of all these organizations the one in our country alone has been able to secure such legislation as the Seamen's Act, which rescued the seamen of America, and the seamen of other countries while in our ports, from virtual slavery. He stated that this work was accomplished by a comparatively small organization and against the bitter opposition of the powerful shipping interests in this and other countries. He also called attention to the affiliation of the International Transport Workers' Federation with the Third International; to the results that followed a strike of the longshoremen and the seamen in several countries, and asserted that the only seamen's organization in Europe that remained intact following the strike was the British Seamen's Union, and that organization had taken no part in the strike.

In concluding this portion of his address Secretary Olander said: "The trade union idea, that of getting together in the easiest possible way, along the line of least resistance, on the basis of the day's work and daily contact with each other is, I believe, the one that will lead safely onward along the road or progress. That does not mean, by the way, that trades may not amalgamate with each other; it means that the decision should be left to those trades, to the men and women within those trades and should not be determined by any body claiming to be a superior organization standing above them. It should be a development based upon free will from among the general membership, and not a moulding by the fingers of those who claim to be more intelligent than the rest of us."

International President George W. Perkins was introduced by the temporary chairman, and upon taking the gavel to preside over the remainder of the session extended the thanks and appreciation of the delegates to each of the speakers who had so warmly welcomed them to the city and who had offered them valuable information and cooperation. Speaking specifically of the address of President Fitzpatrick he said:

"There is a deep reason in some of the things the President of the Chicago Federation of Labor has said. There is a crisis in the labor movement, but what of it? The labor movement is able to and will take care of itself in this and any other crisis that may confront it. Of that there is no question in my mind.

"How is it some of the things he has called to your attention can happen in this enlightened day? There is only one reason. The big interests and the privileged few since the beginning of time have seen to it that the working men are kept divided and kept fighting each other instead of fighting the people and the conditions they should fight. The sooner we stop hating each other and unite our interests in one compact, solid whole in defense of working men and women and fight for their interests the better it will be for us, yes, and the better it will be for society and civilization as well.

"The big interests today are conducted by hired men. Much of the wealth, most of it, is a free gift from the dead past, and the Armours and those of today who inherited this wealth are not running these businesses, they do not know how to run them. Their forbears did, but they don't. For that reason they are hiring men to run them all.

"Why don't we hire those brains and the white collar fellows to work for working men and women? That can be done, it should be done, and that is one of the functions of the trade union movement, to see to it that instead of absent landlordism on the part of the owners much of the wealth they never created is placed in the hands of the working men and women. Do you know that it costs more to sell the product of labor and of agriculture than it does to produce it? Why? Wonderfully improved machinery has made it possible for us to produce more than we can consume on the wages we get; hence the most skillful, the most wonderful organization the world has ever known has had to be perfected, and that is the salesmanship of this country.

"Unless the working men and women of this country organize and peacefully and in a constructive manner step into the breach the capitalist system will fall of its own weight, and with it civilization will be destroyed as well. To my mind there is no danger of such a catastrophe so long as there is a trade union movement. I believe there will always be a constructive trade union movement in this country. The trade union movement was born of necessity, and there is more need for it today than when it was born. The men and women with vision will keep the movement alive until it has accomplished the thing that will take care of working men and women and those who give service—we don't care who they are or what they are—but the trade union movement says that only those who give service have a right to exist, to live and be a part of us."

President Perkins discussed briefly the improvements that have come about in wages and the conditions of work since the advent of the trade union movement, and expressed the utmost confidence in the future success of the movement. In concluding he again thanked the speaker who had so eloquently extended a cordial welcome to the delegates.

President Perkins announced the appointment of the following delegates to serve as a Committee on Credentials: Delegate E. J. O'Neil, Local 14, Chicago; Delegate Ben Asch, Local 251, New York; Delegate Eli Polack, Local 4, Cincinnati.

At 12:30 p. m. the convention was adjourned until 2:30 p. m. of the same day.

First Day—Afternoon Session.

 Incomplete report of Committee on Credentials reports 215 delegates on roll.

E. J. O'NEIL,
 E. M. POLACK,
 BEN ASCH,

Committee.

Delegate O'Neil, chairman of the committee, announced that 215 credentials had been received and acted on, and invited all whose names had not been read by the secretary to appear before the committee at the earliest possible moment.

The report of the committee was adopted and the delegates whose names were read were seated.

President Perkins announced the following appointments:

Clerk of the Convention, F. G. Hopp.

Sergeant-at-Arms, Fred Bose.

Messengers, Frank Wilson and Harry Fulcher.

Delegate Samuel Gompers presided while the President read his report to the convention.

The chairman announced that printed copies of President Perkins' report were ready for distribution to the delegates.

Delegate Braham, Local 87, moved that the report be received, printed copies of it distributed, and that it then be referred to the proper committee. The motion was adopted.

Delegate Moran asked if sufficient copies had been printed to furnish each local union with at least one copy. The chairman announced that 2,000 copies were available for distribution, were in the hall and were to be distributed to the delegates.

The report of the Executive Board was read by Vice-President Stack.

The report was received, referred to the Committee on Constitution, and printed copies of it distributed to the delegates.

President Perkins' Address to the 24th Convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America.

Chicago, Ill., August 13th, 1923.

Greetings:—

In the name of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America I extend with pleasure official welcome and greeting to the delegates to the 24th convention of the C. M. I. U. of A.

The outstanding issues demanding solution rank among the most important that have heretofore confronted and perplexed and now challenge our combined judgment and wisdom to the limit. Overshadowing all other questions and of paramount importance is organization of the wage earners in the cigar and tobacco industry.

During the 1920 Cleveland, Ohio, Convention all material facts concerning the industry, with recommendations, were presented. That convention made substantial advancement in the right direction. It is of paramount importance and vitally necessary that this convention complete the task there commenced. The situation can not take care of itself nor should it be permitted to drift along the river of inaction, hope, and expectation. Stern facts demand courageous and heroic action. It is my purpose to place the facts squarely before you in as plain and logical language as I can and without reservation.

By our presence here we have voluntarily accepted a tremendous responsibility. A stern sense of duty coupled with a true spirit of constructive trade unionism, loyalty to and faith in our organization as well as in ourselves will, I trust, through combined wisdom and judgment blossom into fruitful accomplishment by the enactment of amendments befitting and fully meeting existing conditions.

Any movement, state, fraternal, or economic, to be entirely successful must be fundamentally right. In our economic organizations our laws must conform to existing conditions if we hope to be entirely successful. Our Constitution needs amendments.

The primary, fundamental, original purposes organizing cigar makers into local unions and finally the International Union were to increase wages, shorten hours of labor, and improve working conditions, and for the mutual protection and advancement of all those engaged in the industry. The conditions prevailing at that time, about 60 years ago, and for a long time thereafter, were vastly different from those prevailing today. Hand work was the prevailing system for making cigars. A deep-seated, lasting psychology was developed in and gripped the minds of most cigar makers that cigars could not be produced under any other method.

During the Civil War, '61 to '65, an import tariff law was enacted by the federal government and a heavy import tax placed on cigars. At that time there were between three- and four-thousand cigar makers in the United States. Nearly all cigars consumed here were imported. A demand for home made cigars was soon created. This and other reasons created a shortage of cigar makers. Molds were imported. Manufacturers offered from $1 to $4 a thousand extra to the cigar makers if they would make cigars by mold. The cigar maker, at that time imbued with the false notion that cigars could be made only by hand, refused. Strikes against the molds were precipitated but the molds being in line with natural evolution triumphed.

At one time our Constitution read "All male white cigar makers shall be eligible to membership." The founders of the International Union, building with the best intentions, placed the bar against anyone entering the union except the male white cigar maker. It took years of persistent agitation to remove these bars against complete organization.

Finally the bunch-breaking and roll-up system was introduced. Practically all unions barred the bunch-breaking and roll-up system, and the optional clause permitting the local union to reject such methods remained in the Constitution until the 1920 Cleveland Convention, when it was slightly modified.

As evolution went on rapidly in the industry we have kept the doors of the International Union partly locked against those employed under the evolutionary methods—machines, bunch-breaking, and roll-up system. Later on in this address I shall present to you facts and figures showing to what extent these new processes have progressed.

As our union developed we added to the original primary objects of the union the payment of benefits—strike benefit, sick benefit, death benefit, and out of work benefit. These are incidental to the fundamental cause and reason for organization. The real object confronting us today under an entirely changed condition and methods of manufacturing is how to effectively and permanently bring about more rapid enrollment in a stable organization. That is the more outstanding issue. Anything that interferes, regardless of how much that any one thing or things may be cherished in our hearts and memories, must not stand in the way of the complete organization of the industry. That is a duty imposed upon us. Unless we work for its fulfillment we shall fail to fully meet the situation and the hopeful expectations of our fellow workers.

The real cause of the present condition of the union is the restrictive laws in our Constitution, which in themselves drove men and especially women into the great non-union shops and were a potential force in helping to build them up into large going concerns. These restrictions of all kinds, including the use of the union label, should be removed. They will have to be before we can be entirely successful.

Thomas Edison once said, "The whole world will be run by machinery, but the workers should be the brain behind the machine. Brain power in the form of highly developed mechanical apparatus must supplant man power in all forms of industry." Edison may be right. I think he is. In any event there have been more wonderful inventions and improved machinery put on the market and into operation in the short space of 50 years than were produced and marketed in the previous thousand years.

There are some wonderful inventions and marvelously improved machinery now perfected and patented that are kept in vaults and cold storage for the economic reason that if put into use it would send billions of dollars worth of expensive machinery to the scrap heap. Inventions and improvements are being made so rapidly that they can not be used without upsetting the whole present plan of production and distribution.

No power on earth can stop the at least gradual introduction and use of improved machinery and progressive methods of production. Any effort in that direction will react against those who attempt it. Our own condition proves that our efforts at restriction were futile and ineffective and injurious. Without an exception every organization since the beginning of the factory system that has attempted to restrict the use of improved machinery and improved methods of production has met with defeat.

Progressive evolution in industry in this enlightened age will reach its normal level. There are no laws of restriction at the disposal of the wage earners that can successfully stem the tide of evolution in industry, and the organization which attempts to do so brings disaster upon itself. It is true that the highly skilled when organized were able to maintain wages and conditions up to the point where an improved machine was brought on the scene. In all cases where the skilled workers have embraced improved machinery and organized those who work the machine they have proved uniformly successful in maintaining their organization, wages, and hours of labor.

We must shape our actions to conform to plans and methods that will enable union manufacturers to operate under modern means of production. We must in addition cooperate in an effort to save the now frightful waste in industry and thus enable competent union manufacturers to pay good wages.

The proper helpful methods applied now will lift the organization above the clutches of inertia and will enable it to renew its strength, quicken its active helpfulness and will place it in a position where it can more readily and more effectually adjust wages, regulate working hours and shop conditions, and place the wage earners on a higher and better living and social plane where they can more readily develop and enjoy a more equitable and a better material, intellectual, moral, and spiritual state of existence.

Wages.

Regular, uninterrupted employment is predicated upon the wage earners' ability to consume. Unemployment is caused by underconsumption and not overproduction, hence wages are of basic importance. Unless the rate of wages is raised to a point that will enable the workers to consume the bulk of what they produce our economic system will crumble and fall to pieces.

Observation and a study of recorded facts has convinced me that it isn't skill or the character of the work so much as it is the spirit of solidarity that makes for good wages and better working conditions.

All wage earners, skilled or unskilled, are entitled to and must receive an adequate wage while working at reasonable hours and under decent shop conditions. Otherwise society and civilization can not properly function, and stand in mortal danger of being destroyed. It is the duty of the Cigar Makers' International Union to raise wages and shorten the hours to a point where all wage earners will receive not only a good wage but their full share of the value of the product. To accomplish this we must first organize the industry.

Can we organize with the present restrictions in the constitution? Answer to this is recorded in the facts and figures which will later follow. I hold that the sick and death benefits are not the cause of our present numerically unsatisfactory state of organization. The restrictions in our constitution are more largely responsible than any of the benefits. The benefits have helped to keep us together despite the other material drawbacks in the constitution that have held us back. The sick and death benefit features have been seized upon as an alibi by those who have failed to join the International Union and as an excuse, by some who are trying to tear us down, for our lack of progress in the line of organization.

In an address I made to the Baltimore Convention in 1912 I pointed out that when we were working under the low dues plan with no benefits the membership fluctuated from the high point during the so-called good times and dropped nearly to zero during periods of stagnation and unemployment. I also showed that with the commencement of the payment of high dues and the chain of benefits the membership never receded during periods of depression.

The real reason for the loss of membership recently and the slackened pace of organization work was the rapid development of the bunch-breaking and roll-up system, the bunch breaking machines, the suction table, and our refusal to take those so employed into the union on an equality.

Trade Unions.

The trade union movement is the greatest living potential factor in the regulation of our economic well-being. It can not properly function unless predicated upon a solid foundation with broad and rational operating lines. Man can not feed or protect himself with his hands tied behind his back. Neither can a trade union grow and prosper with its doors of ingress barred with restrictive laws. I am sure that it is our duty and that it is your purpose and intention to place the International Union in a position where it can be even more useful and helpful in the future than it has been in the recent past. We all must realize that it has outgrown its present restrictive laws and that it needs up-to-date laws consistent with changed conditions and new problems which must be solved. Small union shops are rapidly becoming a memory. Bring them back! The trade is crystalizing into large shops, chain shops, chain stores, and trusts. We must change our course and shape our laws to meet these changed conditions. Many towns that formerly had prosperous union shops are left with a scattering of "Buckeyes." Remove the restrictions, including those surrounding the label, in the constitution, and start out with fresh determination and renewed courage and with faith in and loyalty to the union, the best friend the workers ever had, and the trade can be brought back into those towns that have been made barren of union shops, and the trade reclaimed from the big non union shops which have heretofore unmo- lested enjoyed all the advantages of im- proved methods of production.

Methods of Production.

The replies of local unions to the ques- tionnaire with reference to the cigar industry, totaled, balanced, and analyzed, show there are 114,585 wage earners employed in the various branches of the industry that come under the jurisdiction of the C. M. I. U. of A.

Classified they show 90,180 cigar makers, 4,573 packers, 996 stogie makers, and 18,836 strippers, banders, etc. Of this number 25,- 605 are members of the union and 88,980 are non-union.

Of the 90,180 cigar makers 23,155 are union and 67,025 are non-union. There are

*Cigarettes included with Cigars from August 1, 1866, to August 20, 1868.

‡Includes $507,533.15 from sale of internal revenue stamps affixed to Philippine products coming into the United States under provisions of the act of August 5, 1909.

‡Small Cigars included with Cigarettes from August 1, 1866, to July 24, 1897.

‡‡Not including about 2,000,000 Cigarettes which paid an ad valorem tax in 1865 and 1866.

38,927 men and 51,253 women making cigars. Of the men 19,798 are union and 19,129 are non-union. Of the women there are 3,357 union and 47,896 non-union.

There are 4,573 cigar packers, 949 union and 3,624 non-union. This brings the total of those making and packing cigars to 94,753.

My address to the Cleveland Convention, April 1920, based upon a similar questionnaire showed a total of 111,378 people making and packing cigars. As compared with the present report this shows that there are 16,625 less people making and packing cigars now than in April, 1920. This loss as reported shows that there are 15,132 less unionists and 1,493 less non-unionists than in 1920.

The loss in the number employed in the industry is fully accounted for in the decreased number of cigars manufactured in 1922 as compared with the number manufactured in 1920. In 1920 there were 8,304,618,762 cigars manufactured; in 1922 there were 6,621,298,886 cigars manufactured, showing a loss of 1,683,319,876 cigars.

Another factor that has had much to do with the loss in the number of cigar makers is the enormous increase in the use of machinery. The rapid increase in the use of machines is proved by the reports which show that there are now 1,928 persons employed on the automatic machines as compared with 451 in 1920. There are also 15,851 employed on bunch breaking machines and 13,668 on suction tables.

Of the 996 stogie makers 749 are union and 247 are non-union and of the 18,836 strippers, banders, etc., 752 are union and 18,084 are non-union.

Classified as to methods of making the reports show there are 13,305 hand workers, 9,184 union and 4,121 non-union; 29,323 mould workers, 9,236 union and 20,087 non-union; and 47,552 bunch breakers and rollers (team workers) of which only 4,735 or less than ten per cent belong to the union.

(To this 47,552 team-workers as listed in the questionnaire should be added those working on the automatic machine, the suction table workers, and those employed on the bunch breaking machines as they are team-workers in every sense of the word.)

Hand work, the original style of making cigars, is steadily decreasing. My address to the 1920 convention showed 17,346 hand workers. We now have 13,305, a decrease of 4,041 within the past three years, while the 1912 address to the Baltimore Convention shows 21,030 hand workers.

Mould work shows an increase over the 1920 report of 11,962. Many of these mould workers are team-workers in practice and should be so classified.

Bunch breaking and rolling (team-work) is steadily increasing, there being few if any of the large non-union or chain shops that use strictly hand or mould work methods to any extent.

The total number of shops reported by the local unions and estimated from Internal Revenue reports is 10,648. Of this number 7,228 are reported as employing one or more journeymen and 3,420 are reported as "Buckeyes" not employing a journeyman. Four thousand, nine hundred and seventy-eight of the total number of shops are reported as union and 5,770 as non-union.

The total number of trust and chain shops reported is 186, an increase of 88 over the 1920 report and the number of cigar makers and packers employed in these shops has increased from 21,383 in 1920 to 44,293 at the present time. Of this number 8,546 are men and 35,747 are women. The trust and chain shops employ all except 15,506 of the women in the industry.

With the full knowledge of the facts as to the real conditions the time has come when we must take note of facts and use all helpful methods in the interests of our organization and the wage earners, including the so-called unskilled, employed in the cigar industry.

The population of the United States from 1860 to 1920, inclusive, in ten-year periods follows:

1790	3,929,214
1800	5,308,483
1810	7,239,881
1820	9,638,453
1830	12,866,020
1840	17,069,453
1850	23,191,876
1860	31,443,321
1870	38,558,371
1880	50,155,783
1890	62,947,714
1900	75,994,575
1910	91,972,266
1920	105,710,620

This table shows that the manufacture and consumption of cigars are steadily falling off, and that the population is steadily increasing. In 1902, twenty years ago, there were manufactured 6,103,567,265 cigars. At that time the population was approximately 76,000,000. For the year ending June 30, 1921, there were manufactured 6,758,756,368 cigars at which time the population was approximately 106,000,000. Practically there was no increase in the number of cigars manufactured and yet the increase in population was approximately 30,000,000.

In 1913 there were manufactured 7,699,-037,543 cigars while for the fiscal year ending 1922 there were manufactured 6,621,298,-886 cigars. The population in 1913 was approximately 94,000,000. The population in 1922 was approximately 110,000,000. With an increase in the population of 16,000,000 in the period just cited, 1913 to 1922, there was a decrease in the manufacture of cigars of 1,077,738,657.

The steady decline in the manufacture and consumption of cigars is due to several causes, prominent among which is the steady increase in the internal revenue tax exacted by the federal government. In 1902 the aggregate tax collection on cigars was $18,311,142.25. In 1922 this tax on the cigar industry for internal revenue alone had jumped to $41,183,505.34, or an increase of $22,872,363.09, an increase of about 120 per cent. These figures where comparisons are made don't include small cigars or all tobacco cigarettes. If these were included it would simply accentuate a little more the differences.

There has been a phenomenal increase in the number of tax paid cigarettes manufactured. In 1902 there were 2,651,618,795 tax paid cigarettes manufactured; in 1922 there were 50,068,203,132 tax paid cigarettes manufactured, showing an increase in 20 years of 47,416,584,337. This increase has been more pronounced in the last six years. In 1916 there were 21,087,677,077 tax paid cigarettes manufactured, which compared with the number of tax paid cigarettes manufactured in 1922 shows an increase of 28,980,526,055. The foregoing figures are official for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1922. The trade papers estimate that (on official and unofficial figures) the output for cigarettes for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, was 60,000,-000,000.

In 1902 the total tax from all sources including manufactured tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, and snuff, exacted by the federal government was $51,937,925.19, while in 1922 this had been increased to $270,758,695.68, an increase of $218,820,770.49 or over 400 per cent. With the heavy import duty on raw material and the excessive internal tax the tobacco industry is carrying a heavy burden, the results of which have already been portrayed in the foregoing tables and statement.

The steady increase in the price of good tobacco suitable for cigar purposes aided and abetted by the monstrous tariff law is a potential force in enabling the trusts and combinations to corner and control the market and charge whatever prices they choose for tobacco suitable for cigar purposes. Through combinations of big interests and the unfair taxing system the cigar industry is struggling under a heavy burden.

In practically all foreign countries as well as our own tobacco has always been looked upon by the law-making forces as legitimate prey for the purpose of raising revenue for governmental and other purposes.

Strikes and Lockouts.

The appended tables show that since January 1, 1920 up to June 1, 1923, three years and five months, there were 555 applications, the greater number of which were for an increase of wages, against reduction of wages, and to revise the bills downward from the high peak bills adopted during and just following the world war. Of the 555 applications, 30 were disapproved, leaving a total of 525 constitutionally approved applications.

The approved applications involved 42,016 members, of which number 38,334 were beneficial, and 3,707 non-members. The 30 disapproved applications involved 9,174 members, of which number 8,958 were beneficial, and 92 non-members. Involved in all applications submitted there were 51,190 members, of which number 47,292 were beneficial, and 3,799 non-members.

During the period covered by this record, three years and five months, there was expended for strike and lockout purposes $1,490,411.84 from the international funds. Contributions and purely local assessments in aid of these strikes and lockouts are not included in this amount. Thousands of dollars through local assessments, of which the International office has no record, were contributed in the Tampa and Porto Rico strikes. It would be interesting to know the total amount contributed from these sources.

Of the grand total $1,490,411.84 expended for strike and lockout purposes from the International funds $1,015,840.34 was expended in Tampa, Florida, and $245,678.36 in Porto Rico. These difficulties involved 14,813 members of which number 12,843 were entitled to benefits. The difficulties in both these places had to be recorded in the non-successful column. In both instances a magnificent, heroic struggle was maintained by our members who struggled in the face of difficulties seldom encountered in any other part of this or any other country. Our members in Porto Rico in particular and in Tampa generally had arrayed against them employers who were entrenched behind bulwarks of privileged conditions which involved the control of those whose duty it was to enforce the law, and an intimidation, oppression, and abuse against the workers that have seldom been surpassed in brutality and heartless application.

In Porto Rico the industry is controlled by the all-powerful American Tobacco Company, which knows no mercy and has no conscience in the pursuit of its determination to extract the most dollars at the very lowest compensation for the workers in its efforts to gain great profits. The trust maintains factories in many parts of the Island. Practically whole towns consist only of cigar makers and tobacco workers. Every factory in some given town deliberately closes and the cigar makers are thrown out of employment with no other means of obtaining work at any occupation and are driven about from place to place suffering the pangs of hunger in the vain search of the opportunity to work at their chosen vocation as union men and women.

In Tampa, Florida, during the great struggle friendly manufacturers or those who were inclined to meet and make terms with the union were prevented from exercising their right and desires in this direction, by subtle methods. Any manufacturer who desired to make an honorable settlement with the union was denied first credit, second boxes, third raw material, and fourth he was made to sacrifice the sum he had posted with the manufacturers' association. Many of these manufacturers had permitted the manufacturers' association to pay their most pressing bills and had given notes as collateral, and if any of these attempted to do business with the union these outstanding obligations or notes which were overdue would have been immediately placed in the hands of a sheriff who would have concluded the negotiations, and the manufacturer would have found himself bankrupt.

In the successful applications 123 were for an increase of wages, 29 against a reduction of wages.

These figures don't cover the many strikes that were indulged in without taking the formality of even consulting our strike laws, and totally ignoring them. These ill-timed and ill-advised strikes have done as much perhaps as anything else to retard organization and the maintaining of union shops.

On previous occasions while discussing this important phase of our activity I have urged that fair and honorable methods be adopted whereby all of the material facts in connection with contemplated strike or lock-out difficulties can be placed before the members and voters in the strike or lockout applications. I have said and here repeat that no local union should be allowed to pay strike benefit even when their application is approved without first meeting the employers and endeavoring to settle the difficulty without a strike, by means of mediation, conciliation, and arbitration. If this principle had been adhered to it would have saved us many shops, many dollars, and much misery, want, and privation.

I regard the right to strike as one of the fundamental principles of economic activity and a right that should never be surrendered. It is labor's best friend. It should not be misused or abused. It is a two-edged sword that unless handled with discretion and vision it is very liable to cut more deeply in the direction which we did not intend than in the direction we had aimed at.

JANUARY 1, 1920, TO JUNE 1, 1923.

The foregoing is a recapitulation of the prices figured on a percentage basis. The average increase is smaller when compared with the gain shown in the 1920 address. The showing made in 1920 summary covered a period in which the war peak bills were adopted. The present figures cover the period of readjustment. They show an increase based on averages over the 1920 price list.

The total number of regular sized labels issued during the years 1917, 1918 and 1919 was 69,950,000. In the last three years, 1920, 1921 and 1922, there were issued 46,860,000. A like comparison for similar dates shows an increase of 4,350,000 in the small label (which is used for packs) and an increase in the stogie label of 560,000.

The Union Label in order to be able to justify itself and our rightful expectations of its being a potential force in organizing and maintaining union shops should be linked up with natural, workable laws. The Union Label can not function to capacity if handicapped by restrictive laws. The Union Label in itself to be successful must be free to jointly work with other broad, natural, evolutionary, progressive methods of production. A powerful weapon may be rendered impotent and detrimental instead of a helpful means of organization if not properly handled.

Heretofore in this address attention has been called to changed and changing conditions in the methods of manufacturing cigars and serious attention and action has been recommended. Conditions governing the use of the label should be amended, corrected, brought up to date, and made to fit into other necessary changes that should be made in the Constitution.

The primary intent of the Union Label is to show that the product to which it is attached was made by a member of organized labor. All other unions having Union Labels hold to this view and don't burden the labels with any other meaning. The Union Label in order to be entirely successful in the purpose for which it was originally intended should be allowed to function without restrictions except that its use by any manufacturer is predicated upon the fact that the workers employed are members of the union.

Wages, hours of labor, and conditions are always predicated upon organization. The workers in any industry or factory must first be organized and that once accomplished, wages, favorable hours, and good working conditions naturally follow. This being true it brings us back to the oft-repeated statement that we must first organize and for this purpose the label should be allowed to function without burdensome restrictions. Organization being necessarily our primary purpose, elements that will hasten organization and strengthen it should be encouraged. Making conditions under which the union label shall be granted to manufacturers is of paramount importance.

All members should be treated upon an equality and in so far as it is possible precisely the same. If members or those entitled to affiliation are good enough to join and worthy of membership they in the final analysis should become entitled to elements that make for protection of any other wing or class of membership.

The label now is forced to carry the making price and the selling price of cigars. Give the workers in the industry an unrestricted opportunity to organize and become affiliated and the question of wages will rapidly take care of itself. Wages and hours are dependent upon organization and not upon the union label. The selling price of cigars, wholesale or retail, is not within the power of the union to regulate. We never were and are not now organized for that purpose. That is a proposition that belongs to the manufacturer and the retailer, and in the regulation of this the label has not infallible force. In attempting to fix the wholesale price of cigars as a condition for the use of the label we assume a responsibility as to quality over which under present laws we have absolutely no control, and no set of rules concerning the use of the label can be perfected, for obvious reasons, that will enable us to successfully assume such responsibility.

The extent of organization furnishes the element of power which determines and regulates wages. This basic power is the one clearly within the purview and undisputed sphere of trade union activity.

Vast changes heretofore and now being made in the distribution of cigars are partly responsible for these views, chief among which is the centralization of the industry with its chain shops for making and chain stores for distribution. These are mostly non-union stores. They make a studied effort to discredit the union label and will not handle goods bearing the label if they can help it.

The years immediately following the attempted enforcement of Prohibition show a marked decrease in the use of the Union Label.

The proper action in this direction with the application of suggestions which have been made reference organization will bring the union factory and the Union Label back into the field from which its former glory and activity have been well nigh eliminated. A rounded up Constitution made to fit the present methods of production will bring back the union shop to many towns and places where it formerly existed and thrived, and to the advantage of the workers and all others directly and indirectly concerned. The union label, under present conditions and changes contemplated, perhaps can be safely left to mean that if it is displayed on the manufactured product that product was made by a member of organized labor.

For these and many other reasons I recommend that all burdensome restrictive laws concerning the use of the Union Label be properly amended and in some instances entirely removed from the Constitution.

Death Benefits.

Figures that follow will give you some idea of the cost to maintain our death benefit system. At the Cleveland Convention, 1920, steps were taken that would partially overcome the difficulties we find ourselves in reference to death benefit laws which were originally placed in our constitution in 1887. Such legislation, however, was not sufficient to meet the requirements.

If a convention had been held last year as the Cleveland convention provided, additional measures could and undoubtedly would have been taken to more easily bridge over our present difficulties. Unfortunately popular vote postponed the holding of that convention.

In the three years past we paid out $17,080.00 for 70 mothers and 357 wives. The age of death of the mothers averaged 73 years and a fraction and of the wives 51 and a fraction.

The total deaths in the three years past of those entitled to $50.00 death benefit on account of age limit of 50 years was 12, and their average duration as dues paying members was 13½ years. Allowing for $26.30 per cent. to unions on the average of $105.30 paid in dues it left a surplus of $29.00.

During the same period we paid 19 death benefits of $75.00 each of those who came under the same constitutional (50 years age) restrictions. These members had contributed dues for 12¼ years, or about $116.35. Deducting the percentage allowance to unions of $29.10 there was a favorable balance of $12.25.

There were in addition to the above 17 deaths of members that were entitled to all benefits and the $50.00 death benefit up to August 1, 1920. These 17 members had paid on an average $28.60 in dues and since they were entitled to all benefits were carried at a loss.

There were 76 who were of the regular full dues paying class entitled to $75.00. Their average duration as dues paying members, 30c and 60c dues was 3 3/10 years and they paid an average of $89.15, and as they were entitled to all benefits we may approximately figure a loss of $25.00 on each one in this class.

There were 47 members whose claims amounted to $125.00 each. Their average duration as dues paying members, 30c and 60c, was 6 9/10 years, and each paid approximately $145.35 in dues. The percentage cost of collection was about $36.35 and the average sick benefit about $36.00, which shows that even this benefit for which a five-year membership is required was operated at a loss.

In the $200.00 class we had up to August 1, 1920, 23 deaths who paid on an average in 7 7/10 years $120.05 dues and as they were entitled to all benefits we carried them at a considerable loss.

There were 43 deaths whose average membership time up to August 1, 1920, was 12 1/10 years. The dues paid were $188.75, and they received $350.00 each at death. Being entitled to all benefits it clearly follows that the loss on this class was considerable.

Under the new law in force since August 1, 1920, we paid 48 death benefits of $275.00 each. The average duration of membership was 12 years and 8 months. They paid average dues of $217.20. Add to this death benefit the percentage allowed local unions and the other benefits and the usual loss becomes apparent. Assuming that during the 12 years and 8 months' period these members had paid 60c dues part of the time (instead of 30c and 20c), they would have paid in $395.20 in dues and received in return $275.00 death benefit, and an average of $64.20 sick benefit, and the union would have received percentage allowance of $98.80, making a total of $438.00, leaving a loss of $42.80 and nothing for strikes, out of work, or running expenses.

In the period from August 1, 1920 to December 31, 1922, we paid 80 death benefits each of $475.00. The duration of membership was a fraction over 18 years. If they had paid 60c dues constantly it would have amounted to $570.00, and for this we have paid death benefit $475.00, percentage allowance to unions for overhead $142.50, and at least the average sick benefit $96.50, a total of $714.00. Hence under the most favorable conditions permissible under the present law the loss would be $47.50 per death, regardless of any other benefit expenses.

From January 1, 1920 to August 31, 1920 we paid 251 death claims at $550.00 each, costing the International Union $138,050.00. These members had paid an average of $429.00 dues on 27 years and 6 months membership, a total of $107,679.00. A fair average sick benefit during this period would be about $100.00. Hence we paid in sick and death benefits about $650.00 for $429.00 dues paid.

However the total death benefits paid during the three-year period of the $550.00 class was 1,025, costing the International Union $563,750.00. Making allowances for 40c dues paid by many of these members we are liberal in saying they paid on an average $456.00 for a 29 year and about 9 months membership. This includes 60c dues from August 1, 1920 to December 31, 1922. Their total payment was in round figures $467,400.

If our figures were on a continuous 60c a week dues paying basis for 30 years we should receive $948.00 in dues. From this we should pay death benefit $550.00, collection percentage $237.00, and the lowest average sick benefit for 30 years $161.00, making a total of $948.00. This showing, the most favorable that is possible under our present law would without continued assessments leave no balance for strike or out of work benefits or general overhead expenses.

There were during the three-year period 180 $350.00 disability claims amounting to $63,000.00. The average duration of membership was 30 years and a fraction. The average age of the claimants was 67 years. Making allowance for 20c, 25c, 30c, 40c, and 60c dues paid it is placing it high to say that these members paid an average of $468.00 in dues. We paid each $350.00 benefit. The collection cost was $117.00, and we are adding a low average of sick benefit—$109.00, making a total of $576.00, or an approximate loss of $108.00 on each claim paid.

It must be born in mind that there is a loss in each class except the old age members, hence we can not equalize the loss by shifting from one group of payments to another. We are paying beyond our means and income based on the specified dues. The total disabilities paid in other cases are not enumerated as these were not enough to draw conclusions from.

The following table shows briefly the ages of members who died in the past three years:

70	died between 18 and 30, average age 26 2/10.
137	died between 30 and 40, average age 35 1/10.
273	died between 40 and 50, average age 44 6/10.
416	died between 50 and 60, average age 55.
552	died between 60 and 70, average age 64 3/10.
385	died between 70 and 93, average age 77 8/10.

In the above are included all deaths and the total disability members. The combined age years of members of the 1,833 classified above was 106,509, or an average of 58 1/10 years at time of death, or payment of disability benefit.

In the three years past we paid in death benefits $813,401.70, or an average of $443.75 4/10 for each death. It is a liberal allowance to place the average dues paying life at 20 years. In 20 years a member paying 60c dues would pay in $624.00 in dues. Against this the member would receive according to the average given death benefit $443.75, sick benefit $146.00, and the union in percentage $156.00, making a total $745.75. Hence under the law of averages we should operate at a loss without considering the strike or out of work privilege amounting to $121.75 on each death benefit paid.

Assuming that for the next 8 years the dues are on a 60c a week basis, then the 30-year collection for dues would be 20 years past at 30c a week $312.00, and 10 years at 60c a week $312.00, making a total of $624.00. We are liable for total disability benefit $350.00, percentage of local union $156.00, sick benefit average (with probable increase) $154.00, total $660.00. Thus leaving out of consideration the likelihood of the member's paying part of the time 40c a week, and the possibility of strike or out-of-work benefit we shall still under the law of averages be operating at a loss of $36.00 per disability benefit paid.

To pay all death and total disability benefits for the year 1922 it cost 18 3/10c per week per member.

The cost rate per member per week rises and falls with the fluctuation in membership. Figured on the cost per week per member for the past ten years the average was about 13 2/10c per member per week.

As already indicated in my opening remarks, organization is the paramount issue. When we agreed to pay certain benefits we assumed a moral obligation, which we should fulfill if it is possible to do so and without strangling our efforts to fully organize the industry. We shall have discharged our obligations and avoided repudiation of benefits if we shape the laws so that those members now entitled to death benefits shall pay insurance rates predicated upon American actuary figures for these benefits.

To date we have discharged all obligations in the payment of all benefits. Some definite plan should be adopted whereby we can meet the expectations and claims of the older members for death benefits. In view of the changed condition in the industry no one should object to a fair readjustment that will protect and safeguard the rights and interests of present members and meet the requirements necessary to stimulate active enrollment of new members. It has been pointed out in figures that heretofore no one has paid a sufficient rate of dues to meet our insurance obligations. In continuing the payment of death benefit or reinsuring in an insurance company we are justified and within the bounds of honorable dealing in providing that all who elect to continue to participate in the death benefit feature shall pay in addition to the regular dues for economic purposes a premium based upon actuary figures that will meet all our obligations.

There are several possible ways out of the present difficulty, among which are:

First, a continuance of the present death benefit laws with dues, predicated upon American actuary statistics, sufficient to warrant the payment of these benefits.

Second, a reduction of all death benefits to a minimum to such an extent that it will permit a reduction in the dues to a point that will be inviting to those not now affiliated to the International Union.

Third, the organization of a purely insurance department of the International Union, with its compulsory insurance up to $100.00 death benefit and an optional clause for any sum beyond that, and that insurance rates governing under the American actuary rates be adopted.

Fourth, the reinsurance under the group plan without physical examination in a substantial insurance company under a plan that it would be compulsory for all members to become insured to the extent of at least $100.00 for funeral benefit, and that will permit the present members voluntary insurance in any sum that will enable their beneficiaries to realize upon the sums they are now entitled to under our present laws; that dues be limited to an agreed upon amount for all those who take only the $100.00 death benefit, and an amount to be paid by those who take the voluntary insurance to be known as insurance premium, based on American actuary rates, sufficient to cover such amounts. Under this plan all those who may hereafter become members would be entitled under fixed dues to $100.00 funeral benefit, and under the optional plan could take out up to $500.00 or any sum not to exceed $1,000.00.

At the last three or four sessions of your International Executive Board the question of continuing the payment of death benefits and stimulating organization in the industry has been brought to their attention, and considerable thought and study devoted to this important question. The Board has studied the question from all angles and has unanimously endorsed a proposition, which they request me to present to you in an appendix to this report, whereby we can reinsure our death benefit members under a group insurance plan and without physical examinations, which plan contemplates a compulsory insurance on the part of all members of a funeral benefit limited to $100.00 and an optional clause for present and prospective members on any sum above that amount up to $500.00. Those who embrace the optional clause and desire to continue their claim on death benefit will of necessity have to pay in addition to the purely economic dues scientific actuary rates that will make the payment of the benefits sure and secure.

At the request of the International Executive Board at its recent meeting, June 17-18, 1923, I appointed a committee of four on insurance, consisting of Vice-Presidents J. M. Ornburn, E. G. Hall, Samuel Gompers, and the President. The Board also requested that the propositions of the two insurance companies be submitted to this convention and they strongly recommend that you adopt one of these plans.

Both requests have been complied with, and the Board's report and the insurance plan will be submitted in an appendix which is an official part of this address.

Sick Benefit.

The payment of sick benefit displays a fraternal spirit and helpfulness that should appeal to the minds and hearts of all mankind. I strongly urge the continuance of the payment of sick benefit under a plan that will limit it to the original purpose of paying a fair amount of sick benefit and lifting it from what it has drifted into, an annual pension in many instances.

To pay sick benefits for the year 1922 it cost a fraction over 14c per week per member. With the proper limitation through amendments based upon equity and justice, this amount can be considerably reduced.

Restrictive Laws.

Your attention is directed to a few restrictions which in view of past and present events can be safely said are hindrances to more rapid organization.

Section 67 of the constitution provides a penalty of an increase of the initiation fee from $3 to $5 for a suspended member and is a source of much complaint and is often used as an excuse by suspended members.

Section 79 provides "No union shall be allowed to hold a charter without having a bill of prices; a union having no bill shall adopt the bill of the nearest union." This should be amended for the reasons more clearly set forth when treating restrictive laws under Section 164.

Section 150 reference the price for making and the selling price of the finished product should be changed. Your attention has been directed to this matter under the caption of "The Union Label."

In the same section (150) is the following clause: "No union shall be allowed to furnish the labels for cigars made in whole or in part by machinery." An amendment striking the clause just quoted from the constitution recently went to popular vote and fell short of adoption, by the two-thirds vote, by only 30 votes. This matter is more fully dealt with in this address under the caption of "The Union Label."

The second paragraph of Section 155, wherein it prohibits the use of the label to manufacturers "Who sell cigars to a manufacturer who was put on the unfair list or any agent or representative of such firm." Where a manufacturer entirely retires from the field of manufacturing and continues as a jobber there seems to be no legitimate reason why other union manufacturers should not be permitted to sell their union products to him as a jobber. An unsuccessful manufacturer sometimes makes a good jobber.

The second, third, and fourth paragraphs of Section 157, relating to constitutional restrictions, no one can successfully say are not actual hindrances to organization. These three paragraphs can be eliminated and should be if we are to make necessary progress.

We ask non-unionists in the trade to become members and try in every way to induce them to, and yet in Paragraph 2 of Section 157 we say to these people that they cannot work in a label shop until they have been members of the International Union for one year.

There is a provision in Section 164 that newly organized unions shall receive the same bill of prices in force by the nearest union. This brings us back to the old fundamental economic truism that we must do first things first. The first thing is to organize the workmen. Wages and conditions follow organization. Under the present laws we say to the non-union center, "We will admit you into the International Union and give you a charter if you will get the same bill of prices established in the neighboring town or city." We must not overlook the fact that at one time in the neighboring town or city wages were low and hours of labor long and working conditions miserable. They did not first establish a bill of prices. They first organized and the bill of prices naturally followed. This law needs amendment.

Section 190 provides that fines in excess of $10 must be submitted to the International Executive Board for approval. In all such cases the International Executive Board hears only one side of the case. The member involved is not heard by the International Executive Board. The union makes application to fine a member anywhere from $25 to $10,000 and states the reasons. The application is then forwarded to the International Executive Board for approval. This law should be amended so that the unfortunate member should at least be given an opportunity to be heard in his own defense before a fine is approved by the Executive Board.

Section 208 reference length of term served by apprentices should be amended. The attention of the delegates to the Cleveland 1920 convention was called to this important matter. Under the present law no one is eligible to membership in the International Union unless he has served three years' apprenticeship. This law was placed in the constitution when the hand work system of making cigars was universally in force. With the introduction of different methods such as the mold, the bunch breaking machine, the suction table, and the automatic machine and the team system which have become the predominating systems by which cigars are manufactured today it naturally follows that this law should be amended. While it may have required three years' time to become proficient as a hand workman it certainly does not require three years to become proficient as a bunch breaker, a roller, a team worker, or as an operator on a bunch breaking machine, on a suction table, or on an automatic machine. I again renew the recommendation made at the last convention that the law in this respect be amended.

The General Fund.

The general fund should be maintained in so far as it is possible on our fixed income—that is, the regular dues.

Total expenditures	$69,640.39
Balance on hand July 1, 1923	4,575.31
Total	$74,215.70

From the foregoing figures it will be seen that the total expense of the International Office for the year ending July 1, 1923, was $69,640.39. The average membership of the International Union for this period was 29,069, thus making the average cost per member for maintaining the International Office aside from the organizers and financiers for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1923, $1.50.

The amount expended for regular and special organizers and agents was $26,069.27 for the same period, making the cost per member $0.89 6/10 for maintaining the organizers of the International Union.

The cost, including that of organizers and financiers as well as all other expenses for maintaining the International Office for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1923, is $2.39 6/10. Practically all of the expenses are fixed charges regulated by organic law, over which the administration has no control.

I am fully conscious of the profound duties with which you are met. You are placed in a position in reference to past legislation in which you are only as individual members remotely responsible. You are in no wise responsible for conditions imposed and policies pursued by the employers and managers in the cigar and tobacco industry.

You have my unqualified assurance of any helpfulness and assistance I may be able to render to you in reaching a just and effectual solution of the perplexing problems that are forced upon us at this time and place. I am sure the remedy to meet and overcome all serious difficulties can be found and applied. The time is ripe, the occasion and opportunity is here and yours.

The answer will be reflected in your action. The defenseless wage earners are in a receptive mood; they are looking for a message from this convention such as will revive and rekindle the spirits of our members and convey a ray of hope and encouragement to the great army of the unorganized in the industry. To successfully meet the situation and these expectations requires vision, courage and determination, and the sacrifice of any and all prejudices that may stand in the way of successful accomplishments. With full knowledge and belief that our cause is right and just, let us go forward undaunted and determined to fully discharge the obligations resting upon us.

Fraternally and respectfully submitted,

G. W. PERKINS.

International President.

REPORT OF INTERNATIONAL EXECUTIVE BOARD.

Chicago, August, 1923.

To the Officers and Delegates,

24th Convention, Cigar Makers' Int'l Union:

At nearly every meeting of your Executive Board the question of organization, benefits and dues received considerable attention, thought and study. At the last regular meeting of the Executive Board held in Chicago, June 17 and 18, your Board agreed with the International President and unanimously endorsed a proposition to re-insure under the group plan without physical examination, under a compulsory plan up to $100.00 death benefit and a voluntary plan for the members who desired to take additional insurance or to maintain that which they would be now entitled to under our present laws.

We agreed with the President that one of four things should be done:

First, a continuance of the present death benefit laws with dues, predicated upon American actuary statistics, sufficient to warrant the payment of these death benefits.

(In view of the facts and figures presented to us by the International President as they relate to the cigar and tobacco industry we deem it inadvisable to endorse such a plan.)

Second, a reduction of all death benefits to a minimum to such an extent that it will permit a reduction in the dues to a point that would be inviting to those not now affiliated to the International Union.

(This proposition was unanimously rejected as not being the best way out of our present difficulties.)

Third, the organization of a purely insurance department of the International Union, with its compulsory insurance up to $100.00 death benefit and an optional clause for any sum beyond that, and that insurance rates governing under the American actuary rates be adopted.

(To do this we should have to incorporate and operate under the federal and state insurance laws. It would mean the hiring of at least a manager who is a competent insurance man fully versed in insurance matters, for a time at least, and the maintenance of the required federal and state reserve fund. This plan your Board also holds is not the best method of procedure.)

Fourth, the reinsurance under the group plan without physical examination in a substantial insurance company under a plan that it would be compulsory for all members to become insured to the extent of at least $100.00 for death benefit, and that will permit the present members voluntary insurance in any sum that will enable their beneficiaries to realize upon the sums they are now entitled to under our present laws; that dues be limited to an agreed upon amount for all those who take only the $100.00 death benefit, and an amount to be paid by those who take the voluntary insurance to be known as insurance premium, based on American actuary rates, sufficient to cover such amounts.

Under this plan all those who may hereafter become members would be entitled under fixed dues to $100.00 death benefit, and under the optional plan could take out any sum not to exceed $500.00.

(This latter plan your Board in principle unanimously endorsed, and they recommend its adoption. Two insurance companies have submitted plans and rates for reinsurance under the group plan without physical examination. Representatives of these companies have been invited by the president to address this convention in explanation of their propositions. The plans and contracts submitted by these companies follow:)

As already stated your Board has unanimously endorsed in principle the contract submitted by the International Life and Trust Company, Moline, Illinois.

AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE INTERNATIONAL LIFE & TRUST COMPANY AND THE CIGAR MAKERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION OF AMERICA.

THIS AGREEMENT made this day of, A. D. 1923, in two parts by and between the International Life & Trust Company, an Illinois corporation with its principal place of business in the City of Moline, County of Rock Island, State of Illinois, party of the first part, and for brevity hereinafter referred to as the Company, and: The Cigar Makers' International Union of America, a volunteer association with its headquarters in the City of Chicago, County of Cook, State of Illinois, party of the second part, and for brevity hereinafter referred to as the Union.

WITNESSETH: That WHEREAS, the party of the first part is agreeable to granting an insurance service to the party of the second part for its benefit as Trustee upon the lives of the membership of the said party of the second part, as well as those who may become members in the future upon the same terms and conditions as to the present members, and;

WHEREAS, the party of the second part desires to place with the party of the first part, insurance upon the lives of its members, as well as upon the lives of the future members upon the same terms and conditions as its old members received;

NOW, THEREFORE, THIS AGREEMENT WITNESSETH:

(1) The Company agrees on its part to issue to the Union a Group Policy covering its entire membership in the amount of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) of insurance upon the life of each member and not to exceed Five Hundred Dollars ($500.00) of insurance upon the life of any member without Medical Examination. The Policy Contract is hereto attached and made a part of this Agreement and marked "Exhibit A."

(2) The plan of insurance is to be a Group Annual Renewable Term Policy based upon American Experience Table of Mortality Three and One-half per cent (3½%) Illinois Standard of Valuation.

(3) The sheet hereto attached showing quarterly, semi-annual and annual rates for each age group from Fifteen (15) to Seventy (70) years per One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) insurance, marked "Exhibit B," is made a part of the contract, and shall constitute the consideration, with this exception: that in the event the actual current expected mortality shall exceed one hundred per cent (100%) of the American Experience Table of Mortality, three and one-half per cent (3½%), it is mutually agreed between the parties hereto that the liability of the Company shall cease at One Hundred per cent (100%) current mortality, as heretofore stated; and the Union agrees and binds itself to accept such liability in excess of One Hundred per cent (100%) mortality, and to pay all claims arising during any current year after the said Company has paid out One Hundred per cent mortality on the whole group insured under this contract. With this exception the Company, on its part, agrees that this contract shall be irrevocable. However, granting to the Union the right and privilege to convert the plan of insurance hereunder to that known as the whole life plan, based upon the American Experience Table of Mortality, Three and One-Half Per Cent (3½%) Illinois Standard of Valuation, first year term insurance.

(4) The Company shall name a Chicago Bank as Depository to receive payments or premium from the Union for its convenience. The said payments shall be paid quarterly, semi-annually or annually, in advance.

(5) This contract will become effective at the time the same shall be executed by the President and Secretary of the Company, and the President and First Vice President of the Union, and the payment of the premium as heretofore stated.

(6) The Union on its part agrees to all of the foregoing and in addition thereto to supply the Company with the name, address, and date of birth of each member of the Union as of the date of the execution of this agreement and further to report to the Company on the first day of each month thereafter, the name, address, and date of birth of each new member admitted into the Union of the previous month in order that a Certificate may be made up to cover the said new members.

(7) It is further mutually agreed between the Company and the Union that the Company will issue Group Insurance on new members on the first day of each month after the first Group Policy is issued.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have hereunto set their hands and seals the day of A. D. 1923.

EXHIBIT A.

THE INTERNATIONAL LIFE & TRUST COMPANY OF ILLINOIS, MOLINE, ILLINOIS. GROUP LIFE INSURANCE POLICY FORM.

Participating.

THE INTERNATIONAL LIFE & TRUST COMPANY OF ILLINOIS, MOLINE, ILLINOIS, hereby insures the lives of those members of the Union (hereinafter referred to as the Union), in consideration of the covenants hereinafter mentioned, agrees to pay to the CIGAR MAKERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION OF AMERICA OF CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, the sum of ONE HUNDRED ($100.00) DOLLARS not to exceed a maximum of FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS, as Trustee for its members who are insured under this contract.

This insurance is granted in consideration of the payment by the Union to the Company on the execution of this Contract, of a quarterly premium in advance for the group of lives insured hereunder whose names appear on the schedule certified to by the International President of the Union, and is issued in consideration of the application hereof by the CIGAR MAKERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION OF AMERICA, a copy of which is attached hereto and made a part hereof, and the payment in advance of a quarterly premium of on each member insured for the sum of ONE HUNDRED ($100.00) DOLLARS.

The initial amount of insurance to each member between ages 15 to 70 inclusive shall be compulsory in the sum of ONE HUNDRED ($100.00) DOLLARS on each life.

It is understood and agreed, however, that the Union has the right to allow any of its members who are in good standing to purchase additional insurance in multiples of ONE HUNDRED ($100.00) DOLLARS up to FIVE HUNDRED ($500.00) DOLLARS so that the entire insurance on each member's life shall not exceed FIVE HUNDRED ($500.00) DOLLARS. Any member who applies and pays his premium and whose application is accepted and approved by the International President of the CIGAR MAKERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION

OF AMERICA is eligible, subject to the regulations of the Union.

Contract.

This Policy together with the application therefor shall constitute the entire contract between the parties hereto. All statements made in the application for this Policy shall in the absence of fraud be deemed representations and not warranties and no such statements shall void this Policy or be used as a defense to a claim thereunder unless they are contained in the written application, a copy of which is endorsed upon or attached to this Policy when issued. No modification of this contract shall be valid unless endorsed hereon and signed by the President, Vice-President or Secretary of the Company.

PREMIUMS: The premiums payable by the Union shall be determined by the total amount of insurance upon the members of the Union included within the terms hereof, according to the schedule of Rates, Formula and Provisions for Premium Computation herein contained. Quarterly premiums in advance computed by the Company upon the basis aforesaid shall be payable on or before the _____ day of the month.

GRACE: A grace period of thirty-one (31) days reckoned from the day any premium is payable shall be granted for the payment of each premium after the first, during which time the insurance herein provided for shall remain in force; providing, however, that during any period of grace the Union shall pay to the Company all premiums due received by the Union on account of the insurance contemplated hereby.

DATE EFFECTIVE: This contract shall be effective from noon, Central Standard Time _____, 1923, on all the lives of the members whose names appear on the schedule furnished by the International President of the Union to the Insurance Company and signed by him, and quarterly periods shall be computed from that date.

MEMBERS COVERED: This contract, shall, during its continuance embrace all members of the Union included in the Schedule according to the terms thereof.

TERMINATION OF INSURANCE: The liability of the Company in respect to the insurance of any member included in the Schedule shall end when such member terminates membership in the Union, or is suspended from benefits or membership or expelled; in any case of suspension, such liability shall revive if and when the member shall be reinstated.

PREMIUM COMPUTATIONS: Statement of premiums computed by the Company shall be rendered to the Union quarterly as of the first day of each quarter, taking into account changes in ages and in the coverage, by reason of additions, terminations, suspensions and increases, if any, which have been reported to the Company prior thereto.

MODIFICATIONS: This contract cannot be varied or altered or its conditions waived or extended in any respect except by the written agreement of the Company, witnessed by the signature of its President or one of its Vice-Presidents and its Secretary.

Control of Benefits.

The Insured Members hereunder are entitled to receive the benefits, exercise the rights and enjoy the privileges conferred upon them by this Policy in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Union pertaining thereto and the Company shall be governed in the fulfillment of the terms of this Policy by the requests, orders and instructions of the _____ of the Union.

Incontestability.

All insurance hereunder is free from conditions and restrictions as to residence, travel and place of death from the date it becomes effective, except as herein provided, and shall be incontestable for the amount due after one year except for non-payment of premiums; but in case the age of the Insured Member shall have been misstated the amount in force shall be such as the premiums actually paid would have purchased at the true age of such Insured Member. If within one year from the date the Insured Member shall die in consequence of violation of law or an aerial voyage or shall, whether sane or insane, die by his own hand, the amount payable under such Certificate shall be limited to the amount of premiums actually paid thereon.

Valuation.

The reserve shall be calculated according to the American Experience Table of Mortality with interest at the rate of 3½% per annum.

Change of Beneficiary.

Change of beneficiary shall be made whenever desired in compliance with the laws of the International Union.

General Provisions.

The Union may continue the insurance under this contract for successive quarterly periods, the premium therefor to be paid quarterly in advance on or before the _____ day of each calendar month.

This Contract of insurance is made with the Union as Trustee for the member and not with any individual member thereof. The Company assumes no liability other than specifically stated herein.

This Contract may be renewed from year to year at the option of the said second party, by paying the quarterly premium for the then attained age of the Insured as per schedule of rates herewith attached.

The Union agrees to remit the quarterly premiums for its membership with a schedule showing the full name and age of the member insured.

This policy will be automatically renewed annually, upon due payment of premiums or installments thereof in consideration of which the Union agrees and by acceptance of this contract, binds itself to give the company one month's written notice that it does not desire an automatic annual renewal thereof.

INSURED MEMBERS: After _____, 1923, the Union shall furnish to the Company lists containing the name and date of birth of all new members who have been added for insurance, with the dates of their admission and acceptance, and also lists showing those insured members who shall have defaulted in payment of premiums, retired or been expelled or suspended from benefits or membership, with the exact date thereof, together with such other data as the Company may deem necessary to determine the amount of insurance hereunder and the amount of premiums payable in respect thereto.

The Company shall have the right once a year to inspect the records and books of the Union with reference to insurance only, so as to determine the amount of insurance hereunder and to compute the premiums thereon.

PLACE OF CONTRACT: This contract is made and delivered and is to be performed by the Company in Moline, Ill., and payment of all premiums herein provided for is to be made to and received by the Company, at its Home Office in said city; and this contract shall in all respects be governed by, performed and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of Illinois.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the Company has, by its President and Secretary, and under its seal executed this policy at its Executive Office this _____ day _____, A. D. 19____.

ATTEST:

Delegate Chapp: In view of the fact that in previous conventions a record of the attendance of delegates has been kept, I move that the same procedure prevail in this convention. (Seconded and carried.)

Delegate Rhine suggested that the convention adjourn in order to allow the delegates an opportunity to study the reports that had been presented.

Delegate Gonzales, Local 336, announced that one of the delegates had lost the amount of money he had with him for his expenses, and moved that a committee be appointed to take up a collection of twenty-five cents from each delegate to supply the loss.

The chairman appointed Delegate Gonzales a committee of one, with authority to appoint two assistants, to take up a collection for the benefit of the delegate who had suffered the loss.

President Perkins announced that until the appointment of a Committee on Rules and Order, and the submission of a report by that committee, the convention would work under the rules of the Cleveland Convention.

At 4:45 o'clock p. m. the convention was adjourned until 9 o'clock a. m., Tuesday, August 14th.

SECOND DAY—MORNING SESSION.

Chicago, Ill., August 14, 1923.

The convention was called to order at nine o'clock a. m. on the above date, President Perkins in the chair.

The Chairman announced that delegates would be allowed to sign attendance cards until 9:30, and no cards would be received that were presented after that time.

A representative of the International Life & Trust Company of Moline, Illinois, was introduced by President Perkins to speak on the subject of group insurance for the members of the Cigar Makers' Union. Mr. Wright, the representative, spoke in a most interesting manner on life insurance, and with the aid of a blackboard illustrated many points in his address and gave the delegates a vast amount of information and statistics on the subject. He explained in detail the plan of insurance proposed by his company, an outline of which and the proposed contract with the Union had been printed with the minutes of the preceding day and was at that time in the hands of the delegates.

At the close of the address numerous questions were asked by the delegates, all of which were answered by President Perkins and Mr. Wright. The chairman stated that the questions would be printed, together with the answers, if the delegates wished that done. Later the delegates were advised to prepare their questions and submit them to the Committee on Constitution which had the subject under consideration, and the members of the committee and Mr. Wright would give the delegates the information in their possession with regard to the insurance proposition.

Delegates Gunlock, Rhine, Burns, Brey, Stack, Josephson, Lowy, Hilfers, Hetzner, Van Horn, Sheehan, Morkin, Martinez, Listerman and Wagener, discussed the subject of re-insurance during and following the address of Mr. Wright and asked a number of questions with regard to the details of the proposition.

Several questions were asked by Delegate Gompers and President Perkins. The answers to these questions conveyed to the delegates valuable information with regard to the proposed plan of the International Life and Trust Company.

At the close of the discussion Delegate Gompers moved that the convention express its gratitude to Mr. Wright for the intelligent and masterful manner in which he had presented the subject of re-insurance to the convention. The motion was adopted by unanimous vote.

President Perkins added his individual thanks to the speaker for the information he had submitted and also for his offer to meet with the committee having the subject in charge.

Mr. Wright expressed his appreciation of the vote of thanks and stated that he felt it was given with deep sincerity on the part of the delegates.

Delegate Asch, Secretary of the Committee on Credentials, reported that A. E. Higgs, Orlando, Florida, had been delayed by a train wreck, and that Charles Emmert, Erie, Pa., had been delayed by illness in his family.

The report was received and made a matter of record.

The Chairman of the Local Committee on Arrangements, Mr. Bose, announced that the delegates were invited to take a trip over the boulevards at four o'clock, that a group photograph would be taken at Grant's Monument, and upon their return to the hall that refreshments would be served.

A motion was made to accept the invitation and to suspend the rules to allow for adjournment at four o'clock. The motion was seconded and carried.

At 12 o'clock, noon, the convention was adjourned to reconvene at 1:30 o'clock p. m. of the same day.

SECOND DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 1:30 o'clock p. m., Tuesday, August 14th, by President Perkins.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

Chairman Van Horn: I believe the report we will submit is comprehensive in what has been done with the several amendments that have been submitted by various local unions. It might appear at a first glance that the committee embodied but a few of the amendments in their report. The reason for that is largely that in attempting to present a comprehensive plan embodying the group insurance idea on the annual renewal basis we felt it was necessary for the committee, in order to get it correctly before the convention, to present the whole plan, covering all the sections dealing with or pertinent to the death benefit portion of our constitution. In order to do that we were forced to lay over—not nonconcur in—many of the amendments pertinent to various clauses of the constitution.

President Perkins: This report will not be acted upon today. The report will be read to you at this time in order that it may appear in the proceedings of today's session, which will be distributed tomorrow morning. We will start amending the constitution at Section 1, regardless of whether the committee has any amendments or not. Any delegate may offer any amendments he chooses to the section.

Delegate Hilfers, Secretary of the Committee, read the following report:

Your Committee on Constitutions, appointed in accordance with Section 10 of the constitution, met in Chicago, Monday, August 6, 1923.

Chairman Van Horn called the committee to order and it proceeded to elect permanent officers as follows: Chairman, R. E. Van Horn; Secretaries E. B. Hanson and Henry Hilfers.

The committee then proceeded to take up the work of offering amendments to the constitution for consideration of the convention and to act upon the amendments submitted by the various local unions.

Your committee herewith submits the following report which is unanimous, with the exception of Delegate Hilfers, who desires to be recorded as voting in favor of amendment to Section 56 as offered by No. 138, Newark.

Amendments before the committee for consideration are enumerated as follows:

- To Section 2—By Tampa unions.
- To Section 5—By No. 14 and Tampa unions.
- To Section 7—By Tampa unions.
- To Section 10—By Tampa unions.

- To Section 61a—By No. 2.
- To Section 64—By Tampa unions.
- To Section 76—By No. 32 and Tampa unions.
- To Section 77—By No. 32.
- To Section 79—By No. 53 and Tampa unions.
- To Section 80—By Tampa unions.
- To Section 88—By Tampa unions.
- To Section 104—By No. 2.
- To Section 117—By Tampa unions.
- To Section 118—By Tampa unions.
- To Section 137—By Tampa unions.
- To Section 140—By No. 2.
- To Section 146—By No. 32.
- To Section 147—By No. 32 and 431.
- To Section 157—By No. 2.
- To Section 159—By No. 2.

To Section 164—By Tampa unions.

To Section 172—By No. 2.

To Section 173—By No. 32.

To Section 202—By Tampa unions.

To Section 213—By No. 133 and Tampa unions.

To Section 214—By No. 133.

All amendments submitted to the committee were carefully considered and acted upon as in the judgment of the committee the subject matter merited.

Amendments upon which no action is hereinafter reported are in possession of the chairman of the committee and are at the disposal of the delegates from the unions submitting same.

Section 2.—Amend Section 2 by striking out (1922) and inserting 1925 and inserting

"After two years have elapsed from the date of that convention, a majority of the members voting on the question shall decide when the next convention shall be held.

"Section 139. Upon the death of a member who has been such continuously for three months or longer period next preceding his death, the sum of one hundred dollars shall be paid toward defraying his funeral or cremation expenses. Said sum of one hundred dollars shall be paid to such person or persons as shall have paid or become liable for such funeral or cremation expenses, and if such expenses have not been paid it shall be the duty of the officer paying such benefit to see that it is applied to the purpose for which it is intended.

However, any member of the International Union has the right to purchase additional death benefits in multiples of one hundred dollars up to four hundred dollars, so that the total death benefit on each member's life shall not exceed five hundred dollars.

"Provided, however, that this shall not apply to new members who are affected with chronic diseases or are over 50 years of age.

"Members purchasing additional death benefits in multiples of one hundred dollars shall pay five cents a week additional dues for each one hundred dollars.

"For example:

"For one hundred dollars additional—45 cents a week.

"For two hundred dollars additional—50 cents a week.

"For three hundred dollars additional—55 cents a week.

"For four hundred dollars additional—60 cents a week."

Sec. 140. Amend by striking out entire section.

Sec. 145 to read:

"Sec. 145. Upon the death of any member entitled to death benefit, the Secretary of the local union shall at once notify the International President, giving a full record of the membership of such member, as far as can be obtained from the books of such local union. The International President shall compare such record with the records of the International office and notify the local union of his findings. The International President shall pay the benefit to the local union of which the deceased was a member."

Sec. 150. In conformity with amendments proposed by Unions 2, Buffalo, and 138, Newark, your committee on constitution recommends the following:

Amend Sec. 150 by striking out in the first paragraph of that section all after the word "with" on line 10 and by striking out all of second paragraph of Sec. 150.

Section as amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 150. Each local union shall furnish through the shop collectors or committeemen (as the case may be) to all strictly union shops, free of charge, as many of the labels as may be required from week to week for all cigars actually made by members of the union and persons holding retiring cards. All label orders shall be signed by the shop collector; the label order blanks shall be furnished by the International President at cost. No shop shall be considered a strictly union shop unless the packers of the shop are members of the International Union, and the apprentice law of the local union be complied with.

"All labels must be pasted upon the boxes before the boxes leave the factory."

Sec. 151. Amend Sec. 151 by striking out all of second paragraph.

Sec. 152. Amend Sec. 152 by striking out at the end of line 6 the word ("five") and inserting the word "one."

Section as amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 153. No employer or member of the union who is a manufacturer shall be deprived of the use of the label prior to a regular trial, with an opportunity to present his case personally, or by any member of the union, or in writing to the local Executive Board. In places where more than one charter is in force, the joint label committee shall be the trial board; each union to have at least one representative on the same.

"All charges must be submitted in writing."

Sec. 155. Amend Sec. 155 by striking out the entire section and inserting new section, to read:

"Sec. 155. Manufacturers operating more than one shop shall not be allowed the use of the union label unless all shops operated by such manufacturers are strictly union shops.

"Manufacturers removing their shop to another locality in time of difficulty shall not be allowed the use of the union label without the consent of the union where the original shop was located. Provided, however, that the local union under whose jurisdiction the shop has located may, in accordance with section 213, appeal the question of re-opening said shop to a popular vote of the local unions, stating the reasons therefor; a majority of all votes cast shall decide the question.

"No brands of cigars made in both union and non-union shops shall be allowed to bear the Union Label.

"Should a manufacturer lay off part or the whole force of his employes on account of lack of work, all former employes must be given preference when work is resumed."

Sec. 156. Amend Sec. 156 by striking out on lines 3 and 4 the words ("district") and inserting the word "Union" in place thereof.

Strike out all of second paragraph of Sec. 156.

Sec. 157. In conformity to an amendment proposed by Union 2, Buffalo, Sec. 157 is amended as follows:

Amend Sec. 157 by striking out on line 7 all after the word "time."

Sec. 172. In conformity to an amendment proposed by Union 2, Buffalo, Sec. 172 is amended as follows:

Amend Sec. 172 by adding on next to last line after the word "thereafter" the following: "The financial secretary and treasurer of each local union shall be bonded in a responsible bonding company in an amount sufficient to protect the International Union from loss, the local union shall require such bond to be renewed annually. The premium for such bond shall not be a charge against the local union's percentage allowance. Any union violating this section shall be suspended.

Sec. 190. Amend Sec. 190 by inserting after the word "approval" on line 4, the following: "At which time the member fined may submit a statement of his case."

Sec. 208. Amend Sec. 208 by striking out the entire section and inserting new section, to read:

"Sec. 208. All persons learning cigar making or packing shall serve an apprenticeship, the time such an apprentice shall serve to be determined by the style of work learned. Those learning strictly hand work and packing shall serve not more than (3) three years; mold work not more than (2) two years; bunch-making or rolling not more than (1) one year; machine workers not more than six months.

"Local unions shall judge the qualifications of apprentices who may make application for membership and pass upon same before maximum time has expired.

"The secretary of each local union shall keep a record of all apprentices serving in strictly union shops, and other shops in the jurisdiction of the local union as far as possible. All apprentices shall be honorary members of the union until their term of apprenticeship has ended, when they must become dues paying members."

Sec. 213. In conformity with amendments proposed by Union 138, Newark, Sec. 213 is amended as follows: Amend Sec. 213 by adding on line 1 after the word "union" the words "or the International Executive Board." Strike out on line 11 after the word "union" the words "within thirty days" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "In the months of January, April, July and October of each year."

Sec. 213 to read:

Amendment to Sec. 213 of the constitution of Cigar Makers' International Union, proposed by Local No. 138 of Newark, N. J.

"Referendum Amendments."

"Sec. 213. Each local union or the International Executive Board shall have the right to propose, through the columns of the Official Journal, amendments to the International Constitution. Each union is required to act upon every amendment at their meeting next following the receipt of the Journal containing such amendments, and report to the International President. Unions failing to comply with this provision shall be fined $5.00. But no union shall be fined for not taking action on a proposed amendment unless the same has been submitted by the International President by circular. Any amendment receiving the endorsement of at least twenty unions shall be submitted to a vote of local unions in the months of January, April, July and October of each year, and if adopted shall take effect and remain in force from the first day of the month succeeding the official publication of its adoption."

Sec. 213½. New section to read as follows:

"Sec. 213½. Every local union shall designate a meeting to be held in the months of January, April, July and October of each year for the purpose of voting on amendments proposed to the constitution through the Official Journal, and shall notify all members to be present at that stated meeting (retiring card holders to only vote on sick and death benefit amendments); members failing to attend such meeting shall be fined the sum of fifty cents, the same to be paid within eight (8) weeks, or failing in which, the member shall be suspended.

"Members who have reported sick (or jurisdiction members) and who have been placed on the sick list shall be exempt from the fine."

Sec. 219. Amend Sec. 219 by striking out on line 2 the word ("August") and inserting the word "December" by striking out in the second paragraph, last line, the word ("June") and inserting the word "October"; also by striking out in the last paragraph, last line, the words ("June and July") and inserting therefor the words "October and November."

Committee on Constitution.

R. E. VAN HORN, Chairman.

H. HILFERS, Secretary.

E. J. STACK,

E. B. HANSON, Asst. Secy.,

M. GONZALEZ.

Chairman Van Horn: You will notice in reading the report we have read some sections prior to others that preceded them in the constitution. We have not omitted anything; these sections will be read later.

President Perkins: The report will be received and will appear in the proceedings tomorrow morning.

The election of five members as a committee on Officers' Reports is provided for in the constitution. The nomination and election of that committee is now in order.

The following delegates were nominated for membership on the Committee on Officers' Reports:

Delegates F. F. Wunderlich, Des Moines, Iowa; H. R. Chapp, Chicago; J. H. Riley, Danbury, Conn.; Joseph Cermack, New York City; H. M. Good, Philadelphia; William Collins, Boston; P. R. Martinez, Porto Rico; Alexander Rosenthal, Utica, N. Y.; T. F. Burns, Tacoma, Wash.; Phil Wagaman, McSherrystown, Pa.; Jack Rhine, New York City; Joseph Bauer, Cincinnati; Jack Melhado, New York City; Emma Wagener, Wheeling, W. Va.; Frank Marchand, Brooklyn, N. Y.; J. W. Russell, Springfield, Mass.; Sam Riefkin, Denver, Colo.

The election was proceeded with in the usual way.

President Perkins appointed the following delegates to serve as tellers and to count the vote: Delegates A. P. Abel, Sioux Falls, S. D.; J. Braham, Brooklyn; W. W. Bowen, Dallas, Tex.; S. E. Duncan, Coney Island.

The tellers later announced the result of the election as follows:

Total number of votes cast, 208. Of these votes J. F. Wunderlich received 45; H. R. Chapp, 89; J. H. Riley, 93; Joseph Cermack, 21; H. M. Good, 96; William Collins, 130; P. R. Martinez, 96; Alex. Rosenthal, 25; T. F. Burns, 60; Phil Wagaman, 14; Jack Rhine, 59; Joseph Bauer, 51; Jack Melhado, 31; Mrs. Emma Wagener, 48; Frank Marchand, 6; J. W. Russell, 45; Sam Riefkin, 35.

Delegates Chapp, Riley, Good, Collins and Martinez, having received the highest number of votes, were declared elected to serve as a Committee on Officers' Reports.

Mr. Harry E. Scheck, President of the Chicago Trades Union League, and also a representative of the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, was introduced by the chairman.

Mr. Scheck gave a very interesting account of the work done by Trades Union Label League and by the Department. He emphasized the necessity of a campaign for promoting the sale of goods bearing the union label in every locality where labor is organized. He called attention to the fact that in the past two years an effort was made to establish the so-called American Plan or non union shop in Chicago, and one of the means adopted as a protest against the establishment of the plan was a campaign to induce the members of organized labor to use their purchasing power in the right way; that is, to purchase only goods bearing the union label when they could be obtained.

Mr. Scheck spoke briefly of the manner in which Col. W. T. Axton, of Louisville, Ky., a manufacturer of cigarettes, had assisted in the work of the League in promoting the sale of union label tobacco products. He stated that Mr. Axton had paid him a salary equal to that he had been getting in the press room where he had been employed in order that he might be able to hold meetings during the day and visit merchants in the interest of the work of the League.

Mr. Thomas Kelley, a Vice-President of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, addressed the convention in behalf of the striking members of organized labor in Streator, Illinois. He stated that the strike has been in progress for more than two and one-half years; that the members as a whole have remained loyal to their organizations and refused to return to work without contracts.

Mr. Kelley stated that the strike was begun by the Brickmakers when the manufacturers proposed to run the plants open shop, have the men work ten hours a day and reduce the wages to 37½ cents per hour, although they had been working under signed closed shop contracts for seven years, with an eight-hour day, and at very much higher wages. Other locals were afterwards drawn into the struggle and increased the number of men on strike to more than 1,500. He spoke of the splendid help that had been extended the federal unions involved by the American Federation of Labor, and of the generous assistance given by other labor organizations. He assured the delegates that more assistance was needed to carry on the fight against the manufacturers in Streator, who have up to this time been forced to expend a fund of more than three million dollars tax in their efforts to establish the non-union shop in that city.

In closing Mr. Kelley asked the delegates to provide for some donation to assist the strikers and their suffering families, and to report on conditions in Streator to their locals upon their return to their homes.

Absentees—Louis Anderson, Local 387, Yankton; J. G. Beckman, 302, Tecumseh; Clark Bailly, 488, Middletown; V. S. Cuesta, 462, Tampa; Mrs. Lola Carstens, 513, Key West; J. Daily, 50, Terre Haute; Simon Eliam, 375, Spokane; August Otto, 331, Watertown, Wis.; Jessie Traub, 296, Washington.

At 4 o'clock p. m. the convention was adjourned to reconvene at 9 o'clock a. m. Wednesday, August 15th.

THIRD DAY—MORNING SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 9 o'clock a. m., Thursday, August 15th, by President Perkins.

Absent—J. O. Cochran.

Appointment of Committees.

President Perkins: In compliance with Rule 7 of the Order of Business I desire to announce the appointment of a Committee on Strike, as follows:

Delegates R. S. Sexton, A. G. Gariepy, Otto Buch, Harry Koller, F. R. Walker.

Committee on Resolutions: Delegates Samuel Gompers, J. F. Wunderlich, T. J. Griffin, George F. Hitz, J. S. Josephson.

Committee on Rules: J. Hayford, T. F. Garvey, George Wilton, J. Cermack, J. Bauer.

Committee on Mileage: J. Rhine, T. E. Welch, George Apholt, Louis Ziebell, Phil Benjamin.

Delegate Sollenberger, Decatur, Ill.: I would like to move that the convention authorize taking up a collection for the striking people in Streator, Ill.

No objection was offered to the introduction of the motion, and Delegate Sollenberger moved: That a collection be taken in the convention for the Streator strikers, and that the suggestion of Vice-President Kelley of the State Federation be carried out, that is, that the delegates report the facts to their locals and urge them to make donations. The motion was adopted by unanimous vote.

The Committee on Credentials reported progress.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

Section 1. No amendments were offered by the committee or the delegates and the section was readopted.

Section 2. Amendment by the Committee.

Strike out the figures 1922 and insert 1925; also reinsert the two following paragraphs that are now printed in the constitution, which were taken out by a referendum vote.

The amendment of the Committee was adopted.

Sections 3 and 4. No change.

Section 5. Amendment by Delegate H. C. Traeger, Brooklyn.

Strike out all to the word "member," inclusive, and insert the following: "Each member shall be entitled to as many votes as his union has members."

Amendment by Delegate Frank Andrien, Tampa, Fla.

Strike out the figure 100 in lines 2 and 3 and insert 25 in lieu thereof.

Delegate Owen, No. 133, stated that delegates had amendments they wished to offer from the floor, but they were not in written form.

The chairman announced that the amendments would have to be presented in written form.

The amendments were discussed by Delegates Traeger, No. 149; Vincent, No. 278; Brey, No. 97; Goldstein, No. 231; Chairman Van Horn; Wolf, No. 90; Collins, No. 97; Hanson, No. 266; Gunlock, No. 201; Hilfers, No. 138; Bartels, No. 97; Emmert, No. 107; McGregor, No. 415; Grabenstein, No. 141; Martin, No. 27; Sheehan, No. 25; Stacey, No. 118; Cueto, No. 474; Rhine, No. 90; Braham, No. 87; Owen, No. 133; Good, No. 165; Martinez, No. 460; Stack, No. 202; Riley, No. 180; Merhoff, No. 332; Fales, No. 462; Burns, No. 113; Koster, No. 507; President Perkins.

Delegate Brey: When we come to vote on this I am going to demand a roll call.

President Perkins: It will require 40 delegates to call for an aye and nay vote. Are there forty delegates who desire a roll call?

Forty-six delegates announced that they desired a roll call on the amendment proposed by Delegate Andrien, to strike out 100 in lines 2 and 3, Section 5, and insert 25 in lieu thereof.

The following delegates voted in the affirmative on the question of giving each delegate one vote for each 25 members he represents:

J. Brady, Jas. Sheehan, J. Murren, James Peters, Jno. E. Renier, F. J. W. Alt-heide, John W. Russell, F. F. Lang, C. Kemmerer, Jacob Rhine, Elias Wolf, Albert S. Horne, Wm. Collins, A. Bartels, C. J. The amendment was defeated by a vote of 48 delegates representing 86½ votes in the affirmative and 161 delegates representing 192 votes in the negative.

Delegate Traeger: What has become of my amendment?

President Perkins: The convention voted against the Tampa amendment which was to strike out 100 and insert 25. You do not suppose the delegates would vote for your amendment which would allow you to cast the full vote of your membership.

Sections 6 and 7. No change.

Section 8. Amendment by the committee.

Add after the word "delegate," line 5, the words "The law governing the election of international officers shall apply to the election of delegates."

Delegate Van Horn: The constitution we are working under now does not specifically provide for the rule we are working under. The question has been raised in locals where several delegates were running. If they were electing three delegates and two received an absolute majority and there were five or six candidates left out, the question was whether they should take the highest or whether all of them shall continue to be candidates. The amendment is perhaps the law as it would be interpreted, but we insert it to avoid confusion.

President Perkins: The law provides that the majority must prevail. If there is no specific law parliamentary law provides that the lowest candidate shall be dropped. If there are four to be elected and twenty have been nominated, the eight highest go on the second ballot, so there is bound to be an election on the second ballot.

Delegate Burns, Tacoma: If that amendment is adopted will it make it necessary for each local union to have ballots printed in conformity with the laws governing the election of international officers?

President Perkins: Absolutely not. It applies only to the method insofar as the number of votes and ballots to be taken. It applies in no other respect so far as printed ballots and the appointment of tellers is concerned.

The amendment of the committee was adopted.

Sections 9 and 10. No change.

Amendment by Delegate Martinez, Porto Rica, to be known as Section 10-a.

Special Conferences.

Section 10a. Special conferences called by the International President should be held yearly on the first of May of every year. At these conferences all the local unions of every state, territory or possession of the United States will be represented by only one delegate, same to be elected by all the unions of the state, territory or possession duly combined and according to the rules, regulations and instructions as issued by the International Executive Board. The International Executive Board is hereby authorized and empowered to issue such rules, regulations and instructions as they may deem fit and convenient to carry out the purposes of this law.

The expenses of each delegate to be borne in proportion by the local union electing him. Every delegate to be entitled to only one vote, regardless of the number of union members he represents.

At these conferences general conditions of the trade and cigar and tobacco industries will be discussed as well as the organization thereof.

Any plans, resolutions or amendments adopted by these conferences will become operative and into effect as soon as published in the official journal after due ratification by a majority vote of the membership.

The International Executive Board should attend these special conferences and should render a special report on conditions and work performed during the previous year.

P. RIVERA MARTINEZ,
Delegate Union 460.

Delegate Martinez moved that action on the amendment be deferred until it could be printed in the daily proceedings, in order to allow the delegates to study it. The motion was seconded and carried.

Section 11. Amendment by committee.

Amend Section 11 by striking out the words "and treasurer," line 3, and striking out of line 4 the following: "the treasurer to have a vote on all questions, with the exception of appeals taken from the decision of the President."

Chairman Van Horn: We have an officer now known as treasurer, but he has no duties to perform as treasurer; his power on the Executive Board has been limited to a great extent, and the committee simply proposes to eliminate an appendage that seemingly has no value and no connection with the necessities of the Cigar Makers International Union.

President Perkins: For a number of years after the constitution was framed the officers consisted of president, secretary and treasurer. They first struck out the secretary and then the treasurer, but this was left in this section. It really has no meaning; there is no treasury of the International Union; the International President acts as treasurer; the funds are held in trust by the local unions for the International. The only funds that come to the International are for running expenses from month to month.

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Hayford, No. 68, Rhine No. 90, and Van Horn, 14.

President Perkins stated that the reinsurance plan would not change the fact that the locals would hold the money in their treasuries.

The amendment of the committee was adopted.

Sections 12 to 23, both inclusive, were re-adopted without changes or amendments.

Section 24. Amendment by the committee.

Strike out 55 from line 4 and insert 75.

The amendment was discussed by Delegate Braham and President Perkins.

The amendment offered by the committee was adopted.

Sections 25 to 47, both inclusive, were adopted without changes or amendments.

The following resolutions were introduced by various delegates:

Resolution No. 1.

Submitted by Delegate Henry F. Hilfers, No. 138, of Newark, N. J.

Resolved, That the Executive Board of the Cigar Makers International Union are hereby instructed to devise ways and means to procure advertisements to be placed in the Official Journal.

Resolution No. 2.

Submitted by Delegate Gus Goldstein, No. 292, of Brooklyn, N. Y.:

That all International Vice Presidents be delegates to all conventions of the C. M. I. V. of A., by virtue of their office.

Resolution No. 3.

Whereas, Section 159, page 43 of the Constitution reads:

"Local unions shall be allowed $1.00 per capita on all 30-cent and 60-cent contributing members per annum out of the general fund for label agitation by circulars, newspaper advertising, committee, etc., in their respective districts, the per capita tax to be based on class of members named above in local unions on May 31st," and

Whereas, There are a great many locals who draw and use the said fund for other purposes than label agitation which is an injustice to our local unions that use the fund as it should be used, and

Whereas, The local unions that draw the one dollar per capita for label agitation and put on local label assessment besides, are paying the bill that other locals should be paying; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we amend Section 159, page 43, by striking out the entire paragraph and substitute the following:

"That $1.00 per capita on all 30-cent and 60-cent contributing members per annum out of the general fund, be set aside for two years to create an advertising fund to be known as a universal advertising fund, same to be under the supervision of the International Executive Board to contract for permanent advertisement and distribution of same, but this does not debar any local from assessing themselves for local label advertisement."

Endorsed by Local 335 of Hammond, and introduced by Delegate S. T. Leonard.

Resolution No. 4.

Whereas, The Cigar Industry is badly in need of organization, and

Whereas, The C. M. I. U. of A. is ever willing to organize the unorganized; therefore be it

Resolved, That the C. M. I. U. of A., suspend the initiation fee for one year from the date of adoption of this resolution; and be it further Resolved, That we urge and use every endeavor to have the unorganized workers of the cigar industry join the C. M. I. U. of A.

J. BRAHAM, No. 87.

Resolution No. 5.

During the administration of Ex-President Taft Congress enacted a law allowing an unlimited importation of cigars containing not more than 20 per cent of foreign tobaccos from the Philippine Islands, thereby depriving of employment at least 3,500 cigarmakers; therefore be it

Resolved, That the International President in conjunction with the Executive Board be authorized to appoint a committee to act in conjunction with the A. F. of L., also seek the aid of other bodies whose interests are identical with our own so as to induce Congress either to repeal or modify the above Act so as to control the importation to a minimum.

LEWIS GOLDSTEIN,
Nos. 131 and 147.

Resolution No. 6.

Whereas, The dumping grounds for non-union cigars are to a great extent in the places where there are no union cigar factories, and in places where the shops are small. In order to aid the good union cigar maker, and to aid in fighting the non-union people, I submit the following amendment:

That we strike out all of Section 211 and insert the following:

"Union cigarmakers operating a cigar factory, and employing no journeymen cigar makers, be allowed one apprentice."

Submitted by William Gunlock, Union No. 201, Rock Island, Ill.

Resolution No. 7.

Whereas, Believing that the trade union movement is about to advance rapidly again and believing that we should endeavor to do all in our power to help it, we are of the opinion that steps should be taken to bring about more solidarity among the different union bodies. The union label button, and shop card should be our guiding light, and

Whereas, There are in existence 54 different union labels, buttons, and shop cards. We are of the opinion that this is an obstacle in our path of progress, as so many different labels, buttons and shop cards are confusing to the rank and file of the trade union movement; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this convention recommend to the label department of the A. F. of L. that they promote a "Universal" label button and shop card.

And we suggest that label be the A. F. of L. union label, or any other design they may decide upon.

Trusting the convention will give this resolution their most earnest consideration, we remain,

Fraternally,
UNION 27, Toronto, Ont.
A. McDonald, Secretary.
N. J. Martin, President.

Resolution No. 8.

Whereas: Sec. 11 of the Constitution of the American Federation of Labor provides that the representation of local unions in central labor unions shall be as follows: 50 members or less, 2 delegates; 100 or less, 3 delegates; 250 or less, 4 delegates; 500 or less, 5 delegates; and 1 additional delegate for each additional 500 or majority fraction thereof; and

Whereas, In many places this causes a condition detrimental to the best interests of the general labor movement, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the delegates of the Cigar-makers' Union to the next convention of the American Federation of Labor be instructed to submit an amendment to Section 11 allowing central labor unions to determine what the representation shall be in their respective organizations.

CHARLES EMMERT, No. 107.

At 12 o'clock, noon, the convention adjourned to reconvene at 1:30 o'clock p. m. of the same day.

THIRD DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 1:30 o'clock p. m., Wednesday, August 15th, by President Perkins.

Report of Committee on Rules.

Delegate Harford, Chairman, reported as follows:

Your Committee begs leave to submit for your consideration the following rules:

Rule No. 1.—That the morning session be from 9 o'clock until 12, and the afternoon session from 1:30 o'clock until 5 p. m.

Rule No. 2.—That no delegates be allowed to leave the hall without permission from the chair, and for violation of this rule the respective union represented shall be notified.

Rule No. 3.—That all resolutions and amendments to the Convention be submitted to the Secretary in writing, and in duplicate.

Rule No. 4.—That no delegates shall speak more than once on the same question until all who wish have had an opportunity, nor more than ten minutes the first time and five minutes the second time, unless permission be given by a majority vote of the convention.

Rule No. 5.—No document shall be read more than once except by consent of the majority of the convention. This shall not be so construed as to apply to reports of Committee.

Rule No. 6.—It shall require forty delegates to call for the Ayes and Nays.

Rule No. 7.—Any amendment or resolution properly introduced cannot be laid on the table until the introducer of such amendment or resolution has had an opportunity to speak. No motion to lay on the table shall be entertained unless seconded by twenty-five delegates.

Rule No. 8.—Upon the call of a question by twenty-five delegates the President shall inquire, shall the question now be put, and if decided by a majority of votes the President shall place the various resolutions and amendments in their respective order without further debate before the convention. If a majority is not secured for the question it shall not again be put until other business has intervened.

Rule No. 9.—All resolutions to be numbered in rotation as introduced. The number to be announced by the clerk.

Rule No. 10.—That the convention shall not adjourn while a delegate has the floor.

Rule No. 11.—That no motion to lay on the table to postpone or for the previous question shall be accepted from any delegate at close of his argument on any pending motion.

Rule No. 12.—Resolutions shall be introduced 15 minutes before the hours fixed for adjournment.

Rule No. 13.—Members on entering the hall for the morning or afternoon sessions shall deposit a card furnished by the clerk of the Convention with his name and number of the union he represents with the Sergeant at Arms. No card shall be accepted by the Sergeant at Arms after 9:30 a. m. or 2:15 p. m. Delegates failing to comply with Rule 13 shall be marked absent.

Rule No. 14.—Debate shall not begin on any question unless the mover has had the opportunity to preface the same.

Rule No. 15.—That no Rule adopted can be altered except by two-third vote of the Convention.

Rule No. 16.—All questions not provided for in these Rules shall be decided in accordance to the American Parliamentary Procedure as provided in Cushing's Manual.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN M. HAYFORD, Chairman.
JOSEPH CERMAK,
JOSEPH BAUER,
GEO. WILTON,
T. F. GARVEY, Secretary.

Delegate Brey, Boston, moved to amend Rule 6 by striking out 40 as the number required to demand a roll call and inserting 25. The amendment was defeated.

Delegate Hetzner, Cleveland, moved to amend Rule 1 by providing that three night sessions of two hours each be held during the second week of the convention.

The Chairman announced that a motion could be made to suspend the rule and hold a night session at any time it became necessary to do so. The amendment was withdrawn.

Section 48. No change.

Section 49. Amendment by Delegate Butcher, No. 248.

Amend by striking out the words: "The decision on appeal rendered by the International President shall be published in the official journal within four months from date of receipt of appeal," and insert in place thereof the following:

"The decision on appeal rendered by the International President shall be made known, and published in the Official Journal within four months from date of receipt of appeal. In the event of an appeal to the International Executive Board against any decision rendered by the International President, the decision of the International Executive Board shall be made known, and published in the Official Journal within six months from date of receipt of appeal."

Also amend by striking out the words, "Before taking an appeal, members shall be compelled to submit their grievance to the local union of which they are members, which shall investigate the same, and if the decision of said local union is unsatisfactory to such member, then appeal can be made to the International President," and insert in place thereof the following:

"Before taking an appeal, members shall be compelled to submit their grievance to the local union of which they are members, which shall investigate the same, and if the decision of said local union is unsatisfactory to such member, then appeal can be made to the International President, but this shall in nowise apply to members who may be penalized for strike-breaking. The right to rescind penalties imposed on strike-breakers shall be vested solely in the local union which imposes the penalty."

Delegate Brey moved to amend the second amendment by striking out the words "four months" and inserting in lieu thereof the words "thirty days."

The question was discussed by Delegates Brey, No. 97; Butcher, No. 248; President Perkins, Delegates Gompers and Vincent, No. 278.

The first amendment was defeated.

Delegate Butcher asked to have action on the second amendment deferred so that he might include in it some things that had been omitted.

President Perkins: You can do that when we go over the constitution the second time. If there is no objection your amendment and Delegate Brey's will be held in abeyance.

Section 50. Amendment by Delegate Braham, No. 87.

Add after the word "rules," line 3, the words, "advertise the union label in different localities."

President Perkins: The amendment is out of order; it is not germane to the question. That should be offered when we reach page 39. There was a provision in the constitution authorizing the president to advertise the union label up until the Milwaukee convention, and there was an assessment of 25 cents a year by which this advertising could be liquidated. This provision was removed from the constitution and it now provides that local unions shall be allowed the sum of one dollar per annum for the purpose of advertising the union label.

Section 50 was adopted without change.

Section 51. Amendment by Delegate Butcher, No. 248.

Amend by striking out the words, "The president shall publish monthly in the official journal the names of new applicants for membership in the International Union through the local unions."

The amendment was adopted, and the section as amended was adopted.

Sections 52, 53, 54 and 55. No change.

President Perkins announced that the first vice-president was prepared to submit his report, as required by the constitution, and suggested that it be heard at this time in order that it might be printed in the daily proceedings.

The following report was submitted:

REPORT OF FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 13, 1923.

To the Officers and Delegates of the 24th Convention of the Cigar Makers International Union of America.

Fellow Delegates:

I have the honor of submitting the following report for your consideration:

Since the last convention there have been 20 appeals to the Executive Board against decisions of the International President. In 14 of these the decision of the International President was sustained by a unanimous vote of the Board and in one case by a vote of 6 to 1. Five cases are still pending, no votes having been received thereon.

One of these cases was appealed to the membership against the decision of the board. No report has been received as to the result of the vote thereon.

When appeals are taken from any decision rendered by our International President the Executive Board becomes an Appellate Board and the Vice President is the recipient of the votes of the members of the Executive Board upon the appeals. Of course when appeals are received by the First Vice President it is his duty to communicate with the International President, transmitting a copy of the appeal and requesting from him such answer to the appeal as he deems it his duty to make.

It then becomes the duty of the First Vice President, upon receipt of said answer, to transmit the appeal, the International President's answer and all documents in the case to the Second Vice President by mail, and requesting him to transmit the entire correspondence to the Third Vice President, and by him to the Fourth Vice President, and so on, until all the correspondence and all the votes are received by the First Vice President, whose duty it is to submit a report of the decision of the Executive Board upon the appeal for publication in the then forthcoming issue of our Official Journal.

My experience in the position of First Vice President, and therefore as Chairman of the Board of Appeals, and covering a period of years, suggests itself that I submit the fact that whether these appeals are important or relatively unimportant, the appellants feel a deep interest in a decision being reached as early a period as physically possible. However, it can be realized that when the appeals are made and then submitted to all the members of the Executive Board for their consideration and vote, it is not possible that a decision upon the appeal shall have been reached within a period of three months; even though every member of the Executive Board shall vote promptly upon the appeal and transmit promptly the documents in the case, the members of the Executive Board are located at widely distant points, and though the decisions reached by the Executive Board are in my judgment just and fair, it is a cause for disquietude and anxiety on the part of the appellants that their appeals are not decided more promptly.

In nearly every appeal received by me letters have reached me from appellants inquiring why decisions has not reached them upon their appeal, to all of which answers were necessarily made advising them that the First Vice President had no control over the situation and that the only further indication of the decision reached will be found in the Official Journal immediately upon receipt of the last vote of the members of the Executive Board.

Of course it is seldom possible that copies of all of the appeals and answers and all the documents submitted in evidence in the case can be made, but frequently the evidence submitted is voluminous and in printed form and this cannot be duplicated without great expense, so it seems that this avenue of relief is not open to us.

In recent years, however, our International President has convened the Executive Board upon several occasions, and I am submitting the suggestion, not necessarily for actual adoption, but at least for consideration, whether the appeals might not be taken to the Executive Board at such periodical meetings of the Executive Board as our International President might convene.

Fraternally submitted,

SAMUEL GOMPERS,
First Vice-President.

The report was received, made part of the daily proceedings and referred to the Committee on Officers' Reports, except the suggestion as to time, and that was referred to the Committee on Constitution.

Delegate Gompers presiding.

The Committee on Constitution continued its report, as follows:

Section 56. Amendment by committee.

Strike out after the words "Executive Board," line 2, the words, "at least six," and insert the words "one or more."

Amendment to Section 56 by Delegate A. E. Wagner, No. 210. After the words "Executive Board," line 2, strike out the words "at least six," and insert "not to exceed three," the balance of section to remain unchanged.

Amendment to Section 56 by Delegate Burns, No. 113.

Strike out paragraph 2 of said section. No other change in section.

Amendment to Section 56 by Delegate Emery, No. 501.

Strike out the word "six," line 2, and insert the word "seven." Also in same section, line 3, after the word "organizers," insert the following: "one of whom shall be a stogie maker;" also after the word "located," line 7, insert the words "except the stogie makers' organizer, who shall be located in what is known as the Stogie District."

The amendment was signed by Emma Wagner, No. 516; George B. Graham, No. 501; Henry C. Nolte, No. 479; J. H. Emery, No. 501.

Amendment to Section 56 by F. F. Lang, No. 53.

"Two general organizers shall be elected to office, to be known as label Advocates and Organizers, at the same time as International Officers, whose duties shall be to organize and instruct Local Unions in the discharge of their duties. They shall visit such towns and cities as the International President may direct. Organizers elected shall be located in such places as in the judgment of the International President, it will be considered practical, provided also that the funds of the International Union would permit of the execution of these provisions. That the International President shall have the power to transfer one or both Organizers to assist other Organizers."

Chairman VanHorn: The committee felt that any intensive campaign might require more than six, that it might require more than ten, and the idea was that whatever district was being organized, if it became necessary to make an intensive campaign, the executive board has power to do these things. The amendment of the stogie makers was considered, and under our provision they would be taken care of.

The various amendments to Section 56 were discussed by Delegates Collins, No. 97; Brey, No. 97; Good, No. 165; Grabenstein, No. 141; Rhine, No. 90.

Further consideration of Section 56 and the various amendments was deferred until Thursday morning.

Section 57. Action deferred.

Sections 58, 59, 60. No change.

Section 61. Amendment by Committee.

Strike out last three lines of the first paragraph, which read: "It shall be optional with the local unions to permit the introduction of the roller and bunch breaking system under their respective jurisdictions, wherever this system does not exist at the present time."

The amendments were discussed by Delegates Brey, No. 97; Van Horn, No. 14; Gunlock, No. 201; Owen, No. 133; Sheehan, No. 25; Lowy, No. 213; Collins, No. 97; Hilfers, No. 138; Rhine, No. 90; Gompers, No. 13.

Further discussion on Section 56 was deferred until Thursday.

At 5 o'clock p. m. the convention was adjourned to reconvene at 9 o'clock a. m., Thursday, August 16.

FOURTH DAY—MORNING SESSION

Chicago, Ill., August 16, 1923.

The convention was called to order at 9 o'clock a. m., on the above date by President Perkins.

Absentees—Delegates James M. Krick and J. J. Trejchel.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

Discussion was resumed on the report of the committee on Section 61 and on the various resolutions submitted by the committee and the delegates.

The discussion was participated in by Delegates Gilliam, No. 4; Chapp, No. 14; Gregory, No. 205; Melhado, No. 144; Manee, No.

42; Braham, No. 87; Wolf, No. 90; Goldstein, No. 131; Cullity, No. 192.

Delegate Riefkin, No. 129, moved to recommit the section to the committee for further consideration.

Delegates from other sections of the country urged that there be no barrier raised against the acceptance of any cigarmaker to membership in the union. The conditions in many organized and partially organized districts were described by these delegates, and they urged that the adoption of the amendment offered by the committee would remove a great deal of the prejudice now existing in the minds of unorganized cigar makers toward the union.

The motion to refer to the committee for further consideration was defeated.

The amendment was discussed by President Perkins, Delegates Hayford, No. 68; Taylor, No. 429; Sigel, Syracuse, No. 6; Lang, No. 53; Bartels, No. 97; Cermack, No. 141; Grabenstein, No. 141; Collins, No. 97; Sexton, No. 110; Stevens, No. 2; Good, No. 165; Stack, No. 202.

Delegate Collins, Boston, requested a roll call on the motion to adopt the amendment offered by the committee. More than forty delegates supported the request, and clerk Hopp proceeded to call the roll.

Roll call on amendment of Committee on Constitution to Section 61 to eliminate the clause providing that "It shall be optional with local unions to permit the introduction of the bunch breaker and roller system under their respective jurisdictions wherever this system does not exist at the present time."

The following delegates voted in the affirmative on the amendment offered by the committee:

John J. Gulnan, Joseph Bauer, J. B. Sigel, J. Brady, T. J. Griffin, Peter Rogers, J. Murren, Jno. E. Renler, Jas. T. Manee, John W. Russell, Christian Kemmerer, James Kearns, C. W. Cawley, Jacob Rhine, E. Wolfe, Albert S. Horne, George Apholt, Geo. Medroes, I. N. Weills, Wm. Collins, A. Bartels, C. J. Blockland, C. D. Brey, Chas. Emmert, T. F. Burns, Henry Linderman, Jas. M. Krick, J. S. Owen, Warren Taylor, Jack Melhado, H. C. Traeger, Chas. A. Smith, Wm. Gunlock, Phillip Benjamin, E. J. Menard, Henry Torger, George Wilton, John Cullity, N. J. La Salle, John Vandewelee, Clarence Cramer, Henry Welland, F. Brophy, T. F. Garvey, W. C. Hoverter, Ed. Burtch, Andrew Butcher, W. H. Donahue, Chas. E. Thies, Frank Bartholomew, Jno. Schurman, Manuel Marrero, Ch. Milliken, Frank Brown, Manuel La Rosa, Thom. M. Coffery, Andrew Schessler, Francisco Chillura, Manuel De Diego, Frank Andrien, Sergio F. Cuervo, Agnes Koster, Jno. F. Howe, Elizabeth A. Foley.

64 delegates, representing 99 votes, voted in the negative.

President Perkins: The amendment of the committee is adopted.

Delegates Chapp, No. 14, and Haley, No. 258, were designated by the chairman as a committee to receive donations for the men on strike against open shop conditions in Streator, Ill.

Delegate O'Neil, Chairman of the Committee on Credentials, made a final report and announced that all the delegates present had the required number of labels in their wearing apparel to entitle them to seats in the convention.

Signed: E. J. O'NEIL, Chairman,
E. M. POLACK,
B. M. ASCH,

Committee on Credentials.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Delegate Riley, No. 180, announced that since the Cleveland convention the following members of the International Union had died: Henry Abrahams, Boston; Sol Sontheimer, Morris Brown, New York; Jerry Kain, Chicago; Wm. J. Cannon, Karl Rausburg, No. 141; William Gaul, No. 118; Chas. Meyer and M. J. Averill, No. 24, and moved as a tribute to their memory that the delegates arise and remain standing in silence for one minute.

Delegate Gompers moved as an addition to the motion: "That there be included in the motion every member of the Cigar Makers' International Union who has passed since the last convention."

Delegate Riley accepted the addition to his motion, and the motion was then adopted by all the delegates arising and remaining standing with bowed heads for one minute.

The following resolution was introduced and referred to the proper committee:

Resolution No. 9.

Submitted by Delegates P. Rivera Martinez, No. 460, and Manual LaRosa, No. 389:

Whereas, It is universally known that the Fascisti reaction has wantonly and traitorously murdered thousands of men, women and children of the working class; that it has burned, sacked and ravaged millions of dollars worth of the workers' property, such as union buildings, co-operatives, libraries, printing plants, trade schools and even sanatoria, as well as countless private homes; that it has thrown into filthy medieval dungeons over 60,000 union men and women without charges or legal indictments; that it has outlawed all labor unions that do not subscribe to its nefarious creed; that it has substituted its own mercenary army of marauders and strikebreakers to the police power of the State; that it has debauched the judiciary to the extent that self-confessed assassins of labor leaders are acquitted without trial "for the good and welfare of the nation"; and that it has all but completely obliterated the very last vestige of the workers' civilization in Italy; and

Whereas, This dastardly movement is no longer confined to Italy alone, but it has become international in scope and action and is now attempting to send Italian scabs into Germany by direct orders from Mussolini, and is busily engaged in assaulting and terrorizing the workers, destroying labor unions and breaking strikes in Bavaria, Hungary, Jugo-Slovakia and elsewhere in Europe, and has even broken out with extreme virulence in Mexico, at the very threshold of the United States, encouraged and supported by the exploiters of every land; and

Whereas, It has come to the knowledge of this body, through the reports of the daily press and direct information from the Italian Chamber of Labor of New York that Fascisti bands are now being organized throughout the United States under the direct orders of Benito Mussolini, the self-appointed dictator of Italy, acting through his diplomatic and consular representatives, the subsidized Italian press and aided and abetted by the bitterest foes of organized labor; and

Whereas, Though claiming to be combating Bolshevism and bootlegging by constitutional means, it is in reality the aim of the Fascisti bands to discredit, weaken, belittle, assault and eventually destroy the Italian labor movement in the United States and all that our Italian fellow-workers have patiently and painfully built during long years of struggle and sacrifice; meaning to deal thereby a heavy blow to the entire American trade union movement which Fascism hates and despises as much as any other movement for the advancement of the toilers the world over; be it

express our horror and abhorrence of the Fascisti domination of Italy and do signify our deepest and most ardent solidarity to our Italian fellow workers whose cause is our cause, while we solemnly assure them that we shall neither rest nor relax in our efforts to assist them in this black hour of their most terrible trial until their great movement has been restored to its full strength and power; be it

Resolved, That we earnestly urge the great American press to investigate conditions in Italy, not only in the large cities, but more especially in the small towns and the country, where millions of human beings are held prostrate in the most brutal and inhuman form of slavery, to the end that American citizens and American public opinion may fully apprehend what a hideous mockery of "popular" government rules now in Italy and; be it

Resolved, That we vehemently protest against any attempt to transplant Fascism in the United States, under any guise, form or mode of operation whatever, pledging ourselves to use every legitimate means at the disposal of our organization to combat and dispel it before it gains root in American soil; and that accordingly we hereby call upon the president and executive council of the American Federation of Labor to take immediate and adequate steps in order that the Fascisti infamy not only be kept out of the United States, but with the direct assistance of American labor, be also blotted out of Italy and the world; and be it finally

Resolved, That the Cigarmakers' Int'l Union grant its fullest moral support to the Italian Chamber of Labor of New York in its present unrelenting campaign against the Fascisti menace for the preservation of the unity, the solidarity, the standards and moral integrity of the American labor movement of which our Italian speaking brother trade unionists are an honored and indissoluble part, while we urge all other labor organizations to do likewise without stint or delay.

At 12 o'clock, noon, the convention was adjourned until 1:30 o'clock p. m. of the same day.

FOURTH DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 1:30 o'clock p. m., Thursday, August 16th, by President Perkins.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

The committee continued the report, as follows:

Section 61-a, adopted by referendum but not included in the constitution.

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61-a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted herein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues of 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $8.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter, in the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments and be entitled to the full benefits.

Four—Any member initiated under Section 61-a securing employment in a factory using the label or which pays the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under 61-a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61-a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

The committee recommended eliminating the entire section, 61-a. The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Sections 62 and 63. No change.

Section 64. Amendment by committee.

Strike out sub-sections (b), (c) and (d) and last paragraph of Section 64; also strike out $75.00 and insert $100 in paragraph 1; also strike out the words "the name shall also be printed in the Official Journal," line 16.

President Perkins: Sub-section (b) was put in the constitution for a good and sufficient reason, which certain unions located in the eastern part of the country know full well. I think that should be left in. If you want to modify it you can do so. The reason it was put in exists today.

The question was discussed by Delegates Brey and Van Horn. The committee then agreed to withdraw the recommendation to eliminate sub-section (b).

Amendment to Section 64 by Delegate Good, Philadelphia: Insert after the word "installment," Line 3, the words "at the request of any local union where an organization campaign is being conducted, the International Executive Board is empowered to allow the local union one-half of the initiation fee, same to be expended for organization purposes only."

Amendment to Section 64 by Delegate Butcher, Jacksonville: Strike from line 11 the words "out of work."

President Perkins: The vote will first come on the report of the committee; then on the amendment of Delegate Good and then on the amendment of Delegate Butcher.

The amendment of the committee was discussed by Delegate Theis, No. 282, and Van Horn, No. 14.

The amendment offered by the committee was adopted by unanimous vote.

The remaining amendments were discussed by Delegates Good, No. 165; Rhine, No. 90; Stacy, No. 118; Sexton, No. 110; Brey, No. 97.

The amendment offered by Delegate Good was adopted.

The amendment offered by Delegate Butcher was adopted.

Delegate Martinez moved to amend by rearranging the sub-sections as made necessary by striking out sub-sections (c) and (d).

Stogie Makers. No change.

Class B. Amendment by committee.

Strike out the words "one half of the regular," lines 1 and 2, first paragraph, and insert in lieu thereof "twenty-five cents."

Amend paragraph 7 to read: "Third: Class B members shall be entitled to the death benefit provided for by the constitution for the regular full dues-paying members, and additional benefits as provided for in Section 139 on payment of five cents a week additional dues for every $100 additional death benefit, and one-half of the sick benefit."

The chairman suggested that consideration of all matters connected with dues be postponed until such time as reinsurance and payment of death benefits was disposed of.

Delegate Stack moved that the convention take up Section 139 and related sections concerning death benefits. The motion was adopted.

Delegate Gompers: The Committee on Resolutions met yesterday. Eight resolutions were handed to us. We are informed that one resolution was introduced this morning. It has not been turned over to us. However, upon those resolutions upon which we have acted we are ready to report through the secretary. Inasmuch as there are a number of matters in these resolutions which propose changes in the constitution, it is necessary for us to report to you in the best way we know how so that proper reference can be made of these matters in the report of the Committee on Constitution.

Report of Committee on Resolutions.

Delegate Hitz, Secretary of the committee, reported as follows:

The committee recommended the adoption of Resolution No. 1 introduced by Delegate Hilfers, No. 138, when amended to read as follows:

Resolved, That the Executive Board of the C. M. I. U. of America is hereby instructed and authorized to devise ways and means to procure advertisements pertaining to union-made products to be placed in our Official Journal.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

The committee recommended the adoption of Resolution No. 2, introduced by Delegate Goldstein, No. 292, Brooklyn, N. Y., when amended to read as follows:

Resolution No. 2. That all International Vice-Presidents be delegates to all International Union conventions of the C. M. I. U. of America by virtue of their office, but they shall not be entitled to vote on any question unless they are duly elected delegates to the convention.

The resolution as amended by the committee was referred to the Committee on Constitution.

Resolution No. 3.

Whereas, Section 159, page 43 of the Constitution reads:

"Local unions shall be allowed $1.00 per capita on all 30-cent and 60-cent contributing members per annum out of the general fund for label agitation by circulars, newspaper advertising, committee, etc., in their respective districts, the per capita tax to be based on class of members named above in local unions on May 31st," and

Whereas, There are a great many locals who draw and use the said fund for other purposes than label agitation which is an injustice to our local unions that use the fund as it should be used, and

Whereas, The local unions that draw the one dollar per capita for label agitation and put on local label assessment besides, are paying the bill that other locals should be paying; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we amend Section 159, page 43, by striking out the entire paragraph and substitute the following:

"That $1.00 per capita on all 30-cent and 60-cent contributing members per annum out of the general fund, be set aside for two years to create an advertising fund to be known as the universal advertising fund, same to be under the supervision of the International Executive Board to contract for permanent advertisement and distribution of same, but this does not debar any local from assessing themselves for local label advertisement."

Endorsed by Local 335 of Hammond, and introduced by Delegate S. T. Leonard.

The committee recommended that the resolution be referred to the Committee on Constitution. The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Resolution No. 4.

Whereas, The Cigar Industry is badly in need of organization, and

Whereas, The C. M. I. U. of A. is ever willing to organize the unorganized; therefore be it

Resolved, That the C. M. I. U. of A., suspend the initiation fee for one year from the date of adoption of this resolution; and be it further Resolved, That we urge and use every endeavor to have the unorganized workers of the cigar industry join the C. M. I. U. of A.

J. BRAHAM, No. 87.

The committee recommended nonconcurrent in Resolution No. 4.

Delegate Braham spoke briefly in support of the resolution.

President Perkins: Your resolution is an amendment to the constitution. The only things binding upon members of the International Union are the things embodied in the laws. This convention has already passed upon the question of initiation and decided to give one-half of it to the local union. If your resolution is adopted it will not mean anything unless you bring it on the floor as an amendment to the constitution. The Chair will have to rule that the whole question is not germane at this time.

Resolution No. 5.

During the administration of Ex-President Taft Congress enacted a law allowing an unlimited importation of cigars containing not more than 20 per cent of foreign tobaccos from the Philippine Islands, thereby depriving of employment at least 3,500 cigar-makers; therefore be it

Resolved, That the International President in conjunction with the Executive Board be authorized to appoint a committee to act in conjunction with the A. F. of L., also seek the aid of other bodies whose interests are identical with our own so as to induce Congress either to repeal or modify the above Act so as to control the importation to a minimum.

LEWIS GOLDSTEIN,
Nos. 131 and 147.

The committee referred the resolution to the convention without recommendation.

Delegate Brey moved the adoption of the resolution. The motion was seconded and carried.

Resolution No. 6.

Whereas, The dumping grounds for non-union cigars are to a great extent in the places where there are no union cigar factories, and in places where the shops are small. In order to aid the good union cigar maker, and to aid in fighting the non-union people, I submit the following amendment:

That we strike out all of Section 211 and insert the following:

"Union cigarmakers operating a cigar factory, and employing no journeymen cigar makers, be allowed one apprentice."

Submitted by William Gunlock, Union No. 201, Rock Island, Ill.

Referred to Committee on Constitution.

Resolution No. 7.

Whereas, Believing that the trade union movement is about to advance rapidly again and believing that we should endeavor to do all in our power to help it, we are of the opinion that steps should be taken to bring about more solidarity among the different union bodies. The union label button, and shop card should be our guiding light, and

Whereas, There are in existence 54 different union labels, buttons, and shop cards. We are of the opinion that this is an obstacle in our path of progress, as so many different labels, buttons and shop cards are confusing to the rank and file of the trade union movement; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this convention recommend to the label department of the A. F. of L. that they promote a "Universal" label button and shop card.

And we suggest that label be the A. F. of L. union label, or any other design they may decide upon.

Trusting this convention will give this resolution their most earnest consideration, we remain,

N. J. MARTIN, Delegate.

The committee recommended nonconcurrency in Resolution No. 7.

The question was discussed by Delegates Martin, Toronto, and Gompers, Chairman of the Committee.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Resolution No. 8.

Whereas, Sec. 11 of the Constitution of the American Federation of Labor provides that the representation of local unions in central labor unions shall be as follows: 50 members or less, 2 delegates; 100 or less, 3 delegates; 250 or less, 4 delegates; 500 or less, 5 delegates; and 1 additional delegate for each additional 500 or majority fraction thereof; and

Whereas, In many places this causes a condition detrimental to the best interests of the general labor movement, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the delegates of the Cigar-makers' Union to the next convention of the American Federation of Labor be instructed to submit an amendment to Section 11 allowing central labor unions to determine what the representation shall be in their respective organizations.

CHARLES EMMERT, No. 107.

The committee recommended nonconcurrency.

The question was discussed by Delegates Stack, No. 202; Emmert, No. 107; Gompers, No. 13; Brey, No. 97.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

Section 139. Amendment by Committee.

The committee recommends striking out the entire section and inserting the following new section:

"Section 139. Upon the death of a member who has been such continuously for three months or longer period next preceding his death, the sum of one hundred dollars shall be paid toward defraying his funeral or cremation expenses. Said sum of one hundred dollars shall be paid to such person or persons as shall have paid or become liable for such funeral or cremation expenses, and if such expenses have not been paid it shall be the duty of the officer paying such benefit to see that it is applied to the purpose for which it is intended.

"However, any member of the International Union has the right to purchase additional death benefits in multiples of one hundred dollars up to four hundred dollars, so that the total death benefit on each member's life shall not exceed five hundred dollars.

This shall not apply to new members who are affected with chronic diseases or are over 50 years of age.

"Members purchasing additional death benefits in multiples of one hundred dollars shall pay five cents a week additional dues for each one hundred dollars.

"For example:

"For one hundred dollars additional—45 cents a week.

"For two hundred dollars additional—50 cents a week.

"For three hundred dollars additional—55 cents a week.

"For four hundred dollars additional—60 cents a week."

The question was discussed by Delegates Agnes Koster, No. 507; Emma Wagener, No. 516; Rhine, No. 90; Brey, No. 97; Cermack, No. 141; Van Horn, No. 14.

President Perkins: It has been said we ought to take up the question of "Shall we agree to reinsure under the group plan without physical examination? Shall we agree on that principle? A motion to that effect might be made.

Delegate Gompers: I move that this convention now declare in favor of the principle of reinsurance in regard to our death benefit. (Seconded.)

President Perkins: That we agree in principle with the plan submitted. The vote on that will have no amount of force, except that it would indicate whether the convention wants to adopt that plan in principle. We would then have to take a vote to adopt it.

Delegate Gompers: This would free us from a discussion of all the details contained in the committee's report.

The motion offered by Delegate Gompers was carried unanimously.

President Perkins: It is understood the motion is not binding, but that the convention is in favor of reinsuring under the group plan. Now you can go into the details in connection with the proposition.

The reinsurance plan was discussed by Delegates Hanson, No. 266; Sexton, No. 110; Altheide, No. 44; Brey, No. 97; Gompers, No. 13; Van Horn, No. 14, and Pres. Perkins.

Further discussion was postponed until a later session.

The committee having in charge the collection of money for the striking members of organized labor in Streator, Ill., announced that up to that time $54.45 had been donated.

At five o'clock p. m., the convention was adjourned to reconvene at nine o'clock a. m., Friday, August 17th.

FIFTH DAY—MORNING SESSION.

Chicago, Illinois, August 17, 1923.

The convention was called to order at 9 o'clock a. m., Friday, August 17, by President Perkins.

All delegates present except those excused on account of illness.

An error was made in reporting Delegate Krick absent on Thursday.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

Discussion was resumed on the report of the Committee on Section 139.

The report was discussed by Delegates Braham, No. 87; Collins, No. 97; Riefkin, No. 129.

Delegate Braham stated that he wished to offer a new section to the report, providing that when a man reaches the age of 70 years, if he has been a continuous member for 30 years, by paying 25 cents dues in addition to the dues set by the convention, his nearest relatives are entitled to $500.

Delegate Hilfers: The committee has arranged to take care of the members who are 70 and over. We offer a new paragraph to Section 139, to read:

"It is understood and agreed that death benefits of all members who are at the adoption of this over 70 years of age shall be paid by the Cigar Makers' International Union instead of by the insurance company."

Delegate Braham: How much insurance?

Delegate Hilfers: What they are entitled to.

Amendment by Delegate Braham, No. 87: (New Section) "Upon the death of any member who has been a contributing member for more than 30 years, and who at the time of the adoption of this section of the constitution is more than 70 years of age, the C. M. I. U. of America shall pay to his next of kin or designated beneficiary the sum of $500.

"To participate in the death benefit the member shall pay an additional dues of 25 cents a week above the regular dues."

Amendment by Delegate Emery, No. 501:

Amend Section 139 by inserting in line 5, after the word "his" the words "or her." The balance of the section to the section to remain unchanged.

President Perkins: It is generally understood that wherever the word "he" is used it refers to a person of either sex. So there will be no misunderstanding about it, a line can be put at the end of the section stating that wherever the word "he" is used it refers to both men and women.

The amendment was withdrawn.

Delegate Asch: If a man goes into the $500 class and pays 60 cents a week, if he finds after some years he cannot pay it, can he drop from the payment of 60 cents to 40 cents and be entitled to $100 insurance?

President Perkins: Any member of the International Union can stop paying the premium on his insurance, except on the $100. If you are entitled to $500 and you want to drop it you can do so at any time you please. Is that your understanding, Chairman VanHorn?

Chairman VanHorn: It is, and it is the understanding of the committee.

President Perkins: If you drop that and afterwards change your mind and want to come back, you can come back, and you will be entitled to the benefit. Under the present plan if you drop the death benefit and want to come back you would come back in as a new member and you would have to be in twenty years before you would get the $550. Is that your understanding, Chairman VanHorn?

Chairman VanHorn: It is.

Delegate Emery: If I should take out $400 besides the $100 that is compulsory and then go to some other work and take an absolute retiring card, I lose the $100, of course, but how about the $400? Could I continue that?

Delegate Van Horn: You could not.

President Perkins: The Chairman of the Committee is substantially correct, but this insurance company is insuring under the group plan the International Union and not the individual. You can continue to pay your premium under any circumstances, providing you do nothing in violation of trade union ethics and principles. Our constitution says that any member of the International Union joining a dual organization of cigarmakers is suspended, he is automatically suspended and out of the organization. He can come right back and resume his former place and take all this insurance he wants so long as he goes along with the International Union, which is the party the company is insuring under the group plan. He would not be entitled to an absolute retiring card unless left under honorable circumstances.

The question was discussed by Delegates Brey, No. 97; Emery, No. 501; Fales, No. 462; Stacy, No. 118; Gunlock, No. 201; Grabenstein, No. 141; Sheehan, No. 25; Merhoff, No. 332; Stack, No. 202.

Delegate Garipey, No. 58: If a member goes out of the organization the company will continue his insurance providing he pays the rates of the company according to the table, not our rate, but theirs.

President Perkins: He must pay the American Mortuary rate after he leaves us. So long as he remains in the organization he is entitled to the group rate.

Delegates Abel, No. 153; Rhine, No. 90; Skinner, No. 305; Burns, No. 113; Knobel, No. 228; Chapp, No. 14; Listerman, No. 306; Lowy, No. 213; Goldstein, No. 131; Benjamin, No. 396; Hilfers, No. 138; Laland, No. 219; Hayford, No. 68, discussed the report of the committee and the various amendments.

Delegate Burns: The amount specified in the contract is limited to $500?

President Perkins: Your Committee on Constitution proposes that, insofar as we are concerned, it be limited to $500. The company agrees, and still under the group plan, to carry it to $1,000.

Delegate Van Horn: The committee went over this matter before we saw the contract of the International Life and Trust Company. Mr. Wright now tells us the same rate will apply if you want to change it to $1,000. Speaking of the man who takes an absolute retiring card Mr. Wright said: "Here is what this fellow has the advantage of. He has the advantage of getting old line insurance without a physical examination; he has that advantage because he has been a member of the Cigar Makers' International Union."

Delegate Knobel: I understand if we want to take additional insurance above the $100 that is compulsory there is something said in the contract about three months.

Secretary Hilfers: That applies to new members.

Delegate Skinner: Is there any time limit put upon this insurance proposition, in regard to the member taking out the additional $400 above the $100 which is compulsory?

Chairman VanHorn: The only limit is that he cannot take it out after he is seventy years of age. We took the proposition up with Mr. Wright and said: "Will these rates carry the man who goes along now and takes $100, for we will say ten years, then decided to jump it to $400?" He said: "You are charging your boys and girls of fifteen years of age $1.51, and that excess, if you are going to organize younger members, will be adequate and above what will be necessary to carry those above forty-eight."

President Perkins explained that all limitations will be fixed and set by the constitution as finally adopted by this convention and the referendum.

The contract of the insurance company was read by the Clerk, Mr. Hopp, and the report of the committee was read by Secretary Hilfers.

Secretary Hilfers: The committee proposes to further amend Section 139 by adding a new paragraph, following the words "or over fifty years of age," at the end of the third paragraph, as follows:

"All death benefits that members over seventy years of age, who have joined the union before they had reached the age of fifty years, are entitled to on the adoption of this amendment, shall be paid by the C. M. I. U. instead of by the insurance company; provided, that members over seventy years of age shall have paid the amount of dues provided for death benefit in excess of $100."

Members securing additional death benefits in multiples of $100 shall pay five cents a week additional dues for each $100. For example, for $100 additional, 45 cents a week; for $200 additional, 50 cents a week; for $300 additional, 55 cents a week, and for $400 additional, 60 cents a week.

Delegate Sexton suggested some changes in the phraseology of the original section presented by the committee. The changes were accepted by the committee.

Delegate Brey suggested that the words "Provided, However, that," be eliminated from the fourth paragraph of Section 139 as amended by the committee, the paragraph to read: "This shall not apply to new members who are affected with chronic diseases or are over fifty years of age."

The suggested amendment was accepted by the committee.

Delegate Martinez suggested that $500 as the limit for insurance be stricken out and $1,000 inserted. The chairman stated that members could go above $500 if they wished under the present section.

Delegate Braham, No. 87, offered the following as a new section:

"Upon the death of any member who has been a contributing member for more than 30 years and who, at the time of the adoption of this section of the constitution is more than 70 years of age, the C. M. I. U. of A. shall pay to his next of kin or designated beneficiary the sum of $500. To participate in his death benefit the member shall pay an additional dues of 25 cents a week above his regular dues."

The amendment was voted on and lost.

The committee's amendment providing for the members of 70 years of age was adopted.

Delegate Rhine: There are two provisions in the recommendation of the committee, that we adopt the insurance plan and that the dues be fixed from 40 cents up to 60 cents. Do we vote on the two propositions together?

President Perkins: The basic dues are 40 cents, and that included the $100 insurance. For an additional $100 it is 45 cents. You are right in bringing to our attention that we are fixing the dues as well as voting on the insurance plan. The economic dues are fixed at 35 cents; 5 cents is added to cover the insurance of $100, which is compulsory; for $100 additional, 45 cents, and so on.

Delegate Rhine: I move that we vote on the insurance plan and the five cents additional for each additional $100, but leave the economic dues out of consideration at the present time.

Secretary Hilfers stated that if the convention adopted the insurance plan the basic dues to be paid would also have to be adopted; that the committee had set the basic dues to meet the liability that would be incurred by the insurance plan, and it would be absolutely necessary to adopt the plan as a whole as presented.

The motion to adopt the report of the committee as amended was carried by unanimous vote.

Section 140. The committee recommended striking out the entire section. The recommendation was adopted.

Section 140-a. The committee recommended striking out the entire section.

The recommendation was discussed by Delegate Brey, No. 97, and Van Horn, No. 14.

Consideration of Sections 140-a, 140-b and 140-c was deferred until a further session.

At 12 o'clock noon, the convention was adjourned until 1:30 p. m. of the same day.

FIFTH DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 1:30 o'clock p. m., Friday, August 17th, by President Perkins.

Mr. David Weinstein, representing the World War Veterans, addressed the convention. He gave a brief account of the activities of the association, and emphasized the friendship of the World War Veterans toward organized labor.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

Secretary Hilfers continued the report of the committee, as follows:

Section 140-e. The committee recommended striking out the words "funeral or cremation," lines 1 and 7.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Sections 140-f and 140-g. Action deferred.

Section 141. The committee recommended striking out the entire section. The recommendation was adopted.

Section 142. No change.

Section 143. Amended by the committee by after the word "duties," line 3, the words "in time of war."

The amendment was adopted.

Section 144. The committee recommended striking out the entire section. The recommendation was adopted.

Section 145. The committee amended by striking out, after the word "to," line 1, the words "more than $75." Also strike out after the word "findings," line 7, the balance of the section and insert "The International Union shall pay the benefit to the local union of which deceased was a member."

Chairman VanHorn suggested that action on the amendment be deferred until the committee had a further meeting with the representative of the insurance company.

The suggestion was accepted by the convention.

Secretary Hilfers: The committee will now go back and report on Section 56, action on which was deferred.

Section 56. Amendment by committee.

Strike out the words "at least," line 2, and insert "one or more." Also strike out paragraph 2 and paragraph 4 of the section.

When the section was first reported on by the committee the following amendments were submitted:

Amendment to Section 56 by Delegate A. E. Wagner, No. 210. After the words "Executive Board," line 2, strike out the words "at least six," and insert "not to exceed three," the balance of section to remain unchanged.

Amendment to Section 56 by Delegate Burns, No. 113.

Strike out paragraph 2 of said section. No other change in section.

Amendment to Section 56 by Delegate Emery, No. 501.

Strike out the word "six," line 2, and insert the word "seven." Also in same section, line 3, after the word "organizers," insert the following: "One of whom shall be a stogie maker"; also after the word "located," line 7, insert the words "except the stogie makers' organizer, who shall be located in what is known as the Stogie District."

Amendment by Delegates Wagner, No. 516; Graharr, No. 501; Nolte, No. 479; Emery, No. 501.

Amendment to Section 56 by F. F. Lang, No. 53.

"Two general organizers shall be elected to office, to be known as Label Advocates and Organizers, at the same time as International Officers, whose duties shall be to organize and instruct Local Unions in the discharge of their duties. They shall visit such towns and cities as the International President may direct. Organizers elected shall be located in such places as in the judgment of the International President, it will be considered practical, provided also that the funds of the International Union would permit of the execution of these provisions. That the International President shall have the power to transfer one or both Organizers to assist other Organizers."

Delegate Collins submitted an additional amendment, as follows:

Strike out the first three paragraphs and insert the following: "The president shall appoint, with the confirmation of the Executive Board, a general organizer whose duty it shall be to supervise and direct the organization campaign, instruct the organizers in their duties, and generally supervise all work performed by the organizers."

The chairman stated that the vote would come on the amendment of Delegate Collins, inasmuch as it provided for eliminating the first three sections, and the committee's amendments dealt with that section.

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Collins, No. 97; Fales, No. 462; Sexton, No. 110; VanHorn, No. 14; President Perkins; Gompers, No. 13; Meyers, No. 122; Hoverter, No. 236; Brey, No. 97; Hanson, No. 266; Hilfers, No. 138.

The amendment offered by Delegate Collins was declared lost on viva voce vote. A count was requested. The clerk announced, after counting, that 61 votes were cast in the affirmative and 127 in the negative.

The recommendation of the committee to strike out words "at least six," and insert "one or more," line 2, first paragraph, was adopted.

The recommendation of the committee to strike out the second paragraph of Section 56 was adopted.

The recommendation of the committee to strike out the fourth paragraph of Section 56 was discussed by Delegates Collins, No. 97, and Van Horn, No. 14.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

The amendment to 56 submitted by Delegate Lang was withdrawn.

Section 57. No change.

Class B. This section had also been discussed at a former session and action deferred. The committee again offered the following amendment:

Second paragraph, (section marked "First.") Strike out the words "one-half of the regular," lines 1 and 2, and insert "25 cents."

The amendment was discussed by Delegate Koster, No. 507, who later moved to defer action until the convention had acted on Section 70. The motion was seconded and carried.

Section 70. The committee recommended striking out "60," line 2, and inserting "40."

Section 70. Amendment by Delegates Rhine and Wolf, No. 90, and Melhado, No. 144.

Strike out "60," line 2 and insert "40 or 30 cents dues per week," and add the following: "30 cent members will not be entitled to death benefits and shall pay strike assessments only."

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Rhine, No. 90; Gompers, No. 13; Brey, No. 97.

The chairman stated that the amendment did not apply to Section 70, but Section 130, and advised the delegate to offer it when Section 130 was under consideration.

The amendment to Section 70 proposed by the committee was adopted.

Section 71. No change.

Section 72. No change.

Section 73: Amendment by Delegate Braham, No. 87.

Strike out the word "eight," line 2, line 4 and line 6, and insert "four" in lieu thereof.

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Erickson, No. 98; Brey, No. 97, and Braham, No. 87.

The amendment offered by Delegate Braham was defeated.

Delegate Braham submitted the following amendment to Section 73: Strike out "eight weeks" and insert "one month."

Delegate Erickson moved to amend by striking out "four" and inserting "five."

Neither amendment was adopted and Section 73 was not changed. (Note: Change later.)

Sections 74, 75 and 76. No change.

Section 77. Amended by the committee as follows:

Strike out the word "forty," line 6, and insert "twenty." Also strike out "sixty," line 15, and insert "forty." Also strike out "forty," line 16, and insert "twenty."

The committee recommended further that the following be added after the word "assessment," line 7: "And additional death benefit in multiples of one hundred dollars by paying five cents per week additional dues for each one hundred dollars death benefit."

Amendment by Delegate Brey: Strike out "40," line 6 and insert "30," strike out "60," line 15 and insert "40," and strike out "40," line 16 and insert "30."

The committee accepted the amendment offered by Delegate Brey.

The report of the committee as amended was adopted.

Section 78. No change.

Section 79. Amendment by committee.

After the word "discharged," line 8, insert the words "within 14 days." After the word "benefits," line 9, strike out the words, "should, however, he lose his employment after the above specified time, he shall not be entitled to any further strike benefit." Strike out at the end of the first paragraph the words: "A union having no bill shall adopt the bill of the nearest union."

The amendments were discussed by Delegates Gompers, No. 13, and Gonzales (Elias), No. 336.

The hour for the introduction of resolutions having arrived, discussion on Section 79 was discontinued until the following session.

The following resolutions were introduced:

Resolution No. 10.

By Delegate J. F. Waltheide, No. 44, of St. Louis, Mo.

Whereas, The enactment of the Volstead act into the organic law of the United States had for its purpose the establishment of prohibition, and

Whereas, This law is becoming more unpopular and repulsive to the people in general, as evidenced by the general disregard and contempt held, therefore, and

Whereas, Experience has proven that prohibition only prohibits the workers from enjoying the indulgence of a beverage which has become a part of his daily food and has caused bootleggers, moonshiners and government enforcement agents to flourish on the graft and profits of the illicit sale of harmful liquors, and

Whereas, To secure the enforcement of temperance, a reasonable and rational interpretation of the law must be made, by permitting the manufacture of light wines and beer, and

Whereas, There are now operating, under various titles, so-called reform leagues having for their purpose the prohibition of the use of tobacco in all forms, therefore

Resolved, By the Cigarmakers International Union in convention assembled this 17th day of August, 1923, that we hereby declare our opposition to all sumptuary prohibition laws under any guise whatsoever, be it further

Resolved, That the officers of the C. M. I. U. of A. be and are hereby instructed to use their official position to combat the enactment of all laws seeking to abridge the rights and privileges granted by the Constitution of the United States, further be it

Resolved, That the delegates be instructed to avail themselves of every opportunity to oppose the enactment into law, any measure, which in any manner whatsoever permits of the invasion of the private rights and the sanctum of the house.

Resolution No. 11.

Submitted by Delegate Henry Knobel, No. 228, San Francisco, California:

Whereas, The Volstead act has been greatly misinterpreted by the judges and other officers of our country and thereby caused great inconvenience to the laboring people, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the Cigar Makers' Int. Union of America, urge upon the Congress of the United States, to amend said act, so as to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer.

At 5 o'clock p. m. the convention was adjourned to reconvene at 9 o'clock a. m., Saturday, August 18th.

SIXTH DAY—MORNING SESSION.

Chicago, Illinois, August 18, 1923.

The convention was called to order at 9 o'clock a. m. on the above date, by President Perkins.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

Secretary Hilfers continued the report of the committee as follows:

We recommend Section 79, which was pending at the time of adjournment Friday afternoon, be recommitted to the committee for further consideration.

The recommendation was adopted.

Sections 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85 and 86. No change.

Section 87. Amendment by committee.

Amend by adding after the last line the following paragraph: "Any member of the International Union who goes on strike or ceases work pending approval of any strike application made by the local union under which he or she is working shall not be entitled to any strike benefits, even though the application to strike made afterwards be approved."

The amendment of the committee was adopted.

Section 88. Action deferred.

Sections 89, 90, 91, 92, 92-a, 92-b. No change.

Section 93. Amendment by committee.

Amend by adding after line 3, after the word "work," "or accept a reduction in bill of prices," and strike out at end of paragraph the words: "This section does not apply to a reduction of wages."

The amendment was discussed by President Perkins, Delegates Stack, No. 202; Riefkin, No. 129; Sexton, No. 110; Marchand, No. 132; Braham, No. 87; Emery, No. 501; Good, No. 165; Brey, No. 97; Sheehan, No. 25; Owen, No. 133; Erickson, No. 98; Gonzales (Elias), No. 336; Gonzales (Manuel), No. 336.

The amendment of the committee to Section 93 was adopted, 112 delegates voting in the affirmative and 60 in the negative.

Delegate Garvey, No. 255, moved that the rules be suspended and that when the convention adjourned at noon it adjourn to convene at nine o'clock a. m., Monday, August 20th. The motion was seconded and carried.

Section 88, upon which action had been deferred, was reported on by the committee. No change was recommended by the committee.

Delegate Blockland, No. 97, offered the following amendment:

Strike out the present section and insert in lieu thereof the following: "The vote of local unions on difficulties shall be in proportion to their membership, one vote for each 10 members. All voting upon questions of strike, local or otherwise, shall take place by secret ballot, and all votes taken contrary to this method shall not be counted."

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Blockland, No. 97; Brey, No. 97; Schneider, No. 36; Hilfers, No. 138; Gunlock, No. 201, and President Perkins.

The amendment was defeated.

Sections 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100. No change.

Section 101. Amendment by Committee. Strike out "twenty," and insert "thirty." Strike out "two dollars," line 2, after the word "and," and insert "three dollars fifty cents."

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Sections 102 and 103. No change.

Section 104. Amendment by Delegate Altheide, No. 44.

Insert in line 14, after the figures "$20.00," the following: "On all loans so issued there shall be charged a sum equal to 5%, which shall be repaid as provided for in this section."

Amendment by Delegate Owen, No. 133 and No. 240.

Amend, by striking out the words after the word "unions" on line two, up to and including the word "employment," and by striking out words after the word "route" on line six, up to and including the word "loan" on line seven, and by striking out the words after the word "employment" on line fifteen, up to and including the word "working," and by striking out the words after the word "until" on line nineteen, up to and including the word "repaid" on line twenty-one.

Amended Section to Read

Section 104: Any member in good standing for one year in the International Union, wishing to leave the jurisdiction under which he is, to seek employment elsewhere, shall be entitled to a loan sufficient for transportation to the nearest union in whatever direction he desires to travel by the shortest route. If the fare to such nearest union is less than $1.00, then $1.00 may be granted; if between $1.00 and $2.00, then $2.00 may be granted; and in like manner if between $2.00, $3.00, $4.00, $5.00, $6.00, $7.00 and $8.00, the highest sum may be granted, and the same entered in figures and letters in his loan card, but in no case shall the aggregate sum exceed $20. No member shall receive a second loan from the same union until he has received a loan from some other union. Any member wishing to draw his card during an authorized strike or lockout in which he is involved, shall be granted a loan amount to his indebtedness for stamps and assessments and two dollars, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. A suspended member owing loans must on reinstatement pay all old loans before being entitled to a new loan card.

The amendments were discussed by Delegates Altheide, No. 44; Wolf, No. 90; Owen, No. 133.

Both amendments were defeated.

Mr. John J. Manning, secretary of the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, was introduced by President Perkins.

Mr. Manning, in conveying to the delegates the greetings of the department, and discussing the organizations affiliated therewith, said: "I do this for our Executive Board and the forty-four unions affiliated, with their nearly 800,000 members. Last year at this time we had 710,000 members in these affiliated organizations. I point to this increase of nearly 90,000 members as proof that the peak of the flood of the so-called open shop attack has passed; that it is now on the ebb, and the growth of our membership shows that the confidence taken away from our members during two years of struggle is returning. I told you in Cleveland that when the recession of that attack began we would have a rich harvest; I pointed out that though they broke up organizations and drove men and women out of the unions they could not take away from those men and women the knowledge they had gained of organization."

"I know of no organization in the entire American Federation of Labor that has had so many difficult problems to solve during the last five years as the Cigar Makers' International Union. You have been harrassed continually by changes brought about by the evolution of the trade and you have been assailed by fanatical legislation. The wonder is that you have any organization at all."

"I have talked to cigar makers and to members of other trades in all parts of the country, and if I had been foolish enough to believe all the talk I heard about your union going out of business I would have gone into the undertaking business. The assurance that I was right in my judgment that the International Union was very much alive is here this morning. The cigar makers were not dead, they were thinking, and thinking to themselves, not out loud. The action you have taken here to further the interests of your organization is something the Cigar Makers' Union has needed for years. Now that you have closed so many doors of egress that your members cannot go out and opened so many doors of ingress for others, your organization will grow. The Cigar Makers' International Union was a pioneer organization. Had we not profited by the aid and counsel of the cigar makers many years ago our movement would not have reached the position it is in today.

"I addressed the convention of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees yesterday. Their organization is as vitally affected by fanatical legislation as your organization is. I said to them, and I repeat it here, that no one can do your job for you but yourselves, and if we are going to have a restoration of the field we had for your work, you are the men and women who must carry on that task, in conjunction, of course, with the rest of us. We cannot sit down and let the other fellow tell us how to do it."

Secretary Manning gave an interesting account of some of the work carried on by the department, and in closing assured the delegates that the Union Label Trades Department and the other affiliated organizations were ready at all times to assist the cigar makers' organization in extending the influence of its label and bettering the conditions of its members.

The following resolutions were introduced and referred to the Committee on Resolutions:

Resolution No. 11.

Submitted by Committee on Constitution:

Resolved, That the International President and the International Executive Board, with the aid of counsel, are hereby authorized and instructed to make such changes or alterations, not changing the intent or purpose, as the changes made in the constitution may necessitate.

Resolution No. 12.

Submitted by Delegate E. J. Menard, No. 179, Bangor, Me.

Whereas, Only a small percentage of the great working masses are as yet members of the trade unions, great numbers being still unorganized in nearly all the industries; and

Whereas, This state of affairs not only militates against the unorganized, who are helpless, but against the organized as well, who find themselves severely handicapped in their struggle for better conditions by the ever-present army of unorganized; and

Whereas, The present temporary spurt of prosperity offers a splendid opportunity to bring these unorganized masses into the unions and thus enormously strengthen our ranks against the bitter onslaughts that are bound to come from the employers at the first slackening up of industry; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the Cigarmakers' International Union of America, in convention assembled, call upon the American Federation of Labor to unite all its affiliated organizations for a great organization drive in all localities and industries, in order to finally bring within the protecting folds of Organized Labor the masses who still remain outside.

Resolution No. 13.

Submitted by Delegates of No. 97, Boston, Mass.

Whereas, We believe that the International Union should be reorganized upon the basis of districts, actuated by a desire to enable the local unions in a given district as best suited to their needs, without retarding the development, by the International Union, of the other districts in accordance with their respective needs and conditions; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the 24th convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union hereby instructs the International President to appoint a committee to draft a plan to reorganize the International Union on a district basis, such committee to be appointed not later than 60 days after the adoption of this resolution by the referendum vote of a majority of the membership; such plan to be submitted to a popular vote within 30 days after the convention reports its plan to the International President.

Resolution No. 14.

Submitted by Committee on Constitution.

Resolved, That the proposition of reducing the dues and the proposition of reinsurance under the group plan be coupled and submitted jointly as one question.

Resolution No. 15.

Submitted by Delegate Braham, No. 87.

Whereas, There is a law on the statute books of the United States, known as the Volstead Act, and

Whereas, We believe it is against the best interests of and works a hardship on the masses of the people; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the delegates of the Cigar Makers' International Union, in convention assembled, protest against its further enactment and urge its immediate repeal or modification.

At 12 o'clock noon the convention was adjourned to reconvene at 9 o'clock a. m., Monday, August 20th.

SEVENTH DAY—MORNING SESSION.

Chicago, Illinois, August 20, 1923.

The convention was called to order at 9 o'clock a. m., Monday, August 20th, by President Perkins.

Absentees: Delegates Haley, Stacy, Weills, Taylor.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

Delegate Hilfers, Secretary of the committee, reported as follows:

Sections 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112. No change. Section 113. Amendment by Delegate Burtch, No. 298:

Insert new section, to be known as Section 113-A, to read: "Any local union refusing to accept a card of the C. M. I. U. of A. shall be fined ten dollars, such fine to be paid to the International President; but this shall not apply while there is a strike or lockout under the jurisdiction of such local."

President Perkins: The amendment would really defeat the purpose you have in mind. A local union now has no right to refuse to recognize an international card except when there is a strike. If you put this in the constitution it would mean by implication that simply by paying the ten dollars fine that would be the only punishment.

The amendment was defeated.

Sections 114, 115, 116. No change.

Sections 117 and 118. Amendment by Delegate Butcher, No. 248:

Amended by striking out all of sections 117 and 118, and insert in lieu thereof a new section to read as follows:

"Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of four months shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the demnomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of employment for at least two weeks. No out of work stamp shall be granted for the first week of such unemployment. An out of work stamp shall be granted for the second week of such unemployment, and every week thereafter while the member is unemployed, but no member shall receive more than forty-seven out of work stamps during the period of one year, commencing from July of each year. Members out of employment from Dec. 15th to Jan. 15th of any year shall not be entitled to an out of work stamp for such period."

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Wolf, No. 90, and Butcher, No. 248.

The amendment was defeated.

Sections 119 to 128, both inclusive. No change.

Section 129. Amendment by Delegate Butcher, No. 248:

Amend by striking out Section 129 and insert in place thereof the following:

"Any member about to apply for out of work stamp and who has been employed in a union shop, shall obtain from the shop collector a certificate stating that he or she has been laid off or discharged. Any member who has been employed in any shop where there is no shop collector shall furnish the Financial Secretary with satisfactory proof that he or she has been laid off or discharged, before being allowed to register."

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Gonzales (Manuel), No. 336, and Butcher, No. 248.

The original copy of the amendment contained the words, "non union shop." This was amended at the suggestion of the President to read "any shop."

The amendment as amended was adopted.

Section 130, Sick Benefit. No change by the committee.

The following amendments were submitted by various delegates:

By Delegate Frank Brown, No. 357, Vancouver, Can.

Strike out on line 9 the words "one week or seven days" and insert "two weeks or fourteen days, and shall not receive sick benefits for the first week or seven days."

By Delegates Rhine and Wolf, No. 90, New York; Goldstein, No. 292; Traeger, No. 149, and Melhado, No. 144:

Amend Section 130 by adding after the word "periodical," line 14, the following: "No member shall be entitled to more than $420.00 sick benefit after having drawn $420.00 from the funds of the International Union, but shall be entitled to $1.00 per week for fifteen weeks in the year."

By Delegate E. J. Stack, No. 202: Amend Section 130 by striking out the word "ten" in line 12 and inserting the word "eight."

By Delegates Wolf, Rhine and Melhado. Amend Section 130 by adding after the word

"absence," line 17, the following: "It shall be optional with new members to belong to the sick benefit. Members not availing themselves of this benefit shall pay 30 cents a week dues and strike assessments only."

The amendment of Delegate Brown was discussed by Delegates Brown, No. 357; Melhado, No. 144; Traeger, No. 148; Butcher, No. 248; Meyers, No. 122; Goldstein, No. 131; Brey, No. 97; Grabenstein, No. 141; Lowy, No. 213; Wurach, No. 1; Gunlock, No. 201; Emmert, No. 107; Donahue, No. 407; Wolf, No. 90; Merhoff, No. 332; Martin, No. 27; Emery, No. 501; Martinez, No. 460; Bartels, No. 97; Rhine, No. 90; Fitzpatrick, No. 206; Benjamin, No. 396; Van Horn, No. 14.

The amendment of Delegate Brown was adopted by a vote of 147½ affirmative to 124½ negative votes.

The amendment of Delegate Stack, to strike out "ten" and insert "eight," line 12, was discussed by Delegates Riefkin, No. 129; Rhine, No. 90.

The amendment of Delegate Stack was lost.

The amendment to provide that no member shall draw more than $420 sick benefits etc., was discussed by Delegates Rhine, No. 90; Melhado, No. 144; Traeger, No. 149; Owens, No. 143; Wolf, No. 90.

Delegate Hilfers moved to further amend the amendment by striking out $420 and inserting $350.

The question was discussed by Delegate Linderman, No. 114

The amendment to strike out $420 and insert $350 was lost.

The amendment to limit payment of sick benefits to $420 was lost. 70 delegates voting in the affirmative and 94 in the negative.

The amendment permitting new members the option of belonging to the sick benefit fund was discussed by the following delegates:

Delegates Rhine, No. 90; Horne, No. 171; Chapp, No. 14; Hilfers, No. 138; Asch, No. 251; Koster, No. 507; Van Horn, No. 14.

At 12 o'clock, noon, the convention was adjourned until 1:30 p. m. of the same day.

SEVENTH DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 1:30 o'clock p. m., Monday, August 20th, by President Perkins.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

President Perkins: The amendment of Delegates Rhine, Melhado and Wolf to Section 130 was pending.

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Melhado, No. 144; Braham, No. 87; Blockland, No. 97; Emmert, No. 107; Knobel, No. 228; Wagener, No. 516; Sexton, No. 110; Stack, No. 202; Bartels, No. 97; President Perkins; Gompers, No. 13; Listerman, No. 306; Good, 165; Garipey, No. 58; Lowy, No. 213; Rhine, No. 90.

Delegate Rhine requested a roll call on the amendment. The request was supported by more than forty delegates, and the roll was called, as follows:

The amendment was defeated.

Report of Committee on Officers Reports.

The report was read by Delegate Martinez, No. 460, Secretary of the committee.

Delegate Montis, No. 39, presided while the report was under consideration.

Chicago, Ill., August 20, 1923.
To the Twenty-fourth Convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America:

Your Committee on Officers' Reports, after thorough and careful consideration of the address of our International President to this Convention, beg leave to submit the following:

The Committee as a whole, after going in details over the address of our International President believes that his laborious task as President of our International Union, unfailing devotion to our cause and the splendid manner in which he has presented facts and conditions prevailing in our trade and industry, as well as the reasons for the existence of such conditions and remedies suggested, are unquestionably worthy of praise and mention and deserve our unreserved commendation and hearty approval.

Conscious of the great responsibilities placed upon his mind, heart and shoulders by our laws and our previous conventions, and actuated by his own convictions, undivided faith and unequalled experience acquired by uninterrupted study, careful consideration and analysis of all our problems, he has told this convention unflinchingly and clearly enough all what in his opinion should be done to remedy actual conditions and bring about those changes which are necessary to facilitate a thorough and strong organization of our trade and industry and to safeguard and protect our chain of benefits.

And although it is up to you to decide upon the declarations and recommendations of our International President, we believe that it is our duty not only to voice the opinion of this Committee, but, if need be, to join the strength of our own convictions and suggestions to that of our International President on the necessity of providing such means as are adequate to reach the summit of the ideals we have been cherishing for so many years.

1.—Organization. We fully agree with and approve the declarations of our International President in that:

"The outstanding issues demanding solution rank among the most important that have heretofore confronted and perplexed and now challenge our combined judgment and wisdom to the limit. Overshadowing all other questions and of paramount importance is organization of the wage earners in the cigar and tobacco industry.

"By our presence here we have voluntarily accepted a tremendous responsibility. A stern sense of duty coupled with a true spirit of constructive trade unionism, loyalty to and faith in our organization as well as in ourselves will, I trust, through combined wisdom and judgment blossom into fruitful accomplishment by the enactment of amendments, benefiting and fully meeting existing conditions.

"Any movement state, fraternal, or economic, to be entirely successful must be fundamentally right. In our economic organizations our laws must conform to existing conditions if we hope to be entirely successful. Our constitution needs amendments.

"The primary, fundamental, original purposes organizing cigar makers into local unions and finally the International Union were to increase wages, shorten hours of labor, and improve working conditions, and for the mutual protection and advancement of all those engaged in the industry.

"As our union developed we added to the original primary objects of the union the payment of benefits—strike benefit, sick benefit, death benefit and out-of-work benefit. These are incidental to the fundamental cause and fronting us today under an entirely changed reason for organization. The real object condition and methods of manufacturing is how to effectively and permanently bring about more rapid enrollment in a stable organization. That is the more outstanding issue. Anything that interferes, regardless of how much that any one thing or things may be cherished in our hearts and memories, must not stand in the way of the complete organization of the industry. That is a duty imposed upon us. Unless we work for its fulfillment we shall fail to fully meet the situation and the hopeful expectations of our fellow workers.

And we again recommend these sound declarations and thoughts for your consideration and approval.

2.—Wages. We further agree with our International President in that:

"Regular, uninterrupted employment is predicated upon the wage earners' ability to consume. Unemployment is caused by under-consumption and not over production, hence wages are of basic importance. Unless the rate of wages is raised to a point that will enable the workers to consume the bulk of what they produce our economic system will crumble and fall to pieces."

3.—Trade Unions. We further agree with our International President in that:

"The trade union movement is the greatest living potential factor in the regulation of our economic well-being. That it cannot properly function unless predicated upon a solid foundation with broad and rational operating lines."

4.—Strikes and Lockouts. Due notice has been taken by this committee on this most important subject and we hope all the delegates will do the same. The number of strikes (151) as recorded from Jan. 1, 1920, to June 1, 1923, and the amount of money ($1,490,411.84) paid in benefits by our International Union covering the same period, is an open rebuke to those who have been always charging and continue to charge our International Union with conservatism and niggardly in the expenditure of money and payment of benefits. Your committee is in the belief that the foregoing figures credit our International Union as one of the most generous and liberal organizations of labor in the world and it is not only our duty but our pleasure also to so express.

It is the desire of this Committee also, in dealing with this part of the report of the International President, not to overlook conditions as reported generally in Tampa and very particularly in Porto Rico, where, as stated by the President, "Our members had arrayed against them employers who were entrenched behind bulwarks of privileged conditions which involved the control of those whose duty it was to enforce the law, and an intimidation, oppression, and abuse against the workers that have seldom been surpassed in brutality and heartless application."

Conditions at these places must be changed in order that the workers may enjoy, in their legal efforts to better their living and working conditions, freely and unhampered, all the same privileges, rights and franchises as are granted by the Constitution of the United States to all the American citizens, and so that organization may be effected by the same methods and legal means the trade union movement stands for in America.

Such deplorable conditions as these command not only our attention but should also stimulate us to redouble our best efforts in organizing Tampa and Porto Rico as well as all the other sections of the United States lacking organization and very particularly those cheapest districts among which Porto Rico is at this time, and Tampa is very near to be if not already.

This is a very important question of greatest concern to all for it is beyond all doubts that no matter how well organized there is any given section of the country, as long as there is any section of the United States where cigars are made at low wages and under poor working conditions, there is no place safe and secure for any bill of prices of any local union now holding it.

Being under the jurisdiction of the Committee on Constitution those other recommendations of the President which refer to the subject matter, "Strikes and Lockouts," this Committee believes to be unnecessary for it to take any action on such recommendations.

5.—The Union Label. As this portion of the report of the International President is intended to recommend changes in the use of the "Union Label" and granting of same to the manufacturers; and as such changes if effected meeting the views of our International President or otherwise have to be shaped in the form of amendments to our Constitution; and there being in active work the Committee on Constitution of this Convention, your Committee recommends that all matters relating to changes in the law governing the use and granting of the "Union Label" be referred to the Committee on Constitution.

6.—Death Benefit. By the simple reading of that part of the address of the International President which comes under the heading "Death Benefit," we come to the conclusion that his painstaking study, profound interest and determination have been responsible for the magnificent plan which—to take care of our beneficiary system—has been submitted to this Convention.

We feel that our International Union and members thereof are indebted to our International President for having succeeded in finding the way that will lead us to more progress and success, and the Convention having expressed its hearty and unanimous approval of the plan as recommended by the International President, we believe that any recommendation suggested by this Committee at this time would be of no effect after the most significant expression of full endorsement and approval of the Convention to the recommendations of the President and by unanimous vote in the afternoon session of our fourth day and the 16th of August, 1923.

Conclusion. Your Committee on Officers' Reports has gone also over those portions of our President's address which are placed under the headings "Sick Benefit," "Restrictive Laws" and "General Fund." As the first two enumerated should be carefully studied and considered by the Committee on Constitution on account of the fact that any change required should be shaped into law, your Committee believes to be unnecessary for it to make any recommendation.

With reference to the General Fund we agree with the recommendation of the President in that "it should be maintained in so far as possible on our fixed income—that is, the regular dues," and so we gladly recommend to this Convention.

Fraternally and respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM COLLINS, Chairman,
J. H. RILEY,
H. M. GOOD,
HARRY CHAPP,
P. RIVERA MARTINEZ, Secretary.

Being a member of the Committee on Officers' Reports, and there being in the Report of the International President certain portions upon which my position should be made clear and consistent with the stand I have ever taken whenever any matters as the above referred to have been discussed, I want to go on record with the following statement:

I recognize the imperative need for greater organization activity but cannot subscribe to the belief that the optional clause as adopted at Cleveland has been a barrier or hindrance to organizing the unorganized, being of the opinion that our beneficiary system as previously and at present practiced has been the real deterrent in organizing the unorganized.

Neither do I believe that by placing the Union Label on the product of the automatic machine will we add one single member to our union.

WM. COLLINS.

Delegate Goldstein moved that the report be adopted and the recommendations contained therein complied with.

The motion was seconded and adopted unanimously.

Delegate Collins, Chairman of the Committee: We have considered the report of First Vice-President Gompers, but can only report progress.

Report of Committee on Resolutions.

Delegate Hitz, Secretary of the Committee, reported as follows:

Resolution No. 9.

The committee submitted the following as a substitute for the original resolution introduced by Delegate P. Rivera Martinez, No. 460, and Manual LaRosa, No. 389:

Your Committee on Resolutions is in full accord with much that the Resolution No. 9 contains, but in some respects we are of the opinion that some of the charges made therein are not yet verified, even though they may be true.

Your Committee therefore submits the following substitute for Resolution No. 9:

Whereas, the Fascist movement in Italy has in the words of its leader, Benito Mussolini, declared that the liberties of the people of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries must be obliterated, and that in our time power and force strides over the decomposed body of liberty.

Whereas, the Fascist, under the dictatorship of Mussolini, has by force, violence and tyrannous oppression taken possession of the Government of Italy, and taken from the people the rights of freedom of assemblage, freedom of press, freedom of speech, and the denial of workmen to cease work (strike) in defense of any furtherance of their rights and interests as wage earners, and in the process of such force countless outrages have been committed upon the lives of the Italian wage earners, and

Whereas attempts have been made to transplant the Fascist movement in the Republic of the United States.

Whereas, the American people, while striving to eliminate any wrong or injustice which may prevail in America, yet holding that under our democratic form of government we have in our own hands the means and the power to eliminate the wrong and injustice and establish right and justice;

Therefore, be it resolved, that this 24th Convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America denounce in immeasurable terms the establishment of any form of tyranny either in Italy or any other country under whatsoever name it may be launched;

That we protest against any movement having for its purpose the imposition of tyranny or autocracy in America; and,

Be it further resolved, that while we recognize that the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor has done its full duty to meet the situation up to this present time, we request the Delegates of the C. M. I. U. of A. to the forthcoming convention of the A. F. of L. to present this subject matter to that convention with a view that the denunciation and protest may be accentuated by the great mass of organized labor of America both against the tyrannous, brutal autocracy of Fascist in Italy and its attempt to be planted in America.

The report of the committee was adopted.

The following resolutions deal with the subject of the Volstead Act and were grouped by the committee:

Resolution No. 10.

By Delegate Altheide, No. 44, St. Louis, Missouri:

Whereas, The enactment of the Volstead act into the organic law of the United States had for its purpose the establishment of prohibition, and

Whereas, This law is becoming more unpopular and repulsive to the people in general, as evidenced by the general disregard and contempt held, therefore, and

Whereas, Experience has proven that prohibition only prohibits the workers from enjoying the indulgence of a beverage which has become a part of his daily food and has caused bootleggers, moonshiners and government enforcement agents to flourish on the graft and profits of the illicit sale of harmful liquors, and

Whereas, To secure the enforcement of temperance, a reasonable and rational interpretation of the law must be made, by permitting the manufacture of light wines and beer, and

Whereas, There are now operating, under various titles, so-called reform leagues having for their purpose the prohibition of the use of tobacco in all forms, therefore

Resolved, By the Cigarmakers' International Union in convention assembled this 17th day of August, 1923, that we hereby declare our opposition to all sumptuary prohibition laws under any guise whatsoever, be it further

Resolved, That the officers of the C. M. I. U. of A. be and are hereby instructed to use their official position to combat the enactment of all laws seeking to abridge the rights and privileges granted by the Constitution of the United States, further be it

Resolved, That the delegates be instructed to avail themselves of every opportunity to oppose the enactment into law, any measure, which in any manner whatsoever permits of the invasion of the private rights and the sanctum of the house.

Resolution No. 11.

Submitted by Delegate Henry Knobel, No. 228, San Francisco, California:

Whereas, The Volstead act has been greatly misinterpreted by the judges and other officers of our country and thereby caused great inconvenience to the laboring people, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the Cigar Makers' Int. Union of America, urge upon the Congress of the United States, to amend said act, so as to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer.

Resolution No. 16.

Submitted by Delegate Braham, No. 87.

Whereas, There is a law on the statute books of the United States, known as the Volstead Act, and

Whereas, We believe it is against the best interests of and works a hardship on the masses of the people; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the delegates of the Cigar Makers' International Union, in convention assembled, protest against its further enactment and urge its immediate repeal or modification.

The committee reported, that all the resolutions on the subject of the Volstead Act contained meritorious provisions, which they embodied in the following:

Substitute for Resolutions 10, 11 and 16.

Whereas, Time has proved that the Volstead Act is not an honest interpretation of the Eighteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, and

Whereas, Disrespect for the Volstead Law has caused disrespect for all laws, having made formerly lawful living citizens a nation of law breakers, turned millions of homes into breweries or distilleries, making it possible to thus poison the minds of the youth of our republic, and

Whereas, Our Nation has been made the laughing stock of the world by the Volstead Act and the peculiar methods used in its enforcement, and

Whereas, We believe the act should be amended to permit the manufacture and sale of wholesome beer and light wines, but while we advocate these changes we equally oppose the return of the old time saloon; therefore

Resolved, by the Cigarmakers' International Union in convention assembled that we urge Congress to either repeal the Volstead Act or amend it so as to permit the manufacture and sale of wholesome beer and light wines, or to give authority and power to the several states in the rightful exercise of their police power providing under proper regulation for the manufacture and sale of wholesome beer and light wine.

The substitute resolution was adopted unanimously.

Resolution No. 12.

Submitted by Committee on Constitution.

The committee recommended the adoption of the resolution when amended to read as follows:

Resolved, that the President of our International Union be and he is hereby authorized to make such verbal changes in the constitution which shall be adopted by this convention, provided that the intent and purpose of the provisions of the constitution shall not be altered in any respect.

Resolved, that the President of our International Union be, and he is hereby authorized, to obtain such advice and assistance in the performance of the duty imposed upon him by this resolution as he in his judgment may require.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Resolution No. 13.

Submitted by Delegate E. J. Menard, No. 179, Bangor, Me.

Whereas, Only a small percentage of the great working masses are as yet members of the trade unions, great numbers being still unorganized in nearly all the industries; and

Whereas, This state of affairs not only militates against the unorganized, who are helpless, but against the organized as well, who find themselves severely handicapped in their struggle the International President to appoint a committee to draft a plan to reorganize the International Union on a district basis, such committee to be appointed not later than 60 days after the adoption of this resolution by the referendum vote of a majority of the membership; such plan to be submitted to a popular vote within 30 days after the convention reports its plan to the International President.

Resolved, That the C. M. I. U. of A., pledges its co-operation and support in furtherance of the purpose of this resolution.

The committee recommended the adoption of the resolution when amended by the addition of the last paragraph as it appears above.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Resolution No. 14.

The committee recommended nonconcurrency. Delegate Brey announced that a sentence had been omitted from the printed resolution, but the committee stated that they had read from the original copy presented by Delegate Brey. Permission was granted Delegate Brey to add to the resolution the words "to maintain and improve their present hold on the industry." Action was deferred by the committee.

Resolution No. 15.

Submitted by Committee on Constitution.

Resolved, That the proposition of reducing the dues and the proposition of reinsurance under the group plan be coupled and submitted jointly as one question.

The committee recommended the adoption of the resolution when amended to read as follows:

Resolved, That the proposition of reducing the dues and the proposition of and the proposition of reinsurance under the group plan be coupled and submitted jointly to the referendum as one question.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Delegate Sexton moved to suspend the rules and remain in session to hear the report of the Committee on Strikes. The motion was lost.

At 5 o'clock the convention was adjourned to 9 o'clock a. m., Tuesday, August 21st.

EIGHTH DAY—MORNING SESSION.

Chicago, Illinois, August 21, 1923.

The convention was called to order at 9 o'clock a. m., Tuesday, August 21st, by President Perkins.

Absentees Tuesday morning—Delegates Al Laland, No. 219; C. L. Milliken, No. 487; H. W. Skinner, No. 305; Warren Taylor, No. 429; I. N. Weills, No. 102.

Report of Committee on Strikes.

Delegate Grabenstein, No. 141, in the chair.

Delegate Garipey, secretary of the committee, reported as follows:

Chicago, August 21, 1923.

To the Officers and Delegates of the Twenty-fourth Convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union:

The subject matter in the International President's report under the caption "Strikes and Lockouts" has been referred to the Committee on Strikes. Your committee, after giving the matter careful consideration beg leave to submit the following report:

The subjects dealt with in President Perkins' report show a summary of the industrial conditions prevailing in the cigar industry and give a comprehensive analysis of the benefits derived through the strength of organization in the Cigar Makers' International Union and the relative amounts paid to its members through its beneficiary system.

The number of strikes engaged in during the period from January 1, 1920, up to June 1, 1923, three years and five months, there were 555 applications for strikes, for increase of wages or against reductions, including applications to revise bills downward. Out of that number, 525 applications were constitutionally approved, showing the greater number of applications involving our membership in an effort to better their economic conditions were approved. There were 42,016 members involved under the sustained applications. In all applications submitted there were 51,190 members affected in strikes, the major portion of whom were beneficiary members, and in the course of this time there was expended for strikes and lockouts $1,490,411.84 from the International fund, aside from the contributions that were donated by the respective local unions in aid of our members and non-members of the craft engaged in these conflicts.

The attempt on the part of our members to better their conditions, increase their wage scale and resist reductions in the industry occurred in widely divergent localities throughout the jurisdiction of the International Union, and in the majority of cases they were successful. Notwithstanding the fact that the greater amount of sum total benefits paid were directed to sustain our members in the localities of Tampa, Florida, and Porto Rico in two gigantic struggles against a combination of the American Tobacco Trust and the powerful Cigar Manufacturers' Ass'n, where every unscrupulous effort on the part of the combined employers was resorted to to defeat the aims of the workers in maintainnig fair conditions and reasonable compensation for their labor, and as the final termination in the aforesaid struggles we note with some degree of regret all was not achieved on the part of the members involved and the entire membership of the International Union, that was devoutly hoped for, but nevertheless some good was accomplished in that the fundamental principles of our organization were sustained, and the Committee heartily concurs in the principles fought for by the International Union, the heroic resistance made by its members, the advancements made by the weapons employed through the laws of our organization, and all that was achieved in the economic struggles to emancipate the workers in our industry, and unanimously concur in the endorsement of that portion of the president's report.

The problem of strikes and expense entailed to the International Union and the danger incurred by ill-advised strikes or misinterpretation of the constitutional laws which very frequently cause a serious breach between employer and employees is a matter of grave importance and should be given most serious consideration by the delegates to this convention.

It has been pointed out that the amount expended for strikes in the last three years exceeds the combined amounts paid for sick and death benefits, which fact should command our careful study and analysis. The right to strike is one of the sacred weapons of the workers but should be employed only as a last resort and when mediation and conciliation have failed to adjust the grievance. To quote from President Perkins: "I regard the right to strike as one of the fundamental principles of economic activity and a right that should never be surrendered. It is labor's best friend. It should not be misused or abused." Your committee fully concur in that principle and sentiment.

The laws governing strikes were created for the purpose of safeguarding and protecting the interests of our members as a whole and should not be ignored or disregarded, as such actions are a detriment to all who are involved. If obedience to the laws was adhered to where applications are made for strike, members remaining at work until application has been approved, and even then allowing ample time for a grievance committee to hold a conference with the employer in an effort to effect an amicable settlement, differences in the majority of cases might be settled without loss of time or engendering hardship to the workers, or jeopardizing the union's interests in industrial relations, and the frequent prejudice and ill feeling that accrue from hasty actions in strikes. We fully concur in obedience to the principles of our constitutional laws and believe in the exercise and privilege to the workers that their provisions guarantee.

Your committee recommends that the laws governing strikes and lockouts be strictly adhered to, as it is in our opinion the only way to fully protect the interests of all members of the International Union.

Where applications have been made for strike and have failed to meet with approval by the various local unions, and members in localities having a grievance do not abide by our laws and act upon a self created law and declare independent strikes and walkouts, denying all discipline, very frequently defeat their aims and purposes and cause dissatisfaction among the members.

We declare ourselves as opposed to independent strikes which even though successful do much to destroy confidence in the International Union and militate against its organic laws, and strongly recommend that measures be adopted to restrain our members from participating in unauthorized strikes contrary to the law, and where reasonable time has not been given for consideration of grievances by representatives of the union and employers to adjudicate all matters pertaining to the controversy or grievances involved.

Respectfully submitted,

R. S. SEXTON, Chairman,
HARRY KOLLER,
F. R. WALKER,
OTTO BUCH,
A. GARIEPY, Secretary.

The report of the committee was adopted by unanimous vote.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

Secretary Hilfers reported as follows:

Sections 131, 132, 133, 134. No change.

Section 135. Amendment by committee.

Amend by inserting in line 9 after the word "more" the following: "Such sick certificates to be signed by a physician designated by the International President. The physician so designated shall be paid from the funds of the International Union."

Also amend the fourth paragraph by striking out of lines 1 and 2, after the word "services," the words "10 cents for each member drawing benefits," and inserting "15 per cent on amount of dues collected."

The first amendment was discussed by Delegates Altheide, No. 44; Hanson, No. 266; Hilfers, No. 138.

The first amendment, with regard to designating a physician, was adopted unanimously.

The second amendment was discussed by Delegates Hilfers, No. 138; Hanson, No. 226; Brey, No. 97; President Perkins.

The amendment was defeated.

Sections 136, 137 and 138. No change.

Section 64, Class B, upon which action had been deferred, was read by the committee and the following amendment proposed by the committee:

Strike out all after the first paragraph to the paragraph marked "fourth," and insert:

"First. Payment of one-half the regular initiation fee, twenty cents weekly dues and one-half of all international assessments and all local assessments levied by their local unions.

"Second. The benefits of Class B members shall be $100 death benefit, one-half of the regular strike benefits and sick benefits and out of work stamps, according to Section 117 of the constitution.

"Third. Class B. members shall be entitled to additional death benefits as per Section 139 of the constitution."

The remainder of the section to be unchanged.

Amendment by Delegates Koster, No. 507; Foley, No. 520, and Howe, No. 518.

Amend Class B, seventh paragraph, by striking out all in line 1 after the word "to," up to and including the word "and" in line 3, paragraph to read as follows: "Class B members shall be entitled to one-half sick benefit."

Amendment by Delegate Wagener, No. 516: Insert "and all beneficial members. 10 cents."

The chairman suggested that a vote be taken on the report of the committee and then the other amendments could be offered.

The report of the committee was adopted.

The two amendments were again submitted and discussed by Delegates Wagener, Koster, Brey, Van Horn and Asch.

Delegates Wagener and Koster explained that their understanding was that women over fifty years of age and women suffering from chronic diseases were not entitled to the insurance. Delegate Stack and other members of the committee stated that every member, no matter what dues he or she paid, was entitled to the $100 death benefit, and, in fact, was compelled to take it.

After the explanation of the committee both amendments were withdrawn.

Section 65. Amendment by committee.

Strike out the entire section and insert new section to read:

"Sec. 65. The International President shall furnish in duplicate suitable application blanks with space for necessary questions to be truthfully answered by the applicant. For making false statements, and in consequence thereof having been admitted to membership, the applicant shall be fined or suspended, or both, as the union may deem fit. The original application shall be forwarded to the International President and the duplicate kept on file by the local union."

Delegate Hilfers: The old section stated the questions to be asked. Under our new system of insurance it would be well to leave it entirely to the International President to formulate the questions that are necessary on the application. It is necessary now for the local unions to keep the application on file. Under the new insurance plan it is absolutely necessary that the International President have the original on file in the International Office.

President Perkins: There will be no material change except that a question will be put in there that will give us the information we need and that the insurance company needs.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Section 66. Amendment by committee.

Insert in the Obligation, line 3, after the word "union," the following: "that are now in force or that may be hereafter enacted."

Delegate Stack: The committee inserted these words upon legal advice relative to the insurance plan. If we do that all members are parties to the contract making the International Union trustee for the insurance.

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Fales, No. 462, Knobel, No. 228; Gunlock, No. 201; Sexton, No. 110; Sheehan, No. 25.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Section 67. Amendment by committee.

Amend by striking out in line 2, after the word "of" up to and including the word "union," line 3, and inserting "$3.00, which sum must accompany the application."

Secretary Hilfers: This applies to suspended members only.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Section 68. No change was recommended by the committee.

President Perkins: Does that section not need amending? A member, three months after he is initiated, is entitled to $100 death benefit. If he is out of work for a year you carry him as a liability.

The section was recommitted to the committee for further consideration.

Section 69. Recommended for further consideration.

Section 79. Amendment by committee.

Strike out, after the word "week," line 6, the words "until the strike or lockout shall have terminated," and insert "and $4.00 per week for the next sixteen weeks, when the question of continuing the payment of strike benefits may be submitted to a vote of the membership by the International Executive Board, a majority of those voting to decide."

(The words "By the International Executive Board" were added to the original by an amendment from the floor.)

Also amend by striking out the word "fourteen," line 8, and inserting the word "twenty-one."

Also amend by striking out the words "A union having no bill shall adopt the bill of the nearest union," at end of first paragraph of section.

Amendment by Delegates Rhine and Wolf, No. 90, and Melhado, No. 144.

Amend Section 79 by striking out all after the word "months," line 13, up to and including the word "blanks," line 24 and insert the following:

"Members who may, in consequence of having carried out orders of their union, be discharged by their employer, and the members of this particular shop desire their reinstatement by a two-third vote, and after a thorough investigation by the local union and the Joint Advisory Board, wherever such exists, a strike application can be made for the enforcement of same, subject to Section 81."

The committee's first amendment was discussed by Delegates LaRosa, No. 389; Wolf, No. 90; Lowy, No. 213; Brey, No. 97; Rhine, No. 90, and Grabenstein, No. 141.

The chairman stated, in reply to a question, that the referendum vote would be of the entire country.

The first amendment of the committee was adopted.

The second amendment, to strike out 14 and insert 21, was discussed by Delegate Gonzales (Manuel), No. 462; Gonzales (Elias), No. 336.

The amendment was adopted.

The third amendment of the committee, to strike out the words at the end of paragraph 1, was discussed by Delegates Blockland, No. 97; Van Horn, No. 14; Hilfers, No. 138; Collins, No. 97; Benjamin, No. 396; Martin, No. 27; Bartels, No. 97; President Perkins; Brey, No. 97.

The amendment was adopted by a vote of 91 in the affirmative to 82 in the negative.

The amendment of the delegates from No. 90 and No. 144 was discussed by Delegates Rhine, No. 90; Melhado, No. 141; Lowy, No. 213; and President Perkins.

Further discussion was deferred until the afternoon session.

At 12 o'clock, noon, the convention was adjourned until 1:30 p. m. of the same day.

EIGHTH DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 1:30 o'clock p. m., Tuesday, August 21st, by President Perkins.

The amendment to Section 79 presented by the delegates of Nos. 90 and 144, pending at the time of adjournment, was defeated.

Sections 68 and 69. These sections were recommitted to the committee for further consideration. The committee reported as follows:

Amend Section 68 by striking out the words "one year," line 1, and inserting "three months" in lieu thereof.

Secretary Hilfers: We amend this in order that it may be in conformity with the reinsurance plan. If it were otherwise a man would continue for one year and we would be carrying his insurance. There would be a loss to the International in every suspension.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Section 69. No change recommended by committee.

The section was discussed by Delegates Van Horn, No. 14; Lowy, No. 213; Good, No. 165; and Brey, No. 97.

The section was again recommitted to the committee for further consideration.

Section 145. Amendment by committee.

Amend by striking out in lines 1 and 2, after the word "to," line 1, the words "more than $75.00," and by striking out in line 7, after the word "findings," the balance of the session and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "The International President shall pay the benefit to the local union of which the deceased was a member," also insert after the word union "and forward his due-book and card to the International office."

This was amended at the suggestion of President Perkins to provide that the benefits shall be paid by the local, the amended section to read:

"Sec. 145. Upon the death of any member entitled to death benefit, the Secretary of the local union shall at once notify the International President, giving a full record of the membership of such member, as far as can be obtained from the books of such local union and forward his due book and card to the International office. The International President shall compare such record with the records of the International office and notify the local union of his findings. The International President shall order the benefit paid to the local union of which the deceased was a member."

The section as amended was adopted.

Sections 146, 147, 148, 149. No change.

Section 150. Amendment by committee.

In conformity with the amendment proposed by Union of Buffalo and No. 138, Newark, the committee recommends that Section 150 be amended by striking out of first paragraph of that section all after the word "with," line 10, and striking out all of second paragraph.

Amendment by Delegate Wagener, No. 516: Insert after word "packers," line 8, "tobacco strippers, banders and factory employees."

The amendment of the committee was discussed by Delegates Altheide, No. 44; Van Horn, No. 14; Gunlock, No. 201; Brey, No. 97; Good, No. 165.

Delegate Gompers moved as an amendment to the committee's report by inserting at the end of first paragraph: "But this shall not apply to the product of the automatic machine." (Seconded and carried.)

The question was discussed by Delegates Gompers, No. 13; Hilfers, No. 138; Montis, No. 39; Grabenstein, No. 141; Brey, No. 97.

Delegate Gompers: For the purpose of bringing the matter before the convention, I move that the two optional clauses be retained in the International constitution.

Secretary Hilfers: I believe I can speak for the whole committee when I say if it is the desire of the delegates to retain the two optional clauses of Section 150, starting with "It shall be optional with local unions to grant the union label to any manufacturer or firm whose name or firm name appears in or about the box containing Chinese, tenement house or nonunion cigars, or whose name or firm name appears on or about such nonunion cigars."

A motion was adopted to omit the words "Chinese or tenement house or."

The amendment of Delegate Gompers was adopted as amended.

Delegate Knobel moved to amend by inserting in the committee's report "It shall be optional with local unions to paste them in the boxes."

The amendment was adopted.

The section as amended was then adopted.

The amended section to read:

"Sec. 150. Each local union shall furnish through the shop collectors or committeemen (as the case may be) to all strictly union shops, free of charge, as many of the labels as may be required from week to week for all cigars actually made by members of the union and persons holding retiring cards. It shall be optional with local unions to grant the union label to any manufacturer whose name or firm name appears in or about such nonunion cigars. It shall be optional with local unions to paste them on the boxes. But this shall not apply to the product of the automatic machine."

"All label orders shall be signed by the shop collector; the label order blanks shall be furnished by the International President at cost. No shop shall be considered a strictly union shop unless the packers of the shop are members of the International Union, and the apprentice law of the local union be complied with."

"All labels must be pasted upon the boxes before the boxes leave the factory."

The amendment to add to the section, "strippers, banders and factory employees," was discussed by Delegates Koster, Lowy, Foley, Sexton, Wagener and President Perkins.

The amendment was lost.

Report of Committee on Officers' Reports.

Delegate Martinez, Secretary of the Committee, read the report.

Delegate Cermack presiding.

To the Twenty-Fourth Convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America:

Your Committee on Officers' Reports having had under consideration the report of our First International Vice-President read to this Convention on August 15 (afternoon session), and such as it appears on page 6, first column of the proceedings of that date, beg leave to submit to this Convention the following declarations and recommendations:

We feel that it is very encouraging and that it makes us feel a full sense of justice and impartiality and confidence in the observance, application and administration of our laws, to learn by the Report of our International First Vice-President, that practically out of the twenty appeals that have been filed with him as Chairman of the Board of Appeals, the fifteen which have been already decided upon by our International Executive Board have been almost unanimously sustaining the decisions of our International President.

We hope that by the approval of this, our Report, this Convention should express its confidence and appreciation to our First International Vice-President for the very able manner in which he has conducted the work on the appeals as entrusted to him by our Constitution and for the comprehensible manner he has presented to this Convention the work done, such expression also to be extended to the International President for the manner in which justice has been done in the cases of appeals to all parties concerned.

Respectfully and fraternally submitted,

WM. COLLINS, Chairman.

H. R. CHAPP,

H. M. GOOD,

JOHN H. RILEY,

P. RIVERIA MARTINEZ,

Secretary.

The report of the committee was adopted.

Delegate Collins, Chairman of the committee, announced that a report on the report of the Executive Board would be made during Wednesday's sessions.

Delegate Gompers moved that the time for introducing resolutions expire at the close of the Wednesday morning session. The motion was seconded and carried.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

Section 151. Amendment by Committee.

Amend by striking out all of second paragraph.

Discussion on amendment by Delegates Asch, No. 251; Lowy, No. 213; Martin, No. 27; Sexton, No. 110, and Wolf, No. 90.

The amendment of the committee was lost.

President Perkins announced that the President and a vice-president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' was present, and that they had requested him to announce a meeting at 8 o'clock at Carmen's Hall, where President Siegelman and President Gompers would speak on the recent injunctions issued in Chicago against the striking members of International Ladies' Garment Workers.

Section No. 152. Amendment by committee.

Strike out the word "five" at end of line 6 and insert the word "one."

Amendment by Delegate Lang, No. 53, New Orleans, La.

Section 152 to read as follows:

"Employers agreeing to use the Union labels and violating any of the conditions for use shall, for the first offense, be refused the use of the labels until the employer deposits $100.00 in cash with the union as a guarantee for a faithful compliance in the future; but it shall be optional with local unions or joint label committees to return said deposits at the expiration of five years. For a second violation the use of the labels shall be refused for the space of six months and the amount deposited forfeited. There shall be an additional label or seal placed on the inside cover of the box indicating that the cigars are of union manufacture. In no case shall there be more than two union labels or facsimiles of the same on each box. Nor shall the words "blue labels" be used as a brand by any manufacturer, under penalty of forfeiture of the use of the label. Any member of the Union, who is a manufacturer, and violates any conditions for the use of the label shall be fined for the first offense the sum of $35.00 payable within thirty days; for the second offense the sum of $50.00, payable within sixty days, and for the third offense the sum of $100.00 payable within ninety days, shall be imposed.

The amendment offered by Delegate Lang was defeated.

The amendment offered by the committee was adopted.

Section 153. Amendment by Committee.

Strike out all after the word "writing," line 4, up to and including the word "convict," line 8, page 42, and insert the words "to the local executive board."

The report of the committee was adopted.

Section 155. Amendment by committee.

Amend by striking out the entire section and inserting a new section to read:

"Sec. 155. Manufacturers operating more than one shop shall not be allowed the use of the union label unless all shops operated by such manufacturers are strictly union shops."

"Manufacturers removing their shop to another locality in time of difficulty shall not be allowed the use of the union label without the consent of the union where the original shop was located. Provided, however, that the local union under whose jurisdiction the shop has located may, in accordance with Section 213, appeal the question of re-opening said shop to a popular vote of the local unions, stating the reasons therefor; a majority of all votes cast shall decide the question."

"The union from whose jurisdiction the factory has been removed shall have a right to submit its reasons for objecting to the organization of the shop."

"No brands of cigars made in both union and non-union shops shall be allowed to bear the union label."

"Should a manufacturer lay off part or the whole force of his employees on account of lack of work, all former employees must be given preference when work is resumed."

The question was discussed by Delegates Brey, No. 97; Stack, No. 202; Gompers, No. 13; Bartels, No. 97; Van Horn, No. 14, Rhine, No. 90; Asch, No. 251.

Delegate Gompers moved to amend the committees' report by adding: "The union from whose jurisdiction the factory has been removed shall have the right to submit its reasons for objecting to the organization of the shop."

The amendment was adopted and added to the original report.

The report was discussed by Delegates Mancee, No. 42; Good, No. 165; Montis, No. 39; Bauer, No. 4; Collins, No. 97, and Van Horn, No. 14.

Delegate Rhine suggested that the two recommendations of the committee be voted on separately.

The first two, as amended by Delegate Gompers, were adopted as recommended by the committee.

The other paragraphs were pending at time of adjournment.

The following resolutions were introduced:

Resolution No. 17.

Whereas, in the struggle between the organized workers and the employers it has become more and more apparent that the power of the government is being used on the side of the bosses, as witnessed by the infamous Daugherty injunction against the Railroad Shopmen, the abolition of the Federal Child Labor Law and the Women's Minimum Wage Law, and many other similar acts; and

Whereas, to protect our interests we workers must so organize ourselves politically that we can secure strong representation in the various governmental bodies, which are now almost entirely controlled by the employing interests; and

Whereas, to so protect our political interests we must have a political party of our own, the prevailing political policy of labor being, in our opinion, incapable of getting the best results; and

Whereas, in many other countries the workers, notably in Great Britain, have built up powerful labor parties which exert tremendous influence in their respective governments; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Cigarmakers' International Union of America, in regular convention assembled, goes on record in favor of labor forming a political party of its own based upon the trade unions and controlled by them.

Submitted by delegates Boston Local, No. 97.

J. S. Owen, No. 133; Frank Gutheil, No. 323; C. Kemmerer, No. 232; E. J. Menard, No. 179; Edward Burtch, No. 298; W. C. Hoverter, No. 236; Warren Taylor, No. 429; T. F. Burns, No. 113; Frank Brown, No. 357; James Sheehan, No. 25; Jack Melhado, No. 144; Sam Riefkin, No. 129; Manuel De Diego, No. 500; Francisco Chillura, No. 464; Guiseppe P. Bianco, No. 462; L. Fales, No. 462; J. Rhine, No. 90; Albert S. Horne, No. 101.

Resolution No. 18.

Submitted by Delegate Philip Wagaman, No. 316, McSherrystown, Pa.

Whereas, it is universally known that the labor movement has greatly assisted in reducing race and religious prejudices and in every way contributed toward a higher standard of living and betterment of society, thereby perfecting the present state of civilization; and

Whereas, it is a well-known fact that the Ku Klux Klan are actively engaged in a campaign of religious and political intolerance; and

Whereas, this action creates and continues to create a state of lawlessness bordering on anarchy in many sections of the country; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the delegates to the 24th convention of the C. M. I. U. of A., assembled at Chicago, Illinois, August 13, 1923, hereby express our sentiments of horror and protest against this menace to life and liberty of conscience; and be it further Resolved, That we are opposed to any and all organizations, whether Italian Fascisti, Ku Klux Klan or any other similar organization whose object and motive is the establishing of an autocratic and invisible government which would inspire the destruction of our religious, political and economic freedom.

At 5:15 o'clock p. m. the convention was adjourned to reconvene at 9 o'clock a. m. Wednesday, August 22.

NINTH DAY—MORNING SESSION.

Chicago, Illinois, August 22, 1923.

The convention was called to order at 9 o'clock a. m., Wednesday, August 22d, by President Perkins.

Absentees—August 21, afternoon session: Delegates F. C. Bugby, No. 470; John Fitzpatrick, No. 206; Warren Taylor, No. 429; I. N. Weills, No. 102.

August 22d, morning session: Delegates

Chris Freudeman, No. 96; John Fitzpatrick, No. 206; Warren Taylor, No. 429.

August 22d, afternoon session: Delegates Warren Taylor, No. 429; John Fitzpatrick, No. 206.

Correction of Tuesday minutes, page 4, second column. The second paragraph, the amendment offered by Delegate Gompers, should have been included in Section 150, as amended, the complete section to read:

"Sec. 150. Each local union shall furnish through the shop collectors or committeemen (as the case may be) to all strictly union shops, free of charge, as many of the labels as may be required from week to week for all cigars actually made by members of the union and persons holding retiring cards. It shall be optional with local unions to grant the union label to any manufacturer whose name or firm name appears in or about such nonunion cigars. It shall be optional with local unions to paste them on the boxes. But this shall not apply to the product of the automatic machine.

"All label orders shall be signed by the shop collector; the label order blanks shall be furnished by the International President at cost. No shop shall be considered a strictly union shop unless the packers of the shop are members of the International Union, and the apprentice law of the local union be complied with. "All labels must be pasted upon the boxes before the boxes leave the factory."

Report of Committee on Constitution.

Delegate Hilfers, secretary of the committee, reported as follows:

Section 155 was under consideration at the time of adjournment Tuesday. The first two paragraphs had been adopted as amended by the committee. An amendment by Delegate Gompers had been added to the report of the committee as paragraph 3, and paragraphs 4 and 5 were before the convention.

Delegate Bauer, No. 4, submitted the following amendment: Amend paragraph 3 of the section in the constitution by adding in line 4, after the word "first," the following: "who were not specifically discharged at the time of the lay-off."

The committee accepted the amendment of Delegate Bauer, the amended paragraph to replace the last paragraph of their report.

The question was discussed by Delegates Sheehan, No. 25; Bauer, No. 4; Owen, No. 133; Pollack, No. 4; Batty, No. 313.

The amendment offered by Delegate Bauer was adopted.

The section as amended and adopted reads as follows:

"Sec. 155. Manufacturers operating more than one shop shall not be allowed the use of the union label unless all shops operated by such manufacturers are strictly union shops.

"Manufacturers removing their shop to another locality in time of difficulty shall not be allowed the use of the union label without the consent of the union where the original shop was located. Provided, however, that the local union under whose jurisdiction the shop has located may, in accordance with Section 213, appeal the question of re-opening said shop to a popular vote of the local unions, stating the reasons therefor; a majority of all votes cast shall decide the question.

"The union from whose jurisdiction the factory has been removed shall have a right to submit its reasons for objecting to the organization of the shop.

"No brands of cigars made in both union and non-union shops shall be allowed to bear the union label.

"Should a manufacturer lay off part or the whole force of his employees on account of lack of work, upon resuming work he shall not be permitted to engage new help before placing all of his former employees at work, who were not specifically discharged at the time of the lay-off. Failing to comply with this provision after ample warning has been given the manufacturer by the union of the label committee, wherever such exists, his labels shall be stopped until it is complied with."

Section 156. Amendment by committee.

Strike out the word "district" in lines 3 and 4 and insert the word "union" in lieu thereof. Also insert in line 4, after the word "label," "all labels must bear the ink stamp." Also amend by striking out all of second paragraph.

Amendment by Delegate Collins. Amend the constitution by striking out all of Section 156.

The amendments were discussed by Delegates Van Horn, No. 14; Collins, No. 97; President Perkins and Brey, No. 97.

Further amendment by the committee: Add a new paragraph to read: "The International President is authorized to allow unions to use a machine for stamping labels, and to authorize a simpler machine for stamping labels used on packs."

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Brey, No. 97; Collins, No. 97; Braham, No. 87; Cermack, No. 141, and Hilfers, No. 138.

The amendment offered by Delegate Collins was withdrawn, and the section as amended by the committee was adopted, as follows:

"Sec. 156: The International President shall furnish each local union with a uniform label canceling stamp, and no other shall be used for stamping the union and factory number on the union label. The union and factory number shall be movable; red ink shall be used on the right-hand end of the label by the financial secretary or a committee designated for that purpose.

"The International President is authorized to allow unions to use machines for stamping the label, and to authorize a simpler machine for stamping the labels used on packs."

Mr. John H. Walker, secretary of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, was introduced by President Perkins.

Mr. Walker stated that he deemed it a privilege to be permitted to address the convention of the Cigar Makers International Union, as members of that organization were among the pioneers of the American labor movement; they had assisted in the organization of other industries, and had always been constructive and helpful. He conveyed to the delegates the greetings of the organized movement in Illinois, and expressed the hope that the plans they would adopt at the convention would bring the greatest possible success to the cigar makers of the country in their efforts to organize their industry.

Mr. Walker spoke of the great work performed by a distinguished member of the Cigar Makers' Union, Mr. Samuel Gompers, and expressed the opinion that while his work is well known and appreciated by the workers of the country at the present time, it would be better understood in the future. He stated that the work of Mr. Gompers reflected credit upon his organization, upon himself and upon the entire labor movement.

Mr. Walker, in speaking of his long acquaintance with and his friendship for President Perkins, gave some interesting information with regard to his work and his great devotion to the interests of the cigar makers. Discussing the idealism of the men and women connected with the organized labor movement and the sacrifices they are ready to make for it, he cited an instance when a former governor of Illinois tendered a position with a salary of ten thousand dollars a year to President Perkins, who declined the offer in order that he might continue his work for the Cigar Makers International Union and the men and women with whom he had worked for the greater part of his life.

Mr. Walker gave a brief account of the work of the State Federation of Labor, and urged that the delegates not only work for the affiliation of their own unions with the Federation, but try to secure the affiliation of all other organizations not now in the Federation. In closing he wished for the organization unbounded success in the future.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

Section 157. Amendment proposed by Local Union No. 2, Buffalo:

Amend Section 157 by striking out all after the word "time," line 7. The committee recommended the adoption of the amendment. The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Section 158. No change.

Section 159. Amendment in resolution referred to the Committee on Constitution by Committee on Resolutions:

Amend by striking out Section 159 and inserting the following: "On and after May 31, 1924, the $1.00 per capita allowed local unions on all 30 and 40 cents contributing members shall be placed in a separate fund for a period of two years, to be known as the General Advertising and Organization Fund. This fund shall be under the supervision of the International President who shall, with the approval of the International Executive Board, use this fund for organization purposes and contract for general advertising of the union label and distribution of the same."

Amendment by Delegate Braham, No. 87: Strike out Section 159 as written and substitute the following:

"The International President shall receive from local unions an annual $1.00 per capita tax for every member to advertise the union label and organization in different localities, as he may deem advisable. The per capita tax to be based upon the May membership of each year, the same to be taken from the General Fund."

Amendment by Delegate Horne, No. 171: After the word "agitation," line 3, add "or organization work."

Amendment by Delegate Brey, No. 97: Amend Section 159 by inserting after "May 31" the following: "1926, and the above sums to be spent on organization campaign in the meantime."

Amendment by Delegate Rhine, No. 90: Add after the word "label," the words "and organization," in committee's report.

The amendments were discussed by Delegates Leonard, No. 335; Braham, No. 87; Goldstein, No. 292; Brey, No. 97; Stack, No. 202; Butcher, No. 248; Gonzales (Manuel), No. 336; Sexton, No. 110; Burns, No. 113; Horne, No. 171; Van Horn, No. 14; Wolf, No. 90; Good, No. 165; Riefkin, No. 129; Lowy, No. 213; Barnes, No. 344, and Theis, No. 282.

Amendment by Delegate Josephson, No. 212: Amend the amendment of the committee by inserting: "Half of such money for the first two years to be used for the organization of the cigar industry."

The chairman suggested that the report of the committee be first voted on, and then it could be amended if the delegates so desired.

The report of the committee was adopted.

The amendments offered by Delegates Brey, Braham, Horne and Josephson were defeated.

The amendment offered by Delegate Rhine was adopted and added to the report of the committee.

At 12 o'clock noon the convention was adjourned to reconvene at 1:30 o'clock p. m. of the same day.

NINTH DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 1:30 o'clock p. m., Wednesday, August 22d, by President Perkins.

Report of Committee on Officers' Reports.

Delegate Good, No. 165, presiding.

Delegate Martinez, secretary of the committee, submitted the following report: Convention Hall, Chicago, Ill., Aug. 22, 1923.

To the Twenty-fourth Convention of the Cigar

Makers' International Union of America:

It has been made the object of careful consideration on the part of your Committee on Officers' Reports, the report of our International Executive Board to this convention, on which we beg leave to report as follows:

It has been noticed by your committee that during the last three years, and after our laws were amended so as to have our International Executive Board to convene at least once every year, the relations of all the members of our International Executive Board among themselves, with our International Office and with the membership at large have become more friendly, of better understanding, generative of the best feelings and of greater significance of fellowship, brotherhood, mutual consideration and reciprocal helpfulness, as we hope will continue to be.

And although it is the Committee on Constitution the proper body in charge to consider the advisability of retaining in our law that part which enables us to have the members of our International Executive Board to keep themselves in closer relations by meeting with that frequency that circumstances may justify, however, we dare to recommend that at least that part of the constitution which makes possible for our International Executive Board to meet at least once every year be retained in our laws.

By reading the report of our International Executive Board (printed on the daily proceedings of this convention, Aug. 13, page 28) we have learned that, in addition to the routine work especially assigned to them by our constitution, they have been ready at any time to attend any call of the International President and whenever the circumstances have justified our International President in so doing.

That they have shared during the last three years by their advice and consent and their endorsement of the tactics, actions, decisions, plans and policy of our International President to a larger extent, than during previous years, the responsibilities which entail the leadership of our beloved movement.

That the question of organization, benefits and dues were topics receiving careful consideration, thought and study on the part of the members of the International Executive Board at nearly every one of their meetings.

That communion of ideals, fellowship and unity of action of all its members and disinterested co-operation and readiness in them to meet all obligations and confront all difficulties as brought to their attention and knowledge by the International President, is something that should not be ignored by this convention, being our belief that the International Executive Board is entitled to this mention and his work worthy of commendation.

It is our privilege and we feel that it is also our pleasure to make special mention of the co-operation rendered by our International Executive Board to our International President, and therefore to our International Union, in discussing and having finally endorsed and unanimously approved the new plan intended to effect changes which are necessary in our "Death Benefit System."

The action taken by this convention in regard to such changes—and to which we have already referred in our report on the address of our International President—perfectly proves beyond all doubts that our International Executive Board was very well inspired and perfectly right in unanimously endorsing and subscribing to the plan as submitted to them by the International President, an action which, having been unanimously ratified by this convention gives them even more credit and weight in their actions.

Our convention having anticipated the recommendations of this committee by adopting the suggestions and recommendations of the International Executive Board on this particular part of the "Death Benefit System," nothing on the part of your Committee on Officers' Reports could be more expressive and complimentary to the International Executive Board than the very action, as already stated to our convention, and we feel at this particular instance that the International Union as a whole should be congratulated for the steps already taken by the delegates to this convention on the subject matter above referred to.

In conclusion, your committee recommends that as a recognition to the International Executive Board for the work done all the declarations and recommendations contained in this report be approved by this convention.

Respectfully and fraternally submitted,

WM. COLLINS, Chairman.

J. H. RILEY.

H. M. GOOD.

H. R. CHAPP.

P. RIVERA MARTINEZ, Secretary.

The report of the committee was adopted by unanimous vote.

The committee was discharged with the thanks of the convention for their splendid work.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

Secretary Hilfers reported as follows:

Sections 160, 161, 162 and 163. No change.

Section 164. No amendment by committee.

Amendment by Delegate Dundon, No. 16: Add to Section 164, "Where two or more charters now exist and where such extra charter was issued for substantial reasons at the time of issue, and where such cause has been removed and a majority of all members of the union have expressed a wish to amalgamate into one union, the International President is authorized to make an investigation and to recall the charter if, in his judgment, the facts warrant, subject to an appeal."

Amendment by Delegate Brey: Amend Section 164 by striking out all after the word "trade," line 3, up to and including the word "locality," line 6, and insert the following:

"But not more than one charter shall be granted in any locality except where there are large numbers of members or the question of race would interfere with the growth of the International. The validity of such exception shall be determined by the International Executive Board and all the facts published in the Official Journal not later than 30 days after said decision."

The amendment offered by Delegate Brey was adopted.

The amendment of Delegate Dundon was discussed by Delegate Stevens, No. 2, and Delegate Dundon.

The amendment was then adopted unanimously.

Delegate Bartels: Would Delegate Brey's amendment cause the amalgamation of Brooklyn with New York?

President Perkins: It does not affect the existing condition of affairs, but applies only to the future.

Sections 165 to 170, both inclusive. No change.

No. 171. No amendment by committee.

Amendment by Delegates Asch, No. 251, and Lowy, No. 213: Amend Section 171 by striking out all after the word "receipts," line 1, page 46, up to and including the words "twenty per cent.," line 3, and insert the following:

"Unions numbering less than 100 members, 35 per cent, 101 to 300 members, 30 per cent, 301 members, 25 per cent."

Amendment by Delegate Butcher, No. 248: Amend Section 171 by striking out the words "Unions numbering thirty members or less, 30 per cent.; from thirty-one to fifty members, 25 per cent.; fifty members and upwards, 20 per cent.," and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Unions numbering one hundred members or less, 30 per cent; one hundred and one members and upwards, 25 per cent."

Delegate Gompers in the chair.

The question was discussed by Delegates Brey, No. 97; Asch, No. 251; Butcher, No. 248; Good, No. 165; Beissman, No. 62; Lowy, No. 213; Marchand, No. 132.

Both amendments were defeated.

Section 140-A. Action deferred at previous session.

Delegate Van Horn: In taking these matters up with Mr. Wright, the representative of the insurance company, he has given us the cost of carrying total disability up to and including the age of 60 years. While the cost is nominal, his advice is that the union carry this the same as we carry the members over 70 years of age. His figures prove it will cost us very little to carry it, because if we carry it as we do now, with the surrender at $350, we are saving to that extent. Should the company carry it, that portion of it at least would necessarily be stricken out and that we insert the regular disability clause. The commercial disability clause does not quite fit the needs of the cigar makers; that is, it does not recognize the loss of one hand as total disability, and it is total disability in our trade. He said the rates provided previously will carry it and we will never notice it.

Amendment to Section 140-A by committee: "Strike out $75.00 and insert $100.00, lines 5 and 7, and strike out balance of section after the word "expenses," line 8.

Delegate Van Horn: He makes the further recommendation that any payment of total disability that will apply to 140-A and 140-B, instead of payment being made in a lump sum, that it be made in monthly payments, a proposition recognized by all insurance companies and by the different states under the laws where they pay disability benefits. In many cases the lump sum has been dissipated. The committee has not as yet written an amendment to Section 140-A; we did not have time to do it.

In discussing the subject Mr. Wright said: Total and permanent disability as written into the policies of insurance companies contemplates total and permanent disability from any cause.

You collect $900,000 a year. A lot of that money is in banks and a lot of it you do not get any interest on. You ought to get 4 per cent under present business conditions. Turn that money over and get something on it. It is possible I may pay you back between one thousand and two thousand dollars the first year in the way of participation.

President Perkins: In the section of the committee's report that we carry and pay from our own funds, that is, the fellow that loses one or two hands or becomes blind—will your company pay him the $100.00? I don't see why you should not. Since we are paying your company the money with which to pay him, it seems to me your company ought to pay the $100.00.

We then assume the responsibility and pay him if he is entitled to $500. We have got to pay him the $400, and at the same time he has been contributing to your company and you ought to at least agree to pay him the $100.

Mr. Wright: I would like to do that if you would allow me to retain the participation end of it.

Delegate Marchand: It is optional with the man to carry more than $500. If a member takes out a policy of $1,000, what would you do in case he became totally disabled?

Mr. Wright: We charge you 25 cents a thousand to carry the total and permanent disability phase of the policy. That is a waiver of the premium; that is, the insured does not pay further premium, provided, however, that this total and permanent disability occurs before the age of 60. That permanent and total disability goes further than your constitution, because it covers total and permanent disability from any cause, accident or disease. From 2 to 2½ cents per hundred will carry that up to the age of 70, total disability from any cause.

For the payment of a slightly increased amount the figure would be 8 cents a year on $100. We not only pay him the lump sum but we pay him $100—that would be about $8.00, but in order to save fractions we will say $10 a month on the basis of $1,000, which is $120 a year. We do not only pay him that until we pay the face of the contract, but we pay it as long as he lives. That is not all. We would still pay his beneficiary the face of that policy when he dies, another thousand. The cost of that is 8 cents a hundred.

President Perkins: You will carry right through the total disability if we increase our payment to 2½ cents on the hundred, and instead of the old rate of $1.51 per year it would be $1.53½ per year, based on the average age of 48 years. You will include that in your proposition?

Mr. Wright: Yes.

President Perkins: We must increase our dues, then, to meet the 2½ cents if we are to have the insurance people carry the total disability clause. The dues fixed the other day were predicated on $1.51. You will carry the disability clause in our constitution as it is now on the payment of 2½ cents additional?

Mr. Wright: This provides for waiver of premium. To pay in installments will cost you about 8 cents a hundred a year, that is, ¾ of a cent a month.

I would like to verify this, because it not only contemplates paying the installments but the face of the policy at the death of the insured. I will check back on this and give you the actual figures necessary to carry out the clause in your constitution as now constituted.

President Perkins: You neither carry the total disability nor those that have been adjudged insane in the contract you read the other day.

Mr. Wright: Tuberculosis and insanity have been found to cause a majority of the total disability cases up to the present time.

President Perkins: Section 140-B applies to the insane. Those you do not intend to carry in the original contract presented the other day?

Mr. Wright: No.

Several questions were asked by delegates and answered by Mr. Wright.

Delegate Gompers, who was presiding, suggested that further questions be deferred and the report of the committee laid over until Thursday. The delegates were also reminded that the questions were to be presented to Mr. Wright in writing.

Further consideration of the subject was deferred until Thursday morning.

Report of Committee on Resolutions.

Delegate Hitz, secretary of the committee, reported as follows:

Resolution No. 18.

Submitted by Delegate Wagaman, No. 616.

For the original resolution printed in the proceedings of the 8th day the committee offered the following substitute:

Whereas, It is universally known that the labor movement has greatly assisted in reducing race and religious prejudices and in every way contributed toward a higher standard of living and betterment of society, thereby perfecting the present state of civilization, and

Whereas, It is a well known fact that the Ku Klux Klan are actively engaged in a campaign of religious, political and labor intolerance, and

Whereas, This action creates and continues to create a state of lawlessness, bordering on anarchy in many sections of the country; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the delegates of the 24th Convention of the C. M. I. U. of A., assembled at Chicago, Ill., August 22, 1923, hereby express our sentiments of horror, and protest against the menace to life and liberty of conscience; and, be it further

Resolved, That we are opposed to any and all organizations whose object and motive is the establishing of an autocratic, an invisible government, which would inspire the destruction of our religious, political and economic freedom.

The substitute submitted by the committee was adopted.

Resolution No. 19.

Submitted by P. Rivers Martinez, No. 460, San Juan, Porto Rico:

Whereas, In the year 1920 the Cigar Makers' International Union, after a thorough investigation and careful consideration, came to a mutual understanding of friendly relations with the Cigar Makers' Federation of the Provinces of Havana and Pinar del Rio (Federacion de Torcedores de las Provincias de la Habana y Pinar del Rio) which is the only one bona-fide national organization of cigar makers in Cuba, and

Whereas, A covenant of solidarity and friendly and reciprocal relations to mutually accept the cards of the members of the Cuban Federation and of our International Union was entered into and signed at that time by the respective representatives of the Cuban Federation and of the International Union, and

Whereas, The good feelings, good disposition and liberality and generosity of the Cuban Federation of Cigar Makers and members thereof was immediately proved in many instances, and very particularly during the long and protracted Tampa strike, which was already in progress when our covenant with the Cuban Federation of Cigar Makers was signed, having our members in Tampa receive all the financial help that the Cuban Federation was able to send them and work having been provided also at Cuba for a good number of our members, and their papers, orators, etc., placed to the service of the above mentioned strike, and

tion was its president, Mr. Jose Bravo, as it may be seen by the records, and

Whereas, The above referred to President Jose Bravo has apparently disappeared from the Island of Cuba taking with him nearly all the funds of that organization and to the amount of $39,000, according to the reports received by personal letters and articles published in papers which are friendly to us and to the Cuban Federation as well, and

Whereas, Such an action of President Jose Bravo has been very discouraging for the cigar makers of Cuba, who had such a good and strong organization along the lines of trade unionism, to the extent that a total disorganization might result what would certainly be detrimental not only for our brother cigar makers of Cuba but for ourselves in its vast effects, and

Whereas, It is our duty to see to it that workers of all trades organize everywhere as it is very particular that cigar makers and workers of our industry organize and keep organized not only in the United States but wherever cigars are made and feeling that we are in duty bound to do all within our power to help in maintaining and stimulating the organization of our brother cigar makers, and

Whereas, Due to the action of President Bravo unrest and distrust is being felt among the cigar makers who are members of the Cuban Federation of Cigar Makers a seed which is being widely spread by the very action of the employers who take advantage of the situation to discourage the men and women who are still organized, all what might lead to a total disorganization of the forces of our industry who are organized in the Island of Cuba, and

Whereas, Should the employers succeed in their efforts there would happen things in the trade that we all would have to regret, and for the sake of the organization being our duty to take notice of the situation in Cuba; therefore, be it

Resolved, First, That meantime, our International President be instructed to send an expressive cablegram of encouragement to the Cuban Federation of Cigar Makers expressing the sympathies and feelings of this convention toward the critical situation they are now confronting on account of the treacherous action of their president.

Second, That our International President be instructed to visit Cuba at the earliest possible date after the adjournment of this convention to personally convey to those brothers the message of good will, encouragement and moral support of the International Union in rebuilding and strengthening the organization of the trade and industry in Cuba. And that any financial support that the International Union might afford to give be given to these brothers.

Third, That if possible for him to go, First Vice President be instructed also to accompany the International President in this most important mission.

Fourth, That we pledge our moral support, efforts and vigilance in our country to our brother cigar makers of the Federacion de Torcedores de la Habana y Pinar del Rio in their efforts to locate and punish the man responsible for the critical situation the organization of the cigar makers in Cuba is going through at this time.

Fifth, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Federation de Torcedores de la Habana y Pinar del Rio.

P. Rivera Martinez, delegate, Union 460, Tase Bustillo, Union 353.

Your committee recommends that the subject matter of Resolution No. 19 be referred to the International President for such action as he may deem just and appropriate. In addition, we extend fraternal greetings to the organized cigar makers of Cuba, and urge continuance of the fraternal co-operation of the bona fide organization of cigar makers of Cuba and the Cigar Makers International Union of America.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted unanimously.

Resolution No. 20.

Submitted by Delegate W. E. Stacy, No. 118, Peoria, Ill.

Whereas, The next convention of the Illinois State Federation of Labor will be held in the city of Decatur on September 10th, and

Whereas, The said city of Decatur is in the center of the coal fields of Illinois and the miners will be well represented in the convention, and

Whereas, The Cigar Makers' union label is sadly neglected in the coal mining districts; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the International President be asked to take the matter up with the local unions in the state and urge them to send delegates to the Decatur convention, and, be it further

Resolved, That the International President send an international agent to help the unions in their label campaign.

The committee recommended concurrence in the resolution.

The recommendation was adopted after a brief discussion of the situation in the state by Delegate Stacy.

Resolution No. 21.

Submitted by P. Rivera Martinez, No. 460, San Juan, Porto Rico.

Whereas, Labor conditions in the Philippine Islands as reported are very far from those which human beings should enjoy, and

Whereas, The effects of the introduction of cigars from the Philippine Islands in the United States duty free is being felt in the United States to the detriment of the cigar industry employees and independent manufacturers as well who are unable to meet competition, and

Whereas, Real conditions prevailing among the working classes of the Philippine Islands, and very particularly among the Philippine cigar makers, as well as wages received, etc., should be made known to the workers and cigar makers of the United States by some authoritative agency of our movement, so that the proper measures may be adopted to prevent further evils, after real working and living conditions of the workers and cigar makers, particularly are known; be it

Resolved, That the delegates of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America to the next coming convention of the A. F. of L. be instructed and requested to introduce at that convention a resolution providing for the appointment by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor of a special committee to carry out a general survey of working and living conditions of the workers of the Philippines and very particularly of the cigar makers, wages received, and thoughts and aspirations of the working classes of this territory.

That this committee as appointed by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor should make all recommendations that may be deemed necessary to have the interests of the workers and very particularly of the cigar makers of the United States duly safeguarded and protected.

That the Philippine Islands, as far as we know, is the only possession of the United States not visited so far by any authorized committee of the organized labor movement of America to bring real conditions to the attention and knowledge of the working people of the United States.

Your committee recommends that the section which requests the American Federation of Labor to bear the expense of the proposed commission be stricken out, and that when thus amended the resolution be adopted.

The report of the committee was discussed by Delegates Martinez, No. 460; Gompers, No. 13, and Gunlock, No. 201.

Delegate Gompers stated that some years ago a representative of the A. F. of L., a member of the Seamen's Union, had investigated conditions in the Philippine Islands.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Resolution No. 22.

Submitted by Committee on Resolutions:

This Twenty-fourth Convention of the Cigar-makers' International Union of America declares its renewed fealty, devotion and abiding faith in our International Union and in the trade union movement of America, and we call upon the members of our International Union to ratify this fealty, devotion and abiding faith not only individually but collectively.

That we appeal to the unorganized members of every branch of our trade and industry to assume the same fealty, devotion and abiding faith in the permanency and efficiency of the Cigarmakers' International Union in its ability to bring light and improvement into their work and homes and become members of our International Union and thereby become part of the great labor movement of America at the earliest possible opportunity.

That the Cigarmakers' International Union now having opened its doors wide for the acceptance of all who are working in our trade and industry; and it is the duty of the unorganized to join with us and make common cause for immediate early improvement and final triumph; therefore be it

Resolved, That the local unions throughout our jurisdiction select committees of such members as may be necessary and that the duties of the committee and the unions shall be to conduct a drive" or "Labor Forward Movement" in an organizing campaign in the industry and that every arrangement be made to put it into operation and be sustained on and after the forthcoming Labor Day, 1923.

The resolution was adopted by unanimous vote.

Resolution No. 23.

Submitted by Committee on Resolutions:

Resolved, That the Convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union, by a unanimous vote, hereby extends our thanks to the following speakers who appeared before the convention:

Hon. C. M. Doty, Assistant Corporation Counsel, who extended a welcome on behalf of the city in the absence of Mayor Dever; to Mr. John Fitzpatrick, President of the Chicago Federation of Labor; to Mr. Victor Olander, Secretary of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, who spoke on behalf of the organized movement of the state; to John J. Manning, Secretary of the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor; to John H. Walker, President of the Illinois State Federation of Labor; to our International President and the officers and members of Local Union No. 14, of Chicago, for their cordial welcome extended to the convention, and for the manner in which they entertained the delegates and arranged for their comfort and convenience in every way.

The resolution was adopted by unanimous vote.

Resolution No. 13.

Resubmitted by Delegates Brey, Collins and Blockland, Local 97, after they had amended it:

Believing that the International Union should be reorganized upon the basis of districts; actuated by a desire to enable the local unions in a given district to maintain and improve their present hold upon the industry as best suited to their needs, without retarding the development, by the International Union of the other districts in accordance with their respective needs and conditions; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Twenty-fourth Convention of the Cigarmakers' International Union hereby instructs the International President to appoint a committee to draft a plan to reorganize the International Union on a district basis, such committee to be appointed not later than 60 days after the adoption of this resolution by the referendum vote of a majority of the membership; such plan to be submitted to a popular vote within 30 days after the committee reports its plan to the International President.

The committee recommended nonconcurrency in the amended resolution.

The recommendation of the committee was discussed by Delegate Brey, No. 97, and Chairman Gompers.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Resolution No. 17.

Whereas, In the struggle between the organized workers and the employers it has become more and more apparent that the power of the government is being used on the side of the bosses, as witnessed by the infamous Daugherty injunction against the Railroad Shopmen, the abolition of the Federal Child Labor Law and the Women's Minimum Wage can secure strong representation in the vari-

Whereas, To protect our interests we workers must so organize ourselves politically that we Law, and many other similar acts; and ous governmental bodies, which are now almost entirely controlled by the employing interests; and

Whereas, To so protect our political interests we must have a political party of our own, the prevailing political policy of labor being, in our opinion, incapable of getting the best results; and

Whereas, In many other countries the workers, notably in Great Britain, have built up powerful labor parties which exert tremendous influence in their respective governments; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Cigarmakers' International Union of America, in regular convention assembled, goes on record in favor of labor forming a political party of its own based upon the trade unions and controlled by them.

Submitted by delegates Boston Local, No. 97, and J. S. Owen, No. 133; Frank Gutheil, No. 323; C. Kemmerer, No. 232; E. J. Menard, No. 179; Edward Burtch, No. 298; W. C. Fales, No. 462; J. Rhine, No. 90; Albert S. Horne, No. 101.

The committee recommended nonconcurrency. The recommendation of the committee was adopted, 106 delegates voting in the affirmative and 45 in the negative.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

Section 172. Amendment by Local No. 2, Buffalo, N. Y.

Amend by adding on next to last line after the word "thereafter" the following: "The financial secretary and treasurer of each local union shall be bonded in a responsible bonding company in an amount sufficient to protect the International Union from loss; the local union shall require such bond to be renewed annually. The premium for such bond shall not be a charge against the local union's percentage allowance. Any union violating this section shall be suspended."

The amendment was adopted.

Sections 173 to 181, inclusive. No change.

Delegate Emery, No. 501, inquired if instructions were given for depositing the money the financial secretary has on hand. The chairman referred him to Section 169, page 45.

Sections 182, 183 and 184. No change.

Section 185. Amendment by Delegate Josephson, No. 212.

Strike out section 185 and insert the following section:

"Sec. 185. The corresponding secretary shall on the first of January and July, or within eight days thereafter, forward to the International President a complete report upon the state of trade, prices paid the different classes of work in said locality, the general cost of living; also number of non-union factories and employes as near as he can ascertain, a copy of which shall be kept on file by the local union; the International President to furnish proper blanks for same."

The amendment was defeated.

At 5 o'clock p. m. the convention was adjourned to reconvene at 9 o'clock a. m., Thursday, August 23d.

TENTH DAY—MORNING SESSION.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

Delegate Hilfers, Secretary of the Committee, reported as follows:

Sections 186, 187, 188 and 189. No change.

Section 190. Amended by the committee by inserting after the word "approval," line 4, "at which the member fined may submit a statement of his case."

The report of the committee was adopted.

Sections 191 to 204, both inclusive. No change.

Section 205. Amendment by Delegate Braham, No. 87.

Strike out "Greater New York" and substitute "Manhattan."

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Braham, No. 87; Grabenstein, No. 141; Cermak, No. 141; Goldstein, No. 131; Wolf, No. 90; Lowy, No. 213; Owen, No. 133; Marchand, No. 132; Melhado, No. 144; Traeger, No. 149; Rhine, No. 90.

The amendment offered by Delegate Braham was lost.

Section No. 206. No change.

Section No. 207. Amendment by Delegate Owen, No. 133.

Amend section by adding after the word "label," last line, the following: "But nothing in said rules or regulations shall allow a local union to transact the business of said local union other than through a regular meeting of the members, or through the executive board."

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Owen, No. 133; Cermak, No. 141;

Rhine, No. 90; Wolf, No. 90; Bartels, No. 97; Melhado, No. 144.

The amendment was adopted.

Section No. 208. Amendment of committee.

Amend by striking out entire Section 208 and insert the following new section:

"Sec. 208. All persons learning cigar making, stogie making or packing shall serve an apprenticeship, the time such an apprentice shall serve to be determined by the style of work learned. Those learning strictly hand work and packing shall serve not more than (3) three years; mold work not more than (2) two years; bunch-making or rolling not more than (1) one year; machine workers not more than six months.

"Local unions shall judge the qualifications of apprentices who may make application for membership and pass upon same before maximum time has expired.

"The secretary of each local union shall keep a record of all apprentices serving in strictly union shops, and other shops in the jurisdiction of the local union as far as possible. All apprentices shall be honorary members of the union until their term of apprenticeship has ended, when they must become dues paying members."

The committee added the words "stogie making" to their original amendment.

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Montis, No. 39; Van Horn, No. 14; Emery, No. 501; Russell, No. 49.

The report of the committee was adopted. Sections 209 and 210. No change.

Section 211. Amendment by Delegate Gunlock, No. 201, submitted as a resolution and referred by the Committee on Resolutions to the Committee on Constitution.

Strike out all of Section 211 and insert the following:

"Union cigar makers operating a cigar factory, and employing no journeymen cigar makers, be allowed one apprentice."

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Gunlock, No. 201; Van Horn, No. 14; and Hayford, No. 68.

The amendment was defeated.

Section 212. No change.

Section 213. Amendment submitted by committee.

Amendment to Sec. 213, proposed by Local No. 138 of Newark, N. J., the section to read:

"Referendum Amendments."

"Sec. 213. Each local union or the International Executive Board shall have the right to propose, through the columns of the Official Journal, amendments to the International Constitution. Each union is required to act upon every amendment at their meeting next following the receipt of the Journal containing such amendments, and report to the International President. Unions failing to comply with this provision shall be fined $5.00. But no union shall be fined for not taking action on a proposed amendment unless the same has been submitted by the International President by circular. Any amendment receiving the endorsement of at least twenty unions shall be submitted to a vote of local unions in the months of January, April, July and October of each year, and if adopted shall take effect and remain in force from the first day of the month succeeding the official publication of its adoption."

The report of the committee was adopted.

Amendment by Delegate Owen, No. 133, Richmond, Va.

Amend Section 213 by striking out the words "At least" on line ten, and substituting therefor the word "Any," and by inserting between the words "Unions" and the word "Shall" on line ten, the words "or a lesser number of unions whose combined membership is equal to the combined membership of the one hundred smallest unions."

Amended part of section to read:

"Any amendment receiving the endorsement of any twenty unions, or a lesser number of unions whose combined membership is equal to the combined membership of the one hundred smallest unions, shall be submitted to a vote of local unions within thirty days, and if adopted, shall take effect and remain in force from the first day of the month succeeding the official publication of its adoption."

Amendment by Delegate Grabenstein, No. 141.

Strike out the word "twenty," line 10, and insert the word "ten."

The question was discussed by Delegates Wolf, No. 90; Altheide, No. 44; Hilfers, No. 138; Emmert, No. 107; Burns, No. 113; Owens, No. 133.

Delegate Wolf: I voted to allow the Executive Board to propose amendments. Does that require twenty endorsements?

President Perkins: It certainly does—that is the law. Each local union of the International and Executive Board shall have the right to submit amendments. Further on provides that they shall require twenty seconds.

The amendments of Delegates Owen and Grabenstein were defeated.

Section 213½. New section submitted by committee.

"Sec. 213½. Every local union shall designate a meeting to be held in the months of January, April, July and October of each year for the purpose of voting on amendments proposed to the constitution, provided there are amendments to be voted on, through the Official Journal, and shall notify all members to be present at that stated meeting (retiring card holders to only vote on sick and death benefit amendments)."

(The amendment as originally submitted by the committee provided for fines for failure to vote. This was eliminated by an amendment offered by the committee after the section had been discussed.)

The question was discussed by Delegates Gonzales (Elias), No. 336; Sexton, No. 110; Bauer, No. 4; Gariepy, No. 58; Braham, No. 87; Rhine, No. 90; Van Horn, No. 14.

The report of the committee was adopted as amended.

Sections 214 to 218, both inclusive. No change.

Section 219. Amendment by committee.

Amend Sec. 219 by striking out on line 2 the word "August" and inserting the word "December," by striking out in the second paragraph, last line, the word "June" and inserting the word "October"; also by striking out in the last paragraph, last line, the words "June and July" and inserting therefor the words "October and November."

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Rhine and Goldstein.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Secretary Hilfers: A resolution was referred to the committee with reference to the members of the International Executive Board attending conventions of the International Union. The committee proposes the following:

Section 4. Amend by inserting after the word "elect," last line, the following:

"The first and second vice-presidents shall be delegates to all International Union conventions of the C. M. I. U. of A. by virtue of their office, but they shall not be entitled to vote on any question unless they are duly elected delegates to the convention."

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Brey, No. 97; Rhine, No. 90; Hilfers, No. 138; and Van Horn, No. 14.

The report of the committee was adopted, 98 delegates voting in the affirmative to 79 in the negative.

Secretary Hilfers: That is all our report, except the sections with reference to the insurance plan.

At 12 o'clock, noon, the convention was adjourned until 1:30 p. m. of the same day.

TENTH DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 1:30 o'clock p. m., Thursday, August 23d, by President Perkins.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

The committee began a review of the constitution, from the first section, to give delegates an opportunity to offer further amendments and to take up sections on which action had been deferred.

Section 4. Amended by Delegate Brey.

Add after the section that "beneficiary members shall not be included in the count."

The amendment was adopted.

Section 6. Amendment by Delegate Brey. Strike out $7.00 where it appears and insert $8.00; strike out $5.00 and insert $8.00.

The amendment was divided and the part providing for striking out $7.00 and inserting $8.00 was adopted.

The amendment proposing to strike out $5.00 and insert $8.00 was lost.

Delegate Brey moved to strike out $5.00 in line 5 and insert $6.00.

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Brey and Gonzales (Elias).

The amendment was defeated.

Section 39. Amendment by committee. That $7.00 be stricken out and $8.00 inserted in last line.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Section 49. Amendment by Delegate Brey.

Strike out all after the word "president," line 13, fourth paragraph, and insert: "shall be sent by letter to appellant and respondent within 30 days after receiving the reply of respondent, and said decision shall be published in the next issue of the Official Journal."

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Brey, Gompers, No. 13; Perkins and Stacy, No. 118.

The amendment offered by Delegate Brey was defeated.

Delegate Gompers in the chair.

Section 50. Amendment by Delegates Stevens, No. 2, Buffalo, N. Y., and Ford, No. 80, Danville.

Strike out 60 and insert 70, the last sentence to read: "He shall receive for his services the sum of $70.00 per week."

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Stevens, Gompers, No. 13; Benjamin, No. 396.

The amendment was adopted unanimously.

Section 54. Amendment by Delegate Hilfers.

Strike out $7.00 and insert $8.00.

The amendment was adopted.

Class B. Amendment by Delegate Wagener, No. 516, Wheeling, W. Va.

Amend to provide that Class B members who are over fifty years of age or who are suffering from chronic disease shall be entitled to $100 death benefit upon payment of 15 cents per capita tax.

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Koster, No. 507; Wagener, No. 516; Rhine, No. 90; and Brey, No. 97.

The amendment was withdrawn by Delegate Wagener after President Perkins had explained: "That the dues of those suffering from chronic diseases or those who are over fifty years of age remain at 30 cents. One-half of that is 15 cents. We are insuring everybody up to 70 years of age."

Agreement With Insurance Company.

Mr. Wright, representing the International Life and Trust Company, provided copies of the amended contract for the delegates. The proposed contract was read by the Clerk of the convention, Mr. Hopp, and Delegate Hilfers, Secretary of the Committee on Constitution. After a somewhat extended discussion some slight modifications of the contract were made, the amended copy shows in full in Friday's (24th) proceedings.

President Perkins: Isn't it true in our constitution we have limited the multiple insurance to $500? But if a member desires to take more than $500 he can do it individually?

Mr. Wright: If he is within the age specified. Suppose somebody elects to take one thousand, what dues will he pay? In all insurance companies we use $1,000 as a basis of calculation. I recall that your constitution provides for $500 benefits, and it would be necessary to adhere to that limit for the purpose of this contract. It was my error in placing one thousand in there instead of five hundred.

Someone has asked me if it would be possible to take additional insurance on the same terms and conditions without a medical examination. It is possible that a group policy might be worked out for those who take the maximum under this contract with the union, or those who take the minimum. (All reference to a policy of $1,000 was eliminated from the proposed contract.)

Delegate Gariepy asked for an explanation of the clause with regard to misstatement of age.

Mr. Wright: That is a legal requirement. The law provides that we shall make a rate, and there is only one basis for the calculation of the rate, and that is the age. It would not make much difference to this union because you are all paying the same rate, but for the purposes of my calculation I want the exact age, and for that reason we print it in here. If a man of forty gives his age as thirty-five it would naturally reduce the age of the group.

A delegate asked if a member could pay his insurance premium three months, six months or a year in advance instead of adding it to his dues each week.

President Perkins: That is a matter of detail for the International Union, and the answer is no. The International Union is not going to allow you a chance to pay your premium a year in advance of your dues; but you can pay your dues a year in advance and include the premium.

The question of group insurance for those desiring more than $500 was discussed by Mr. Wright, Delegate Rhine and others. In closing Mr. Wright said:

After taking the maximum of $500 you will have to make application direct to the company for an additional $500 or $1,000. If you make our application to your president and give him the date of your birth we will make up the group and then write to you direct. I will give you the number of the group and what it will be necessary to charge you. I will take a group of 100 people without medical examination.

President Perkins: At what age?

Mr. Wright: Any age. There is no insurance value past the age of 70. If you have one man at the age of 70 and your group age is 48 it would not make much difference with that group. We will take a group anywhere in any industry that is not hazardous and make a rate for them on any group of 100 or more.

Delegate Van Horn: Is it your recommendation to the Cigar Makers' International Union that they handle the total disability themselves?

Mr. Wright: It is.

Various questions connected with the proposed contract were discussed by Mr. Wright, President Perkins, Delegates Brey, Gariepy, Rhine, Asch, Skinner.

At 5:15 o'clock p. m. the convention was adjourned to meet at 9 o'clock a. m., Friday, August 24th.

Correction of minutes: Eighth day's proceedings, page 2, second column, amendment to Class B by Delegate Wagener should appear: "Insert non-beneficial members, 10 cents."

Delegate Emmert, No. 107, desired to be recorded as voting No on the report of the committee on Section 150, proceedings of 8th day.

ELEVENTH DAY—MORNING SESSION.

Chicago, Ill., August 24, 1923.

The convention was called to order at 9 o'clock A. M., Friday, August 24th, by President Perkins.

Absentees—John Fitzpatrick, No. 206; Warren Taylor, No. 429.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

Delegate Hilfers, Secretary of the Committee, reported as follows:

Sections 66, 67, 68. No change.

Section 69. Amendment by committee.

"A member who is not entitled to sick benefits shall not be suspended for non-payment of dues, etc., for a period of three months, but, upon resuming work, shall pay ten per cent of his wages on all arrearages until he has established himself within the constitutional limit."

The report of the committee was adopted.

Section 70. No change.

Section 71. Amendment by the committee to strike out 40 and insert 25.

Delegate Gompers presiding.

The question was discussed by Delegates Brey, No. 97; Van Horn, No. 14; Asch, No. 251; Stack, No. 202; Good, No. 165; Gariepy, No. 58; Stacy, No. 118.

Delegate Asch moved to amend the section by striking out 30 and inserting 20.

The question was discussed by Delegates Braham, No. 87; Rhine, No. 90.

The amendment submitted by the committee was adopted by a vote of 138 to 29.

President Perkins presiding.

The convention clerk, Mr. Hopp, read a receipt from Secretary Olander, of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, for $54.45 donated by the delegates to the striking workers at Streator, Ill.

The chairman announced that a representative of the insurance company was present and it would be advisable to take up the sections dealing with the death and disability benefits, action upon which had been deferred, until he was present.

Secretary Hilfers announced that the committee had a number of amendments that had been submitted to these various sections and they would be read at the proper time. He proceeded with the report as follows:

Section 140-a. Amendment by committee.

Amend the section further to read:

"Sec. 140-a. Should any member by the loss of one or both hands or by becoming totally and permanently blind become wholly and permanently incapacitated from performing any manual labor, the amounts above provided for in case of such member's death (excepting the $100.00 funeral or cremation expenses) shall be paid to such member, and upon the death of such member no death benefit shall be paid except the $100.00 withheld for funeral or cremation expenses."

"In all cases of total disability where the member totally disabled has received the amount due, the International Union shall continue to pay the insurance on such member, obtain a release of all claims on such, and at the death of such totally disabled member the amount due on his death from the insurance company shall revert to the International Union."

President Perkins: At the time of adjournment last evening, Delegate Van Horn moved to strike out the disability clause in the contract of the insurance company. The committee's report now has a direct bearing upon the disability clause. The committee and the International Executive Board are in favor of striking out the disability section in the amended contract which was submitted yesterday by the insurance company. I think we ought to decide first whether we want the disability benefit proposed by the insurance company or whether we are to assume it ourselves. To get an expression from the convention, let us vote on the motion, as an indication of what we want, whether we are to continue the disability benefit feature as indicated by your committee or take the one in the contract.

Delegate Van Horn moved to strike out the disability clause in the contract with the insurance company. The motion was adopted.

Discussion on the report of the committee on Section 140-A was participated in by Delegates Fales, No. 462; Sullivan, No. 290; Riefkin, No. 129; Rhine, No. 90; Delegate Gompers, Chairman VanHorn and Secretary Hilfers.

Replying to questions, President Perkins said: When a Disability member dies, the International Union becomes the beneficiary. We pay the benefits of the disability member but we continue to pay the premium in order to get back part of this money from the insurance company. When the member dies we draw from the insurance company the full $400, or $300, whatever the amount is. That will go into the reserve fund. The International will pay the disability, whatever he is entitled to; the insurance company will not do that. Then we will continue to pay the insurance company the premium, so that when the member dies the International Union draws from the insurance company the amount of death benefit he is entitled to, except the $100 which is retained until his death to pay his funeral or cremation expenses.

Delegate Hilfers: If the member is entitled to $500 and he is totally disabled, he can apply for the total disability benefits and the International Union will pay him the amount he is insured for, except the $100 which will be retained until his death for funeral expenses. The International will continue to pay the premium on his insurance. When he dies all the International will pay out of his insurance will be the funeral expenses. The balance will go into the International treasury. Naturally, the International President, or, through him, the local union, or whoever the disability benefit is paid to, will have to sign a release, which will place in the hands of the International Union the collection of the benefit which is due on his death. In that way the International Union is reimbursed for the payment of that money.

A member who is now entitled to $500 death benefit and only takes the $100 that is compulsory, if he becomes totally disabled, is not entitled to any disability benefit and only the $100 funeral benefit.

Delegate Sullivan: If a member has $300 insurance, what amount will be paid him if he becomes totally and permanently disabled?

Chairman VanHorn: Two hundred dollars.

President Perkins: We hold in the fund $100. He would get the $200 immediately. We would continue to pay the premium on this disability member and when he dies the International would be the beneficiary; we would draw from the insurance company then the amount he was entitled to. As a rule, he does not live in extreme cases over ten years, and Mr. Wright says three years, according to his investigation.

Chairman VanHorn: Remember that the International Union is carrying the disability. The report of the committee on Section 140-A was adopted unanimously.

President Perkins: We will now take up the contract with the insurance company, beginning with the first paragraph.

The first part of the contract was read.

Delegate Garipey called attention to the fact that the contract provided for the signatures of the "President and Secretary of the Union," although the Union had no secretary. The chairman announced that the President now acts as secretary, but it would be necessary to designate some other officer for the purpose of executing the contract.

Delegate Garipey moved that the words "Vice-President" be substituted for "Secretary" wherever the latter appears in the contract. The motion was adopted.

Exhibit B was read by the clerk.

Mr. Wright: I doubt the advisability of making an annual payment the first time. In order to help you get started, if you make one quarterly payment the chances are that you could make a further quarterly payment. The law is mandatory in this matter of 3½% charge. The balance goes into the surplus. I give that back to you in participation, but it is good business judgment to pay a premium in advance. It is also good judgment for you in your union to pay your dues in advance. If you do that on this $900,000 dues you pay here in a year and you should earn 6% on it you would have all the money necessary to conduct this business with. That would amount to $54,000 a year. It is business judgment and it is for you to do.

To show you that we want to help you get started the first year, if you cannot raise the other three quarterly payments at the end of ninety days—possibly you can do it in six months and save your interest charges on the last six months. In order to help you in that respect we shall confine ourselves to the figure that is mandatory, $3\frac{1}{2}\%$ instead of six.

The section under consideration was discussed by Delegates Stevens, Brey and Gompers.

The section beginning "Premiums" was amended by striking out "fifteenth" and leaving that space blank to be filled in.

The Disability Benefit Section was eliminated.

Termination of Insurance. This section was discussed by Delegates Good, Knobel, Stack and Van Horn.

The section following this under the caption "Premiums Where Payable" was eliminated, as the matter had been provided for in another section.

Change of Beneficiary. This section was discussed by Delegates Martinez, Traeger, Dundon and Mr. Wright.

President Perkins suggested striking out the section in the contract and inserting in lieu thereof that "Change of beneficiary shall be made in compliance with the laws of the International Union of America."

This suggestion was adopted.

The section under the caption "Installation Options" was eliminated from the contract, after a discussion by Delegates Gariepy, Knobel and Van Horn.

The sections under the captions "Exhibit BB" and "General Provisions" were also eliminated.

Delegate VanHorn, No. 14: I move that the contract as amended by this convention be now approved by the convention. (Seconded and adopted unanimously.)

Delegate Riefkin moved that a number of copies sufficient to supply the entire membership be printed.

President Perkins announced that the amended copy would be printed in the daily proceedings and would go to the membership in the finished proceedings.

AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE INTERNATIONAL LIFE & TRUST COMPANY AND THE CIGAR MAKERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION OF AMERICA.

This AGREEMENT made this day of A. D. 1923, in two parts by and between the International Life & Trust Company, an Illinois corporation with its principal place of business in the City of Moline, County of Rock Island, State of Illinois, party of the first part, and for brevity hereinafter referred to as the Company, and:

The Cigar Makers' International Union of America, a volunteer association with its headquarters in the City of Chicago, County of Cook, State of Illinois, party of the second part, and for brevity hereinafter referred to as the Union.

WITNESSETH: That WHEREAS, the party of the first part is agreeable to granting an insurance service to the party of the second part for its benefit as Trustee upon the lives of the membership of the said party of the second part, as well as those who may become members in the future upon the same terms and conditions as to the present members, and;

WHEREAS, the party of the second part desires to place with the party of the first part, insurance upon the lives of its members, as well as upon the lives of the future members upon the same terms and conditions as its old members received;

NOW, THEREFORE, THIS AGREEMENT WITNESSETH:

(1) The Company agrees on its part to issue to the Union a Group Policy covering its entire membership in the amount of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) of insurance upon the life of each member and not to exceed Five Hundred Dollars ($500.00) of insurance upon the life of any member without Medical Examination. The Policy Contract is hereto attached and made a part of this Agreement and marked "Exhibit A."

(2) The plan of insurance is to be a Group Annual Renewable Term Policy based upon American Experience Table of Mortality Three and One-half per cent ($3\frac{1}{2}\%$) Illinois Standard of Valuation.

(3) The sheet hereto attached showing quarterly, semi-annual and annual rates for each age group from Fifteen (15) to Seventy (70) years per One Hundred Dollars (\$100.00) insurance, marked "Exhibit B," is made a part of the contract, and shall constitute the consideration, with this exception: that in the event the actual current mortality shall exceed one hundred per cent (100%) of the American Experience Table of Mortality, three and one-half per cent ($3\frac{1}{2}\%$), it is mutually agreed between the parties hereto that the liability of the Company shall cease at One Hundred per cent (100%) current mortality, as heretofore stated; and the Union agrees and binds itself to accept such liability in excess of One Hundred per cent (100%) mortality, and to pay all claims arising during any current year after the said Company has paid out One Hundred per cent mortality on the whole group insured under this contract. With this exception the Company, on its part, agrees that this contract shall be irrevocable. However, granting to the Union the right and privilege to convert the plan of insurance hereunder to that known as the whole life plan, based upon the American Experience Table of Mortality, Three and One-Half Per Cent ($3\frac{1}{2}\%$) Illinois Standard of Valuation, first year term insurance.

(4) The Company shall name a Chicago Bank as Depository to receive payments or premium from the Union for its convenience. The said payments shall be paid quarterly, semi-annually or annually, in advance.

(5) This contract will become effective at the time the same shall be executed by the President and Secretary of the Company, and the President and First Vice President of the Union, and the payment of the premium as heretofore stated.

(6) The Union on its part agrees to all of the foregoing and in addition thereto to supply the Company with the name, address, and date of birth of each member of the Union as of the date of the execution of this agreement and further to report to the Company on the first day of each month thereafter, the name, address, and date of birth of each new member admitted into the Union of the previous month in order that Certificate may be made up to cover the said new members.

(7) It is further mutually agreed between the Company and the Union that the Company will issue Group Insurance on new members on the first day of each month after the first Group Policy is issued.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have hereunto set their hands and seals the day of EXHIBIT A.

THE INTERNATIONAL LIFE & TRUST COMPANY OF ILLINOIS, MOLINE, ILLINOIS. GROUP LIFE INSURANCE POLICY FORM. Participating.
THE INTERNATIONAL LIFE & TRUST

COMPANY OF ILLINOIS, MOLINE, ILLINOIS, hereby insures the lives of those members of the Cigar Makers' International Union (hereinafter referred to as the Union), in consideration of the covenants hereinafter mentioned, agrees to pay to the CIGAR MAKERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION OF AMERICA, whose central office is in CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, the sum of ONE HUNDRED ($100.00) DOLLARS not to exceed a maximum of FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS, as Trustee for its members who are insured under this contract.

This insurance is granted in consideration of the payment by the Union to the Company on the execution of this Contract, of a quarterly premium in advance for the group of lives insured hereunder whose names appear on the schedule certified to by the International President of the Union, and is issued in consideration of the application hereof by the CIGAR MAKERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION OF AMERICA, a copy of which is attached hereto and made a part hereof, and the payment in advance of a quarterly premium of on each member insured for the sum of ONE HUNDRED ($100.00) DOLLARS.

The initial amount of insurance to each member between ages 15 to 70 inclusive shall be compulsory in the sum of ONE HUNDRED ($100.00) DOLLARS on each life.

It is understood and agreed, however, that the Union has the right to allow any of its members who are in good standing to purchase additional insurance in multiples of ONE HUNDRED ($100.00) DOLLARS up to FIVE HUNDRED ($500.00) DOLLARS so that the entire insurance on each member's life shall not exceed FIVE HUNDRED ($500.00) DOLLARS. Any member who applies and pays his premium and whose application is accepted and approved by the International President of the CIGAR MAKERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION OF AMERICA is eligible, subject to the regulations of the Union.

Contract.

This policy together with the application therefor shall constitute the entire contract between the parties hereto. All statements made in the application for this Policy shall in the absence of fraud be deemed representations and not warranties and no such statements shall void this Policy or be used as a defense to a claim thereunder unless they are contained in the written application, a copy of which is endorsed upon or attached to this Policy when issued. No modification of this contract shall be valid unless endorsed hereon and signed by the President, Vice-President or Secretary of the Company.

PREMIUMS: The premiums payable by the Union shall be determined by the total amount of insurance upon the members of the Union included within the terms hereof, according to the schedule of Rates, Formula and Provisions for Premium Computation herein contained. Quarterly premiums in advance computed by the Company upon the basis aforesaid shall be payable on or before the fifteenth day of the month.

GRACE: A grace period of thirty-one (31) days reckoned from the day any premium is payable shall be granted for the payment of each premium after the first, during which time the insurance herein provided for shall remain in force; providing, however, that during any period of grace the Union shall pay to the Company all premiums due received by the Union on account of the insurance contemplated hereby.

DATE EFFECTIVE: This contract shall be effective from noon, Central Standard Time 1923, on all the lives of the members whose names appear on the schedule furnished by the International President of the Union to the Insurance Company and signed by him, and quarterly periods shall be computed from that date.

MEMBERS COVERED: This contract, shall, during its continuance embrace all members of the Union included in the Schedule according to the terms thereof.

TERMINATION OF INSURANCE: The liability of the Company in respect to the insurance of any member included in the Schedule shall end when such member terminates membership in the Union, or is suspended from benefits or membership or expelled; in any case of suspension, such liability shall revive if and when the member shall be reinstated.

PREMIUM COMPUTATIONS: Statement of premiums computed by the Company shall be rendered to the Union quarterly as of the first day of each quarter, taking into account changes in ages and in the coverage, by reason of additions, terminations, suspensions and increases, if any, which have been reported to the Company prior thereto.

MODIFICATIONS: This contract cannot be varied or altered or its conditions waived or extended in any respect except by the written agreement of the Company, witnessed by the signature of its President or one of its Vice-Presidents and its Secretary.

Control of Benefits.

The Insured Members hereunder are entitled to receive the benefits, exercise the rights and enjoy the privileges conferred upon them by this Policy in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Union pertaining thereto and the Company shall be governed in the fulfillment of the terms of this Policy by the requests, orders and instructions of the Cigar Makers' International Union.

Incontestability.

All insurance hereunder is free from conditions and restrictions as to residence, travel and place of death from the date it becomes effective, except as herein provided, and shall be incontestable for the amount due after one year except for non-payment of premiums; but in case the age of the Insured Member shall have been misstated the amount in force shall be such as the premiums actually paid would have purchased at the true age of such Insured Member. If within one year from the date the Insured Member shall die in consequence of violation of law or an aerial voyage or shall, whether sane or insane, die by his own hand, the amount payable under such Certificate shall be limited to the amount of premiums actually paid thereon.

Valuation.

The reserve shall be calculated according to the American Experience Table of Mortality with interest at the rate of $3\frac{1}{4}\%$ per annum.

Change of Beneficiary.

Change of beneficiary shall be made whenever desired in compliance with the laws of the International Union.

General Provisions.

The Union may continue the insurance under this contract for successive quarterly periods, the premium therefor to be paid quarterly in advance on or before the day of each calendar month.

This Contract of insurance is made with the Union as Trustee for the member and not with any individual member thereof. The Company assumes no liability other than specifically stated herein.

This Contract may be renewed from year to year at the option of the said second party, by paying the quarterly premium for the then attained age of the insured as per schedule of rates herewith attached.

The Union agrees to remit the quarterly premiums for its membership with a schedule showing the full name and age of the member insured.

This policy will be automatically renewed annually, upon due payment of premiums or installments thereof in consideration of which the Union agrees and by acceptance of this contract, binds itself to give the company one month's written notice that it does not desire an automatic annual renewal thereof.

INSURED MEMBERS: After 1923, the Union shall furnish to the Company lists containing the name and date of birth of all new members who have been added for insurance, with the dates of their admission and acceptance, and also lists showing those insured members who shall have defaulted in payment of premiums, retired or been expelled or suspended from benefits or membership, with the exact date thereof, together with such other data as the Company may deem necessary to determine the amount of insurance hereunder and the amount of premiums payable in respect thereto.

The Company shall have the right once a year to inspect the records and books of the Union with reference to insurance only, so as to determine the amount of insurance hereunder and to compute the premiums thereon.

PLACE OF CONTRACT: This contract is made and delivered and is to be performed by the Company in Moline, Ill., and payment of all premiums herein provided for is to be made to and received by the Company, at a bank in Chicago designated by the Company; and this contract shall in all respects be governed by, performed and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of Illinois.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the Company has, by its President and Secretary, and under its seal executed this policy at its Executive Office this day A. D. 19.....
THE INTERNATIONAL LIFE & TRUST COMPANY.

ATTEST:

..... Secretary.

The Committee on Constitution offered the following resolution:

RESOLUTION NO. 24.

Submitted by Committee on Constitution.

Whereas, The Twenty-fourth Convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America has approved the group insurance plan of the International Life & Trust Company; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the International President and Vice-President be authorized to sign this contract for the Cigar Makers' International Union of America when the plan is ratified by the referendum.

The resolution was adopted by unanimous vote.

Delegate Good moved that the principal questions and answers asked and answered during the discussion be printed in the proceedings. Seconded and carried.

Delegate Brey, No. 97: You have already provided that a member who has $500 death benefit shall get $400 if he becomes totally disabled. You do not pay him the $100, but at his death you will give the $100 in addition to the $400. Under this paragraph you are taking even that $100 from him.

Chairman VanHorn: What do you do now with the man who does not carry death benefit under the old law? He does not get anything.

President Perkins: Under this provision the International Union carries his insurance. The International pays the premium to the company and when the member dies the amount due, less the $100 which goes to bury him, reverts to the International Union; in other words, we are the beneficiary. We pay the disability benefit immediately the member becomes totally incapacitated. The constitution afterwards provides that if we carry the insurance it shall be paid to the International.

Delegate Brey asked if it was the custom of the officials to submit amendments to the constitution to an attorney for his opinion. The chairman answered that it was the custom to submit amendments of such importance as the death benefit proposition.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON CONSTITUTION.

Section 139. Further amendment by Committee.

Add after the words "five hundred," at the end of second paragraph of committee's new Section 139, as previously acted on, an additional section, as follows:

"Applicants for additional insurance shall make such application within ninety days after this provision takes effect. No member must make such application within ninety days of application."

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Brey, No. 97; Riefkin, No. 129; Delegate Stack, No. 202; Gompers, No. 13; and Van Horn, No. 14.

Delegate Gompers offered as an amendment that "ninety days" be stricken out of the committee's amendment and "six months" inserted. Adopted unanimously.

Delegate Skinner offered as a further amendment the provision that shall members fail to avail themselves of the six months' provision they shall be required to show satisfactory evidence of insurability, but in no case shall this provision apply to members over forty years of age.

The amendment was seconded by Delegate Gompers.

At 12 o'clock noon the convention was adjourned to reconvene at 1:30 p. m. of the same day.

ELEVENTH DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 1:30 o'clock P. M., Friday, August 24th, by President Perkins.

Report of Committee on Constitution.

President Perkins announced that the report of the committee to Section 139 was pending; also an amendment submitted by Delegate Skinner.

The question was discussed by Delegates Brey, No. 97; Stack, No. 202; Rhine, No. 90; Hilfers, No. 138, and Gompers, No. 13.

President Perkins: If the committee's proposition is adopted any member, even a newly initiated member, the minute he joins, who elects to take only $100, may apply for an additional two, three or four hundred, but he must do so within six months. The amendment provides that this privilege shall apply only to those who are under forty years of age. Any present member or any body who becomes a member cannot exercise this option unless he is under forty years of age.

Delegate Gompers: How would it do to make the average age as set by the International Union now the limit, forty-eight years?

Revised amendment by the Committee, including Delegate Gompers' amendment.

"Applicants for additional insurance who do not make application within six months after this provision takes effect shall be required to furnish evidence of insurability. This provision shall apply as well to new members."

The amendment of the committee was adopted.

Section 145. Additional amendment by committee.

Insert after "International Office" the words "together with a death certificate signed by the proper authorities. This certificate to be furnished by the beneficiary or beneficiaries."

The report of the committee was adopted.

Amendment submitted by Delegate Gompers:

Add after the committee's amendment: "Persons who were members of the C. M. I. U. of A. and who have become disassociated therefrom for any cause, if again becoming members, shall not be permitted to increase the death benefit insurance above the amount to which they would have been entitled at the time of their separation from the C. M. I. U. of A."

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Rhine, Good, Brey, Van Horn and Gompers.

The amendment submitted by Delegate Gompers was adopted.

Section 140-C. Amendment by Delegate Traeger, No. 149.

Strike out after the word "member," line 15 up to the word "such," line 22, and insert the following:

"If the one to whom such benefits shall be paid by designation makes no claim within one year next after the death of such member, then the money is to be paid to the nearest of kin." The balance of the section to remain unchanged.

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Traeger, Van Horn and Brey.

The amendment offered by Delegate Traeger was defeated.

Section 58. Amendment by committee.

By adding in line 4, after the word "union," "and to pay the premiums on the group insurance policy."

Also amend by adding a new paragraph to read:

"The International President shall be bonded to the amount of $20,000, the premium to be paid by the International Union."

Chairman VanHorn: The amendment is made necessary by a statement made by Mr. Wright yesterday. He was asked if the local unions could not send the premium direct to the insurance company. His answer was: "No, because it will cause trouble and might invalidate the policy."

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Section 50. Amendment by committee.

Amend by inserting in third line from last, after the word "purpose," the following:

"The International President, with the assistance of the International Executive Board, shall be and is hereby authorized to provide rules and regulations and administer the details involved in the contract made with the International Life & Trust Company. Such authority herein given carries no right to change or alter in any way the contract as adopted."

The report of the committee was adopted.

Section 73. Amendment by committee.

Amend by striking out first thirteen lines, up to and including "sixteen weeks," and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Any member, including beneficiary retired members, owing dues or assessments for five weeks or more stands suspended from benefits. Members out of employment, except beneficiary retired members, shall be allowed ten weeks."

The report of the committee was adopted.

Sections 23 and 140-e.

Secretary Hilfers: Sections 23 and 140-e must be changed to conform to this amendment. I move that the two sections be changed to conform to the amendment just adopted. (Seconded and carried.)

Section 113. Amendment by Delegate Bartels.

Amend section by inserting in last line, after the word "union," the words "and any union which refuses cards of the C. M. I. U. of A., except such local union is engaged in an approved strike or lockout, shall be subject to suspension."

The proposed amendment was discussed by Delegates Bartels, No. 97; Riefkin, No. 129; Martin, No. 27, and Gonzales (Elias), No. 336.

The amendment was adopted, 117 delegates voting in the affirmative and 34 in the negative.

Delegate Rhine asked permission to re-submit an amendment to Section 79 which had been defeated when introduced at a former session. Objection was offered to again considering the amendment and permission was refused Delegate Rhine to introduce it.

Section 139. Amendment by Delegate Garipey, No. 58.

Amend second paragraph to read: "However, any member of the International Union has a right to purchase additional insurance in multiples of two hundred at five cents a week additional dues for each one hundred dollars." The remainder of the section to read as amended by the committee.

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Garipey, Hilfers and Traeger.

The amendment was defeated.

Section 164. (Amended by previous action.)

President Perkins: The only change made in Section 164 is this: That if a charter exists in a city and another charter is granted they must have the same bill of prices. It has been provided that where one or more charters exist and the conditions under which the second or third charters were granted have been removed, that the International President may cause an investigation, and if, in his judgment, there are too many unions in that city, after a referendum vote is taken, he is empowered to withdraw the charter of the local that refuses to accept the vote of the majority, subject to appeal.

Delegate Brey: Would you feel you had the authority, as President, to initiate a referendum in any city where more than one charter exists, on the question of amalgamation?

President Perkins: On a request if one union refuses to comply with the local referendum vote and the conditions under which that union got its charter having been removed and there is no reason why there should be more than one charter in that city, under those circumstances the president may make an investigation and withdraw one of those characters subject to an appeal.

Delegate Gompers: I am going to object to the term that has been used so much, "closed shop." On the floor of this convention I heard a number of delegates refer to the union shop as the closed shop, when, as a matter of fact, under our laws a closed shop is a non-union shop. The enemies of our movement have coined the phrase "closed shop" for what we know as the union shop. I don't think we ought to borrow and accept the language of our enemies to express our own views.

Section 195.

Questions were asked the chairman with regard to decisions made under this section. Delegates Brey and Bartel asked for information. President Perkins said:

The present constitution gives any member of the International Union the right to work eight hours per day; it gives the union manufacturers the right to insist that you work eight hours per day. It in no wise gives the local union the right to limit the hours of labor to five days. There is a vast difference between a five-day week and eight hours per day. There is nothing in the constitution now that gives the local unions the right to create a five-day week under the present law.

The committee recommended that Section 219 be amended by providing the constitution shall take effect on January 1st, that all amendments and resolutions shall be submitted not later than November 15th following the convention, and that voting in local unions and resolutions shall commence November 15th and end on December 15th. The language of the section to remain unchanged with these amendments in dates.

The recommendation of the committee adopted.

Chairman VanHorn: I move the adoption of the constitution as amended and revised.

The motion was adopted by unanimous vote.

Report of Committee on Resolutions.

Chairman Gompers: There has been one resolution referred to the committee upon which we are ready to report, but before submitting that report I am desirous of offering a motion which I think will find commendation by the delegates.

Delegate Gompers submitted the following:

Resolution No. 25.

RESOLVED, That the President, with the Executive Board, be requested to formulate an amnesty resolution for persons who have been punished in any form for certain specified offenses; the resolution so formulated shall be submitted to a referendum of the membership of the Cigar Makers' International Union.

The resolution was adopted by unanimous vote.

Resolution No. 26.

WHEREAS, The Russian Soviet Government, for a period of almost six years, has withstood all attacks launched against it not only by enemies within its own boundaries, but also from outside hostile governments, thereby demonstrating that it is a stable organization and has the support of the Russian people; and

WHEREAS, Many European and other governments have established diplomatic and commercial relations with the Russian Government that have proven profitable to all such countries and are also enabling the Russian people to secure access to the foodstuffs, medicines, machinery, and other commodities and supplies so vitally needed in their great work of reconstruction; and

WHEREAS, The present administration at Washington, by thus far failing to give recognition to Soviet Russia, has gravely injured that country as well as our own; and

WHEREAS, Many labor unions, in common with liberal minded people generally, such as Senators LaFollette, Borah, Wheeler, Brookhart, Shipstead, and Johnson, are demanding that this belated recognition be granted Russia; Therefore, Be It

RESOLVED, That we, the Cigarmakers' International Union of America, in the name of solidarity with the first Workers' Republic, join this progressive movement, and call upon the American Federation of Labor to extend all efforts in order that the United States Government shall give full and complete recognition to Soviet Russia.

Submitted by the delegates of Local Union 97, Boston, and J. S. Owen, No. 133; W. Taylor, No. 429; T. Burns, No. 113; Frank Brown, No. 357; E. J. Menard, No. 179; Sam Rieffkin, No. 129; Max Cueta, No. 474; Jack Melhado, No. 144; Manuel Marrero, No. 337; Frank Bartholomew, No. 303; Giuseppe P. Bianco, No. 462; F. Chillura, No. 464; C. Kemmerer, No. 232; L. Fales, No. 462; Albert S. Horne, No. 171; Manuel De Diego, No. 500; J. Rhine, No. 90.

The committee recommended nonconcurrency in Resolution No. 26.

Delegate Gompers moved the adoption of the recommendation of the committee. The motion was seconded by several delegates.

Delegate Gonzales (Elias), Tampa, Fla.: Delegates of Union No. 336 want to go on record that they did not sign that document.

The question was discussed by Delegates Burns, No. 113; Brey, No. 97; Gompers, No. 13, and Blockland, No. 97.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

When the hour for adjournment had been almost reached for Friday p. m. session, the chairman asked the pleasure of the delegates with regard to remaining in continuous session until the work was completed or adjourning until Saturday.

A decision was reached that the convention would remain in session until the work was completed, and that the delegates would receive the compensation they would be entitled to receive for Saturday if they had performed the work on that day instead of night session.

Report on Mileage.

Your Committee on Ways and Means, begs to report that we have gone over very carefully the itemized accounts of delegates for railroad fare and per diem to and from the convention and recommend the list herewith submitted subject to changes and correction at the International office for adoption.

We, your Committee on Ways and Means, suggest that the President be authorized to pay the clerks of this convention such compensation as in his judgment is fair for their work during this convention, as well as such other expenses as their position may have entailed, also all other expense incidental with this convention.

Convention City.

The chairman asked for nominations for the next convention city, and the following cities were placed in nomination:

Pueblo, Colo.; Boston, Mass.; New York City; Tampa, Fla.; New Haven, Conn.; Providence, R. I.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Grand Rapids, Mich.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Madison, Wis.; Peoria, Ill.

President Perkins: Each delegate will vote for one city. The city that receives the greatest number of votes will be the one selected. If, for any reason, it develops that we cannot hold the convention in that city, your Executive Board or the popular vote may select one of the four receiving the next greatest vote.

Ballots were prepared, the vote was taken in the usual way, and the tellers later announced the following result:

Boston, 73 votes; Pueblo, 11; New York City, 21; Tampa, 2; New Haven, 21; Providence, 1; Grand Rapids, 10; Milwaukee, 19; Madison, 3; Philadelphia, 19; Jacksonville, 3; Peoria, 6.

Boston was announced as the next convention city, and Milwaukee, Wis.; New Haven, New York and Philadelphia as the four cities receiving the next greatest number of votes.

President Perkins: Every motion, every amendment, everything presented to the convention has been considered. Every delegate who has asked for the privilege of the floor has had an opportunity to be heard.

On the opening day of this convention I said that the organized cigar makers as well as the unorganized expected a ray of hope to emanate from this convention. By your action here in the last two weeks you have supplied that ray of hope, that encouragement that shall awaken the hopes and rekindle the spirit of not only the organized, but the unorganized.

There has seldom been a convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union where I have been so thoroughly in accord with the actions taken by the convention. There has never been a convention held before in my time where a greater vision and courage have been displayed than in this convention. I compliment you upon the manly, straightforward, determined actions you have taken in this convention.

But your work has not been completed. It seems to me that all those who believe in the majority rule are obligated to go out of this convention and take with them the spirit and the message, in so far as any action taken relates to the economics and to the real things that come within the jurisdiction and the sphere of trade union activity. It is a moral obligation upon us all, whether we individually believe in the actions taken or not, to go out of this convention and carry to our constituents, in the same spirit in which these things have been done, the actions taken here and advocate the adoption by the referendum vote of the things that we have so successfully accomplished in this convention.

Let the spirit of fraternal good will permeate your thoughts, your hearts and your whole being. Let the spirit of good will and a more kindly fraternal, trade-union spirit take the place of antagonism and hatred insofar as the constructive trade-union movement is concerned; let that feeling find lodgment in your hearts and there find expression among your constituents when you return home; let that spirit of good will take the place of hatred wherever it exists insofar as our feelings may relate to our great movement.

This is the most historical convention ever held in the life of the Cigar Makers' International Union. You have done here things that should have been done long ago. I know that you have taken action that tore at your heart strings. I know that you have had in mind the best interests of those who are working at our industry for a livelihood rather than holding to traditions which have been, in many instances, stumbling blocks and restrictions in a way of more complete organization in our industry.

And I feel that if you will go home and among your constituents see to it that the actions taken here in this convention are ratified you will have further performed a duty to those now in the organization and those we expect to bring in—and will bring in because of the action taken here—and you will have completed and rounded out in full a splendid performance, for which I thank you most heartily.

I have no feeling, you should have no feeling whatsoever in any case or in any action that may have been taken of a political, religious or racial nature. You have a right to do as you pleased elsewhere on those questions; you have a right to do that in the proper place when you return to your homes, but you who are members of the Cigar Makers' International Union owe allegiance to that organization so far as the material and fundamental things are concerned that relate to the constructive trade union movement.

You have a perfect right, it is your privilege, to do as you please insofar as political action and matters not clearly within the sphere and jurisdiction of the trade union movement are concerned; there is a time and place where these things can be done, and for that reason and for the best interests of those you represent these things of a political nature should be transacted in the places where you have an opportunity to exercise your rights in anything outside of the constructive trade union movement. There they should be done and not in the trade union meeting.

I have refrained, in accordance with and serving the purpose that I have in mind, from bringing anything before this convention that in any way dealt with matters and things outside of the trade union movement. I did so because I want harmony to prevail in the Cigar Makers' International Union. I want you to go out and bring into the fold of the International Union all the men and women who are wage earners in the industry. If you bring them in, if they come in, then they have the right to be delegates, to attend meetings of your local unions, and if they differ in any way with the views held by myself then can come to the convention and do here the things they think should be done. I welcome them first into your local unions and then into this convention, and we shall then have to subordinate our thoughts and actions to theirs if obtained by majority vote.

I say that for this reason: There is today an alleged dual organization in the cigar industry. They call it an organization. They have circularized our local unions. They have sent circulars and petitions to many of our local unions. The statements contained in those circulars are not true. They have circularized many of our local unions, especially in New York, and many of our active members there, and they have in most cases refused to have anything to do with them. They have refused to act with those representing the dual and hostile organization. They have said to them: "The doors of the International Union are open. Come into the International Union and we will then recognize you, we will then treat with you." If that statement isn't true, I ask the delegates from New York or elsewhere to correct me.

I am proud of the action taken here in this convention. I feel that it has removed many of the obstacles that stood in the way of organization; I am sure that if the action taken here is ratified by the popular vote the rapid growth and development of the International Union will follow. It is my firm belief that any action taken here in this convention and ratified by the popular vote will not hurt a single member of the Cigar Makers' International Union or take from him any accrued rights in so far as the payment of benefits including death benefits is concerned, or any other accrued rights or advantages.

There is an opportunity right today for every good hand worker and every mould worker to obtain employment. As a matter of fact, there is a scarcity of hand workmen in our trade today, so that you are not going to legislate yourselves out of a job; no matter what may happen, hand workmen are assured of an opportunity to work at their trade as long as they live. I know of one instance where a manufacturer recently tried to get fifty hand workers and he could not get them.

Go back home and do the things that should be done and I am sure the International Union will grow and prosper. In any event, the International Union cannot be destroyed. The trade union movement was born of necessity. It was not patented by any single man or woman. Necessity forced us to join issue with our fellow workers; that necessity is just as strong today as it ever was, and stronger, so that the necessity that brought us into organization will keep our organization alive. No one can destroy the trade union movement; necessity will keep it alive.

I wish you God-speed and a safe return to your homes. Go back and finish the job—it can be done, it must be done. I now declare the 24th convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union adjourned sine die.

F. G. HOPP, Clerk.

All Rights Protected

Everything to gain! The rights of all members are protected through the proposed amendments adopted at the Chicago Convention. There will always be jobs for hand workers. Your death benefit is protected. Your chance for steady employment is enhanced one hundred per cent. Shops can be reclaimed and the union label made a real force. The organization will go forward. The union will grow under healthy and normal conditions. Wages will be increased, shop conditions improved. Premiums on death benefits will grow less. Support the amendments and you have nothing to lose.

In this issue we print all of the proposed amendments to the constitution with voting number opposite each. All members will thus be able to read, study, and digest all amendments.

The official ballot will contain all amendments with voting number opposite each, and will be forwarded to all local unions soon. With the official voting blank we shall send a galley proof of the new constitution as it will read when approved. This will give all members an opportunity to learn just what the amendments are and just how the new constitution will read when approved.

The voting commences November 15 and ends December 15. In the meantime each local union at each meeting will be able to discuss the amendments and be ready to vote understandingly when the official voting time is reached.

The question before us for action is not what we may personally think or selfishly consider should be done.

Round Out the Constitution. It is one of necessity. In the President's Report to the Chicago Convention, which was published in full in the September issue of the Journal, your attention was called to evolution in the industry and to the absolute necessity of meeting this evolution with up-to-date, adequate, and effective changes in our constitution. The delegates to the convention saw the necessity. They adopted the necessary changes which will be submitted for your approval.

Members are requested to refresh their minds by reading what the President had to say in his address on pages 17, 18, 19, 20 and 21 of the September Journal. On the pages referred to the evolution of the industry is traced from 1861 down to the present time. Particular attention is called to the restrictive laws of our constitution and the growing use of improved methods of manufacturing cigars, and a thorough analysis given of the methods of production, the number of people employed in the industry, and particularly as to how they are employed. It shows that of the total number of people, 90,180, making cigars 38,927 are men and 51,253 are women. It shows that out of the total number of those making cigars only 13,305 are hand workers, that 29,323 are mold workers, and 47,552 are bunch breakers and rollers—team workers.

The report also shows that hand work, the original way of making cigars, is steadily decreasing. At the time of the Baltimore Convention in 1912 there were 21,030 hand workers. At the Cleveland Convention 1920 the reports from local unions showed that this number had decreased to 17,346 hand workers, and, as stated, to 13,305 at present. The reports also showed that the number of trust and chain shops was steadily increasing and that the small shops were decreasing.

In view of the figures here quoted, which are amplified in the address published in the September Journal, showing the real condition in the industry, the time has come when we must take note of the facts and use all helpful methods in the interests of our organization and the wage earners employed therein.

Attention was also directed to the subject and the statement made that a trade union can not grow and prosper with its doors of ingress barred with restrictive laws. All must realize that our organization has outgrown its present restrictive laws and that it needs up-to-date laws consistent with changing conditions.

The facts show the small union shops are decreasing and that the trade is centralizing into large shops, chain shops, chain stores, and trusts. The statement was made and is here repeated, "Remove restrictions, including those surrounding the use of the union label, in the constitution and start out with fresh determination and renewed courage and faith in and loyalty to the union and the trade can be brought back into those small towns that have been made barren of union shops, and the trade reclaimed from the big non-union shops which have heretofore unmolested enjoyed all the methods of improved production."

Amendments were offered to our death benefit feature and a splendid and effective plan of reinsurance adopted by the convention.

The two outstanding features that will have to be solved before we can go forward as we should are the reinsurance plan and the removal of all restrictive laws in our constitution. One is absolutely dependent upon the other. There is no halfway ground. We must have a full rounded out constitution to meet the existing conditions. All propositions in this direction offered by the delegates should be approved. Necessity compels us to adopt them if we wish to succeed.

Among the more important elements that make for happiness are the heart, political freedom, and of equal importance

A Trinity. tance our material well-being.

The forces that function for the attainment of these essentials are the home and love of family which bring solace to the heart; a free government which brings democracy; justice, and political freedom; the trade union which brings better wages, better shop and working conditions, shorter hours of labor, more leisure, more home comforts for dependents, more school time for the children, with less degrading, mental, physical, and soul-destroying work at an age when they should be in school or the playground.

Long live the Home, the Free Government, and the Trade Union! This Trinity makes for happiness, freedom, and our material well-being. Guard, defend and protect these outposts and bulwarks of and for advancing civilization! They bring into the lives of the workers a fuller measure of sunshine and the blessing of a richer and greater happiness.

Capital is well organized and skillfully handled. Labor must be equally well organized and supported by up-to-date and efficient laws, which Big Interests. will enable us to cope with the existing order of things and the evolution in our trade. By the action of the convention we are now given an opportunity to place the International Union in a stronger and better position to effectually cope with organized capital or any other hostile influence.

Adopt the amendments, thus cutting the leash that has bound by restrictive law the natural, normal, and healthy growth of the International Union.

A world-wide struggle is going on between those who have and those who have not. The inevitable struggle Labor Must Move On. between labor and capital is ever-present and pressing. Organized labor should make the strongest combination possible on the economic field of endeavor. The only means of protection for labor and the power to achieve better working and living conditions is by uniting their efforts in the constructive trade union movement.

The result will be disastrous to the best interests of the workers if we ignore this all-important and necessary precaution. Once organized we must always continue and strive to perfect our organization. We can not, we dare not, stand still. If we do we are lost. These statements can not be successfully denied. History proves all of this and more.

The convention in its proposed amendments is in line with historical development. Its action is in the right direction and should be approved. The convention in its wisdom proposed amendments that will have to be adopted if we expect to go forward as we should and as the lives, happiness, and well-being of the workers deserve.

Can women wage-earners be organized? The answer is emphatically Yes. The foregoing is proved by an article recently written and published by Madam Gertrud Hanner, a member of the Women's Secretariat, of the German Federation of Trade Unions, and a member of the Prussian Parliament. She says:

"Trade unionism among women in Germany has undergone a very marked development since the war. Whereas in 1914 the number of women organized in the German 'free' trade unions was only 210,314, or 10 per cent of the total membership, in 1922, it had grown to 1,753,576, or over 21 per cent of the total membership of the 'free' trade unions. Women form a similar proportion of the other trade union organizations."

The organization that won't get out of the way of natural evolution in industry is bound to get hurt.

The tribe which continued to use the bow and arrow against the rifle perished from the earth.

A modern match will start something much more quickly than the old flint.

Healthy, normal growth in a labor organization is dependent upon the adoption of progressive means of production.

The fellow who says the ox or horse is better than the automobile, a locomotive, or a flying machine as a means of transportation or cartage is looked upon as a "nut."

He who says in the union "Let well enough alone" is standing in his own way and is a stumbling block to greater improvement and better conditions for himself and his fellow workers.

Confidence in self and in an organization is a paramount necessity. But where overconfidence blinds the vision it is liable to retard the application of progressive methods made necessary by normal evolution.

ACCEPT THE MACHINE—ORGANIZE THE WORKERS.

By Samuel Gompers.

I feel a very deep interest in the question before the convention at the present time. Lest I might forget it, I can not allow this moment to pass without taking cognizance of the statement made by Delegate Rhine—let well enough alone. If that were the policy of the labor movement in general we should be where the working people of the United States were fifty years ago. The fact of the matter is we can not let well enough alone; it won't let us alone.

It is true that for quite a number of years I haven't worked at the trade of cigar making, but I did work at the bench for a period of 26 years of my life, and during all that time I was a hand workman, and for the last 20 years of working at the trade I worked at the Spanish system of cigar making. My personal pride in the trade is really very great.

I remember working in one of the large shops in New York City, and when we were fairly well organized as trade unionism was then understood, the question of molds was before the union. In the old Turner Hall in Orchard street, New York, the members divided as to those who would favor a strike against the molds and those who would favor molds. And I remember going with a crowd of the boys who voted to strike against the introduction of the molds if an attempt was made to introduce them. And I remember the time when, as a result of that vote, Conrad Kuhn, president of that organization, came to our shop and said, as he did to other shops: "This shop is on strike," and not a mother's son of us remained in the shop a minute after. We struck, and it was a hard struggle; we lost and the molds were introduced.

I am free to say that from that time there came some light to my mind, and I realized then for the first time that it was absolutely futile for workmen to protest against or go on strike against the introduction of a new machine, a new device or a new tool.

In the old time when the cotton spinning jenny was introduced and the machine put into the textile plants the men in the industry, outraged at seeing their trade taken away from them, a trade they had to serve several years to acquire, destroyed the machine. Was the machine destroyed? Yes, but was the idea destroyed? No. The blue prints were in existence for that machine, and in any event the scheme and the plan was in the mind of someone who had burned the midnight oil. The machines in the textile industry became universal in every modern country.

The conditions of the textile workers are not what they ought to be by any means, but were the conditions of old, when the men worked by hand, better than those that now prevail? By no means. The hours of labor were from sun up to sun down, and as soon as artificial light was discovered the men and women and children worked from early morning until late at night, until organization took place among them and reduced their hours of labor from sixteen to twelve, to ten, to nine, and in many instances to eight, and their whole condition has improved.

The change in the constitution to which several of the delegates have referred antedates the Cleveland convention by many years. I was a delegate to the first Cleveland convention and there I had 42 votes, more than all the other delegates to that convention combined. I never used that power of voting in that convention, not on one question; it seemed to me that if I could not influence the delegates to accept what I believed, and still am convinced of, I would not overwhelm them by the power of the vote I had a right to cast. It was after a three days' struggle in that convention a resolution was adopted that the local union would have a right to recognize and organize the bunch breakers and rollers. I was a hand worker and working at my trade.

Let me disclose what might otherwise be a confidential matter. You know that all fines imposed by local unions upon members must be approved by the Executive Board. I tell you now right frankly that whenever there was an application for the imposition of a fine upon a member of the union because of the introduction of the mold system and rolling up, I voted against the imposition of the fine. I felt, as I feel now, that there has come into our trade a change with which we are compelled to reckon.

Delegate Hilfers referred to the glass bottle blowers. He gave a graphic description of what occurred. That organization has dwindled, but in addition it has made every automatic bottle blowing machine operator, every man who operates one of those machines a mortal enemy of the organization.

President Perkins adds at this time to my remark, and I want to incorporate it as my own, giving him credit for his statement, that they will not come into the union now.

The water carriers of Egypt protested when pipe lines were being laid to carry water to some central parts of the cities because it did away with their trade of carrying water. The rickshaw runners of China raised a revolution because horses were put to wagons to carry people. In some of our cities hack drivers protested against the erection of railroad stations near the cities because it took away their jobs.

Some years ago I had occasion to travel in the southern states, and there I saw in the middle of the rivers colored men who were dredging with buckets and long poles. They were getting 20 and 30 cents a day. Wherever men are cheap no machinery is used in industry or any other way. It is only when men are dear and wages are high that machinery is brought in.

The Typographical Union has been mentioned. I had the great pleasure of having the opportunity to meet with the late William B. Prescott, then president of the International Typographical Union; his office and the office of the American Federation of Labor were in the same building, the De-Sota Block, Indianapolis, Indiana, and I talked to him on this question. With his courageous spirit he went before the people and pleaded with them to recognize the Mergenthaler machine, and instead of what would have occurred, that girls running type-writing machines to operate the Mergenthaler typesetting machine, it was the printer that was given a chance to learn the trade over again. What has been the result? Wages higher in the printing trades, hours of labor lower, the eight-hour day prevailing in the industry, and on the newspapers the 44-hour week, and the International Typographical, to secure the 44-hour week for the printers in the book and job trade has expended more than $15,000,000. And it has more members and more money in its treasury than before the strike took place.

The garment workers sewed with the needle, and then there was a riot and a revolt when the sewing machine came in. There are now many tailors who do nothing but make fine clothes by hand sewing. But what has happened to the men in the garment industry? Working, instead of in the old-time sweatshop, in sanitary factories, working not more than eight hours a day, working not more than 44 hours a week, and a better organization than ever obtained in their history.

The miners of old worked with the pick and shovel, and they were slaves in the mines. From miserable conditions, slavish conditions, electrical power has been employed and the men are earning more wages, working shorter hours, not because they opposed the machine, but because they accepted it.

The shoe workers, the old cobblers that made shoes before the time of many of you, worked long hours and for a mere pittance. The modern shoe industry requires about 64 operations, 64 different people to do certain parts of it before the shoe is completed.

I don't want anyone to infer from what I have said that I am content with the conditions those men enjoy. There isn't anything in this world or beyond it that I do not want the workers of America to have. I have gone through many of the struggles of the cigar makers of our country. In 1864, I first became a member of the international union. I was then but 14 years of age. I have not joined the union many times, I only joined it once, but I stuck. I have always believed it was our imperative duty, a duty which we can not shirk, to organize every wage earner, I do not care at what he works. Every man or woman who works for wages should be organized; it is not only his right but his duty to become a member of a union to protect him from the exploitation of the employers. I also hold as an equally positive duty and obligation that no union has the moral right to deny or close its doors to any man or woman who works in the industry.

I want to ask you men and women in this convention what are you going to do? I know that there may be several men who have charged the American Federation of Labor as such to be against what they are pleased to call industrial unionism or the one big union, and I venture to say that when they come to consider this proposition outside of our international union then they are industrialists; but when there is a proposal to open our doors and go into the highways and byways and organize these men and women against whom literally we are closing our doors, it is opposed.

I ask any delegate in this convention whether he knows of any trade where the union has recognized the machine or improved tool where the conditions of the working people were made worse. It is not in the order of nature and of things. The better we organize the more thoroughly will we be in a position to defend, not only that which we have, but to move onward and forward for the things which ought to be ours and which we can obtain.

I can see no danger to the men in the industry in New England. I am proud of being a member of an international union of which they have shown themselves to be such valiant fighters. I am proud of the record of our international union and of our local unions, even the smallest of them. Something in this convention struck me with great force. Look through your roll call of delegates and you will find there are more delegates here representing two, three or four local unions than at any time in the history of our international union. And why? Because the trade has left these small places and they have little memberships. And so a thousand miles away from each other they have been required to combine and send a delegate. Is it not a lesson for us? Are we to go on and let well enough alone? This is not well enough, it is bad enough, and in the name of all that is good and right and in the interest of our members and our wonderful international organization let us see things as they are and deal with them, open the door wide of our international union so that every man and woman will be a member. Let us come to them with the invitation to come into our organization. What we have at the present time is a great tribute to what we have built, but the time has come to change.

I don't know whether it will ever be my privilege to again attend a convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union. I have no misgivings, I have no false notions. I have worked all my life, and so long as life shall remain in me I shall work, and work, and work in this great movement to which I have devoted every ounce of my energy. I want to continue, and will continue, whether in office or in the ranks, so long as there is a breath of life in my body and until the end.

I repeat, it is exceedingly doubtful that I shall ever have the pleasure of being at another convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America. I have been a delegate to every convention from and including the Rochester convention of 1877, a record of 46 years. I repeat, I don't again expect to be at a convention of the international union, but whether I shall or shall not, I propose that while I am here I shall give expression to the best thought of which I am capable, and the best advice that my life and experience has given to me to share with you for the good of the men and women of our industry, so that you may resume the great part which we have heretofore played in this most wonderful movement, the American Federation of Labor.

By the Int'l Executive Board.

Fellow Members:

The historical development of mankind, of the state and of organization has been evolutionary in character. Whenever these have applied progressive measures in time they have made wonderful strides along the pathway of human endeavor and to a better and more enlightened civilization, progress, and well-being.

To the so-called standpat, let-well-enough-alone man or organization that has failed to adopt progressive measures to fit changing evolutionary conditions, one of three things has happened—failure or decay, or revolution. Keeping pace with evolution history shows has made greater progress than violent revolution. Rome failed, so secure in its dogmatic, non-progressive standpat laws that Nero fiddled while Rome burned. The Czar of Russia could not see the yearning of his people for freedom, justice and democracy, and as a consequence he is now dead.

Every member of your International Executive Board, with the exception of G. Weber, was present at the convention held in Chicago in August, as a delegate or in some other capacity. Prior to that convention we saw the absolute necessity of the adoption of progressive amendments to our constitution, which were in line with and made necessary to meet the rapid evolution in the cigar and tobacco industry. This thought was further augmented by the sustained manifestation of intelligent conception and determined action on the part of the delegates to and of that convention.

We are grateful for the privilege we had in participating and voting for the great measures which grew out of the combined wisdom and judgment of the officers and members at the convention. We left the convention proud of our membership in the Cigar Makers' International Union and proud of the delegates who so manfully and so courageously met the situation squarely and by their actions rounded out a complete new constitution that in our unanimous and combined judgment fits the occasion and necessities with which we are confronted.

We were unanimously agreed to and in accord with the action of the convention in first removing all restrictive laws which recorded facts prove were a barrier to further and more complete organization of the industry, and, secondly, with the splendid and effectual manner in which our fraternal death benefit features were amended so that we are enabled if the action of the convention is approved to escape the odium and dishonor of repudiating promises made, and at the same time through group plan of re-insurance the convention made sure of the protection of all accrued and cherished rights to death benefits and without any additional cost whatsoever to the membership. Moreover, if the removal of restrictive laws, which have been a barrier to the natural, normal and healthy growth, is approved by your votes the premium on insurance benefits will be cheaper as the organization goes forward and grows in numbers.

There is no question that we are confronted with a critical situation brought about by rapid evolution in the trade, which we must meet. The convention has proposed a way out that will do honor to ourselves and place the International Union once more in the front ranks of the most progressive and substantial trade unions in the great galaxy of international and national unions which go to make up America's progressive, forward-looking, hopeful and determined great army of trade unionists.

We must place our organization in a position where it can be of greater service than ever it has been. It must better promote and protect the rights, interests and welfare of everyone working in our industry and throughout our vast jurisdiction. The ratification of our membership of the Chicago Convention's proposals will, we are sure, bring about these desirable and essential results.

Our loyalty and faith in our grand old union and our belief that it will rise to the present occasion as it always has heretofore, are undimmed, undaunted, and stronger and more determined than ever. We are confident that your answer to the great responsibility now resting in your hands will be as prompt and as vigorous and as sustaining and with that unanimity which characterized the action of the delegates to the International Union's most historical convention.

By the Committee on Constitution.

Chicago, Ill.

Evolution is the moving force of the world and of civilization. Through its immutable forces we trace the birth and the growth of continents and the dawn and progress of reason in mankind.

Its forces are just as surely manifest in industrial life as in any other changing thing. Nothing remains forever the same, hence the C. M. I. U. can not stand still. It must go forward or backward. The general welfare of those engaged in the cigar industry demands that it go forward.

Our organization, as any other, is worth to society only the service it renders. To render adequate service we must reach those engaged in the trade who are outside our union. To reach them we must reckon with evolution in the cigar industry and this necessitates many changes in our basic law. Rules and regulations that were born of necessity a few years ago are now obsolete because of changed conditions in the trade, and all such hindrances to progress must be eliminated if we hope to succeed in our mission of service.

With this thought in mind and in conformity with recommendations of International President Perkins, to which the committee subscribed unanimously, your Committee on Constitution has endeavored to wipe the slate clean of any and all obstacles that may have stood in the way of complete organization of the cigar industry. The Convention has agreed with this thought and has by its vote ratified the work as a whole. It now becomes the property of the membership at large. It is up to them to either accept or reject the work seemingly so well started.

Space will not permit a review of all the changes deemed necessary, but among the more pertinent we find:

The removal of the optional clause as affecting the admission to membership of bunch-breakers, rollers and machine operators. Our trade because of evolution in the industry is now largely composed of those who work under some form of the "team" system; hence if we are to completely organize the industry we must permit these people to join the union under provisions that will protect their membership and their right to work under the jurisdiction of the entire International Union rather than under the option of the various locals.

The removal of all restrictions to members working in label shops irrespective of the length of time they may have been members of the union.

The granting of the label to all organized shops irrespective of whether machinery is used in part or not. (The only exception being that the label is not permitted on cigars made by the so-called automatic machine.)

Changing the apprentice laws to fit the needs of the present day.

In the many changes made and in the new propositions offered it was necessary to shape our basic law so that it would best conform to and function with the most evolutionary change made by the Convention, the change in the death benefit system.

Experience has proven the worth of a death benefit or insurance feature in maintaining organization in trade unions. Unions that maintain a chain of benefits never disintegrate to their economic disadvantage in times of industrial depression as do those unions that have no benefit features. So well established is this fact—and no better proof of the value of a benefit system is necessary—that manufacturers' associations, railroad companies and large employers of labor generally are giving their employees absolutely free of charge group insurance, both life and sick. Of course this company insurance is nullified when the worker leaves the employ of the company, and, furthermore, the only reason for its being given at all is to offset the benefit features of trade unions and to stifle the demand for improved working conditions demanded by the unions.

The whole program of group insurance as applied by large employers of labor is a deep-laid plot or conspiracy to undermine the activities of labor unions. Our own union should now (and all other trade unions will sooner or later be compelled as a matter of self-preservation to do likewise) adopt some method of group insurance to counteract the so-called free benefit features that are now so generally a part of the scheme of big business.

Our present death benefit system, in principle, was adopted in 1887, and it was the best thought on insurance at that time, the era of fraternal and assessment insurance companies. The plan then so popular, fraternal assessment insurance, has since proven inadequate, no fraternity or insurance company of that day now exists that charges the rates that were deemed wholly adequate at the time of the formation of the fraternity or insurance company—in fact, such insurance is now prohibited by law.

The few changes that have been made in our system since that time were absolutely necessary in order that the system might exist. For example, the Cleveland Convention found it necessary to raise the dues and to increase the number of years a member must continuously pay dues in order that his beneficiaries might receive the maximum amount of benefit. It was shown, then, as it has been shown many times, that our present system of death benefit is inadequate and on a false foundation due largely to the fact that we have provided no reserve fund upon which the interest would have taken care of the natural increasing death rate with increasing age. In the light of past experience this condition leads inevitably to higher cost, and eventually a prohibitive rate of dues and finally to repudiation of the death benefit system entirely. As a matter of fact there have been several amendments proposed that were predicated upon the principle of repudiation.

As heretofore stated a death benefit feature is now as never before a necessary adjunct of the successful trades union; hence we should by all means change our system to something dependable and secure. With this thought in mind a number of insurance companies were asked by President Perkins to submit contracts, rates and plans of group insurance and re-insurance for the consideration of the Executive Board, Committee on Constitution and the Convention. Several of the larger companies, through their representatives, refused to consider the proposition, and the contract, plan and rate submitted by the International Life & Trust Co. was, after due and careful consideration by the International President and the Executive Board, the Committee on Constitution and the Convention, in their judgment, considered the most reasonable, equitable, comprehensive, satisfactory and acceptable.

Under the provisions of the present law a member must continuously pay dues for a period of twenty years before he is entitled to the maximum benefit. Under the proposed plan all those who are members at the time of its adoption will be immediately entitled to the maximum amount of insurance that they elect to pay for, and new members will be entitled to the maximum in three months if they elect to carry the full amount of insurance, it being optional with both old and new members as to the amount of insurance they carry above the compulsory burial benefit of $100.00.

This should, and no doubt will prove to be a very favorable factor in organization, and as organization progresses the rate of premium will be materially reduced from the fact that the present rate, $1.51 per annum on each $100.00 of insurance carried, is based upon the average age of the present membership and consequently upon a comparatively high average age.

The proposed plan of insurance, the proposed dues and the contract with the International Life & Trust Co. were adopted by a unanimous vote of the Convention, and it is our hope that the action of the Convention will meet with the approval of the membership as expressed through the coming referendum.

Cigar Machinery and Wages.

Viewpoints of Union Labor. By Hugh V. Rellly.
Sept. 8, 1923.

The last trade union opposition to the introduction of machinery into industry vanished last month when delegates to the Cigar Makers' International Union of America in convention assembled at Chicago decided to admit operators of cigar making machines to membership in their Union. The decision was epoch-marking in the history of the Cigar Makers' Union. Nationally known men of the trade, such as Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor; President George W. Perkins of the Cigar Makers' Union, and Henry F. Hilfers, secretary of the New Jersey State Federation of Labor, all advocated the proposal.

The action of the cigar makers is significant. It places their union in the same position to wrest better wages and working conditions, as the printers, hatters and other unions who, within the past twenty-five years, have accepted the machine. Incidentally working conditions and wage rates paid to union workers of the craft disprove the intimation of pseudo-economists that improved machinery alone and without the influence of labor organizations tends to elevate American living standards.

In other words, wages paid in union shops before the recent convention's action were far in excess of those paid to non-union makers of machine-made cigars. The latter employes were mostly girls and children of foreign birth. The action of the cigar makers may therefore be construed as not only a move to protect themselves from unwholesome competition, but it likewise contemplates an effort to help workers who hitherto did not care to or were unable to help themselves.

Contrast the cigar makers' decision, then, and the causes which prompted it with the following extract from an article in the current issue of the Guaranty Survey, a publication owned by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York. The Survey says, in part: "Everywhere can be seen the improvement in the standards of living in workingmen's families made possible by capital accumulations, business organization, labor saving machinery, and skill on the part of the workers themselves."

Not a word of credit does the Survey give to the trade union movement for its influence in wresting better living conditions for the masses. Nor is any effort made by it to explain the large and favorable discrepancy in the hodcarrier's wages as compared to the highly-skilled, though non-union, craftsmen of other industries.

Possibly the Survey may excuse the omission on the plea that it was discussing "capital accumulations, business organizations, and labor saving machinery," rather than crude hand and back labor. But organized labor has learned that the only connection between those topics and higher American living standards, lies in the trade union movement. Skilled labor, whether by hand or machine, can only receive a just reward, through unionized effort. And the cigar makers' decision again proves it.—The Hudson Dispatch, Union Hill, N. J.

CORRESPONDENCE

PORTLAND, ORE.

In the affairs of men time brings its crisis. Organizations are merely groups of the individuals and critical times come to organizations.

The Cigar Makers' International Union is no exception to the rule. For many years the members of our International Union have known that its insurance features were not economically sound and could be maintained only by virtue of the fact that the constitution vested in the International President and Executive Board the right to levy assessments to recoup the general fund.

The delegates to the convention held in Chicago August 13 to 25 faced the problem of rehabilitating the International Union. With excellent judgment and rare courage they adopted amendments to the constitution which open the way for growth and development of the International Union.

The recommendations of the convention which are to be voted upon by the general membership have among them two outstanding features, both of which merit the commendation and ratification of all the members of the International Union, because our growth and development are contingent upon the adoption of these amendments. These are the amendments dealing with: First, removal of all constitutional restrictions as to membership, the use of the union label and the method of manufacturing cigars.

This amendment provides for the removal of the optional clause on the part of local unions. Dealing with the question of method of manufacturing cigars and admission of members to local unions throughout the country, it matters little what our feelings may be regarding bunch breaking and roll up system, the suction table and even the automatic machine; the fact is, that most of the cigars manufactured now are by those methods. It is vital, therefore, that the recommendations of the convention regarding the optional clause should be approved in the referendum vote.

Secondly, the proposed disposition of our death benefit. Happily, the delegates to the convention were able to agree upon a plan which is not only economically sound, but permits the International Union to discharge all of its financial obligations to all of its members at a lesser cost to the members themselves. This is known as the re-insurance plan, wherein the International Union is made the trustee for its members and every member may, without medical examination, at his option, continue to carry death benefit in the sum of $500 by paying 60c a week dues, or if he chooses, carry but $100 and pay 40c a week dues. The latter sum is the basic dues. With it goes $100 death benefit and, of course, strike and sick benefit, as provided for by the constitution. Additional death benefit would cost 5c per week extra dues for each additional $100.

All other changes in the constitution offered to the general membership for ratification are of little importance, unless the two amendments discussed in the foregoing paragraphs are approved.

There is but one question involved. Shall the International Union organize the unorganized in the industry? If they answer that question as "Yes" then the recommendations of the convention should be adopted. If they are adopted, no members of the International Union will lose anything. On the other hand, thousands of workers in that industry would be benefited by becoming members of the International Union. There is no alternative except gradual and continued decline of an organization than which no other has meant so much to the workers in any industry.

In order to get an intelligent idea of the Life Insurance Company of Illinois, which is willing to insure our members, I should like to know whether the insurance law of the state of Illinois restricts this company as to how they should invest their money or in other words, are they allowed to invest in all sorts of securities such as bonds and stocks?

Yours fraternally,

Sept. 28, 1923.

Mr. Theo. Billingheimer,

Secretary Union 132,

Brooklyn, N. Y.

Dear Sir: In reply to your letter of Sept. 19th

I quote herewith the Illinois law on investments sent to me by Mr. Charles Wright of the International Life and Trust Company.

"That on and after Jan. 1, 1908, any life insurance company of this state, for the purpose of investing its capital, surplus and other funds, or any part thereof, may purchase and hold as collateral security or otherwise, and sell and convey any bonds or public stock issued or created by the United States, or by this state, or by any of the other states of the United States or the District of Columbia, or any or either of them, or by any of the incorporated cities, counties, townships or other municipal corporations thereof, or bonds authorized to be issued by any commission appointed by the Supreme Court of this state, or invest said capital, surplus and other funds, or any part thereof, in bonds or notes secured by mortgages or trust deeds on unencumbered real estate located within said states, or the District of Columbia, or either of them worth at least double the sum invested or loaned, or lend on or purchase mortgage bonds of railroad companies organized under the law of said states, or the District of Columbia, or either of them, or operated therein, or the capital stock, bonds, securities or evidences of indebtedness created by any corporation or corporations created under the laws of the United States or of this or any other state, except the stock of mining companies and the stock of manufacturing companies commonly known as 'industrials.' Provided, that no loan shall be made or retained on any of the above mentioned securities except the bonds or stock issued or created by the United States or this state, exceeding ninety per centum of the market value thereof; and, provided, further, that no purchase shall be made by any life insurance company of the stock of any other life insurance company; and that no loan shall be made by any company on its own stock; and any life insurance company of this state may, in addition to the foregoing, purchase for its own benefit any policy of insurance or other obligation of the company and any claims of policyholders, and may lend to the holders of policies of the company a sum not exceeding the reserve value of the policies at the time the loan is made, for the payment of which loan the policies and all profits thereon shall be pledged."

"No investment or loan, except policy loans shall be made by any such life insurance company, unless the same shall first have been authorized by the board of directors, or by a committee thereof charged with the duty of supervising such investment or loan. No such company shall subscribe to or participate in any underwriting of the purchase or sale of securities or property, or enter into any transaction for such purchase or sale on account of said company jointly with any other person, firm or corporation; nor shall any such company enter into any agreement to withhold from sale any of its property, but the disposition of its property shall be at all times within the control of the board of directors."

Yours fraternally,

G. W. PERKINS,
International President.

Seattle, Sept. 14, 1923.

In the delegate report to the local the question came up about the new insurance plan and some asked: "What about the 40c members? Will they be dropped? How will they be taken care of?" Please give me this information as soon as possible.

Fraternally,

E. COENEN, Sec'y.

Sept. 19, 1923.

Mr. Ed. Coenen, Sec'y Union 135,

Seattle, Wash.

Dear Sir:

Replying to yours of the 14th, I have to say that all rights and privileges of retired beneficiary members are fully protected and in so far as the insurance benefit is concerned they are precisely the same as those who are regular full contributing dues paying members. You will notice by the proceedings that the only change in Sections 76 and 77 is that the dues are reduced from 40c a week to 25c a week for basic dues, which includes $100.00 insurance. A retired beneficiary member under the proposed law is entitled to take out additional insurance as per the amendment in multiples of $100.00 up to $500.00 by paying 5c per week additional dues for each $100.00. The same rules and regulations apply in his case as apply in the case of the full dues paying member as set forth in Section 139.

Yours fraternally,

G. W. PERKINS,

Int'l President.

Janesville, Wis., Oct. 1, 1923.

As a duty to those whom I represented at the convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union, I feel that I should make an explanation as regards my vote, on roll call, on the amendment to Sec. 130 to increase the period of seven days to fourteen days on the sick list before a member can draw sick benefits and no pay for the first seven days.

As per proceedings of the 7th day, which appears on pages 64 and 65 of the September issue of the Journal, through a misunderstanding as to which amendment we were called to vote on, I am recorded as voting "aye" on the amendment offered by Delegate Brown and "nay" on the amendment offered by Delegates Rhine, Wolf and others. This vote is just the reverse of my position on these amendments.

In twenty odd years as a continuous member of the organization I have received six weeks of sick benefit and I certainly do appreciate both the privilege and the benefit and I think that Sec. 130 should remain as it is in its present form. While the sick privilege may have been abused to some extent by a very small minority, on the other hand it is very much appreciated by the great majority of conscientious members. It has been of incalculable value as an inducement in getting new members in past and it will continue to be of value in the future. I do not approve of any action which tends to trim the rights and privileges of the membership. It is very likely to reflect back on the quality and usefulness of the organization. I do, however, favor an optional clause for those who do not care to participate in the privilege of the sick benefit.

Fraternally yours,

PHIL SULLIVAN,

Delegate of Unions No. 290 and No. 447.

Resolutions Adopted by the Convention

RESOLUTION NO. 1.

Voting No. 1.

Resolved, That the Executive Board of the C. M. I. U. of America is hereby instructed and authorized to devise ways and means to procure advertisements pertaining to union made products to be placed in our Official Journal.

RESOLUTION NO. 5.

Voting No. 2.

During the administration of ex-President Taft, Congress enacted a law allowing an unlimited importation of cigars containing not more than 20 per cent of foreign tobaccos from the Philippine Islands, thereby depriving of employment at least 3,500 cigarmakers; therefore be it

Resolved, That the International President, in conjunction with the Executive Board, be authorized to appoint a committee to act in conjunction with the A. F. of L. also seek the aid of other bodies whose interests are identical with our own, so as to induce Congress either to repeal or modify the above Act so as to control the importation to a minimum.

RESOLUTION NO. 9.

Voting No. 3.

The committee submitted the following as a substitute for the original resolution introduced by Delegate P. Rivera Martinez, No. 460, and Manuel LaRosa, No. 389:

Your Committee on Resolutions is in full accord with much that the Resolution No. 9 contains, but in some respects we are of the opinion that some of the charges made therein are not yet verified, even though they may be true.

Your Committee therefore submits the following substitute for Resolution No. 9:

Whereas, the Fascisti movement in Italy has in the words of its leader, Benito Mussolini, declared that the liberties of the people of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries must be obliterated, and that in our time power and force strides over the decomposed body of liberty.

Whereas, the Fascisti, under the dictatorship of Mussolini, has by force, violence and tyrannous oppression taken possession of the Government of Italy, and taken from the people the rights of freedom of assemblage, freedom of press, freedom of speech, and the denial of workmen to cease work (strike) in defense of any furtherance of their rights and interests as wage earners, and in the process of such force countless outrages have been committed upon the lives of the Italian wage earners; and

Whereas, attempts have been made to transplant the Fascisti movement in the Republic of the United States;

Whereas, the American people, while striving to eliminate any wrong or injustice which may prevail in America, yet holding that under our democratic form of government we have in our own hands the means and the power to eliminate the wrong and injustice and establish right and justice; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this 24th convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America denounce in immeasurable terms the establishment of any form of tyranny either in Italy or any other country under whatsoever name it may be launched;

That we protest against any movement having for its purpose the imposition of tyranny or autocracy in America; and be it further

Resolved, That while we recognize that the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor has done its full duty to meet the situation up to this present time, we request the delegates of the C. M. I. U. of A. to the forthcoming convention of the A. F. of L. to present this subject matter to that convention with a view that the denunciation and protest may be accentuated by the great mass of organized labor of America both against the tyrannous, brutal autocracy of Fascisti in Italy and its attempt to be planted in America.

SUBSTITUTE FOR RESOLUTIONS 10, 11, 16.

Voting No. 4.

Whereas, Time has proved that the Volstead Act is not an honest interpretation of the Eighteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution; and

Whereas, Disrespect for the Volstead Law has caused disrespect for all laws, having made formerly lawful living citizens a nation of law-breakers, turned millions of homes into breweries or distilleries, making it possible to thus poison the minds of the youth of our republic; and

Whereas, Our nation has been made the laughing stock of the world by the Volstead Act and the peculiar methods used in its enforcement; and

Whereas, We believe the act should be amended to permit the manufacture and sale of wholesome beer and light wines, but while we advocate these changes we equally oppose the return of the old time saloon; therefore,

Resolved, By the Cigar Makers' International Union in convention assembled that we urge Congress to either repeal the Volstead Act or amend it so as to permit the manufacture and sale of wholesome beer and light wines, or to give authority and power to the several states in the rightful exercise of their police power providing under proper regulation for the manufacture and sale of wholesome beer and light wine.

RESOLUTION NO. 12.

Voting No. 5.

Submitted by Committee on Constitution.

The committee recommended the adoption of the resolution when amended to read as follows: Resolved, That the President of our International Union be and he is hereby authorized to make such verbal changes in the constitution which shall be adopted by this convention, provided that the intent and purpose of the provisions of the constitution shall not be altered in any respect.

Resolved, That the President of our International Union be, and he is hereby authorized, to obtain such advice and assistance in the performance of the duty imposed upon him by this resolution as he in his judgment may require.

RESOLUTION NO. 13.

Voting No. 6.

Whereas, Only a small percentage of the great working masses are as yet members of the trade unions, great numbers being still unorganized in nearly all the industries; and

Whereas, This state of affairs not only militates against the unorganized, who are helpless, but against the organized as well, who find themselves severely handicapped in their struggle for better conditions by the ever-present army of unorganized; and

Whereas, The present temporary spurt of prosperity offers a splendid opportunity to bring these unorganized masses into the unions and thus enormously strengthen our ranks against the bitter onslaughts that are bound to come from the employers at the first slackening up of industry; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the Cigar Makers' International Union of America, in convention assembled, call upon the American Federation of Labor to unite all its affiliated organizations for a great organization drive in all localities and industries, in order to finally bring within the protecting folds of Organized Labor the masses who still remain outside.

Resolved, That the C. M. I. U. of A. pledges its co-operation and support in furtherance of the purpose of this resolution.

RESOLUTION NO. 18.

Voting No. 7.

For the original resolution printed in the proceedings of the 8th day the committee offered the following substitute:

Whereas, It is universally known that the labor movement has greatly assisted in reducing race and religious prejudices and in every way contributed toward a higher standard of living and betterment of society, thereby perfecting the present state of civilization; and

Whereas, It is a well known fact that the Ku Klux Klan are actively engaged in a campaign of religious, political and labor intolerance; and

Whereas, This action creates and continues to create a state of lawlessness, bordering on anarchy in many sections of the country; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the delegates of the 24th convention of the C. M. I. U. of A., assembled at Chicago, Ill., August 22, 1923, hereby express our sentiments of horror and protest against the menace to life and liberty of conscience; and be it further

Resolved, That we are opposed to any and all organizations whose object and motive is the establishing of an autocratic, an invisible government, which would inspire the destruction of our religious, political and economic freedom.

RESOLUTION NO. 19.

Voting No. 8.

Whereas, In the year 1920 the Cigar Makers' International Union, after a thorough investigation and careful consideration, came to a mutual understanding of friendly relations with the Cigar Makers' Federation of the Provinces of Havana and Pinar del Rio (Federación de Torcedores de las Provincias de la Habana y Pinar del Rio) which is the only one bona fide national organization of cigar makers in Cuba; and

Whereas, A covenant of solidarity and friendly and reciprocal relations to mutually accept the cards of the members of the Cuban Federation and of our International Union was entered into and signed at that time by the respective representatives of the Cuban Federation and of the International Union; and

Whereas, The good feelings, good disposition and liberality and generosity of the Cuban Federation of Cigar Makers and members thereof was immediately proved in many instances, and very particularly during the long and protracted Tampa strike, which was already in progress when our covenant with the Cuban Federation of Cigar Makers was signed, having our members in Tampa receive all the financial help that the Cuban Federation was able to send them and work having been provided also at Cuba for a good number of our members, and their papers, orators, etc., placed to the service of the above mentioned strike; and

Whereas, One of the men signing our Pact of Solidarity in behalf of the Cuban Federation was its president, Mr. Jose Bravo, as it may be seen by the records; and

Whereas, The above referred to President Jose Bravo has apparently disappeared from the Island of Cuba taking with him nearly all the funds of that organization and to the amount of $39,000, according to the reports received by personal letters and articles published in papers which are friendly to us and to the Cuban Federation as well; and

Whereas, Such an action of President Jose Bravo has been very discouraging for the cigar makers of Cuba, who had such a good and strong organization along the lines of trade unionism, to the extent that a total disorganization might result in what would certainly be detrimental not only for our brother cigar makers of Cuba, but for ourselves in its vast effects; and

Whereas, It is our duty to see to it that workers of all trades organize everywhere as it is very particular that cigar makers and workers of our industry organize and keep organized not only in the United States but wherever cigars are made and feeling that we are in duty bound to do all within our power to help in maintaining and stimulating the organization of our brother cigar makers; and

Whereas, Due to the action of President Bravo unrest and distrust is being felt among the cigar makers who are members of the Cuban Federation of Cigar Makers, a seed which is being widely spread by the very action of the employers who take advantage of the situation to discourage the men and women who are still organized, all what might lead to a total disorganization of the forces of our industry who are organized in the Island of Cuba; and

Whereas, Should the employers succeed in their efforts there would happen things in the trade that we all would have to regret, and for the sake of the organization being our duty to take notice of the situation in Cuba; therefore be it

Resolved, First, that meantime, our International President be instructed to send an expressive cablegram of encouragement to the Cuban Federation of Cigar Makers expressing the sympathies and feelings of this convention toward the critical situation they are now confronting on account of the treacherous action of their president.

Second, that our International President be instructed to visit Cuba at the earliest possible date after the adjournment of this convention to personally convey to those brothers the message of good will, encouragement and moral support of the International Union in rebuilding and strengthening the organization of the trade and industry in Cuba. And that any financial support that the International Union might afford to give be given to these brothers.

Third, that if possible for him to go, First Vice President be instructed also to accompany the International President in this most important mission.

Fourth, that we pledge our moral support, efforts and vigilance in our country to our brother cigar makers of the Federación de Torcedores de la Habana y Pinar del Rio in their efforts to locate and punish the man responsible for the critical situation the organization of the cigar makers in Cuba is going through at this time.

Fifth, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Federation de Torcedores de la Habana y Pinar del Rio.

Your committee recommends that the subject matter of Resolution No. 19 be referred to the International President for such action as he may deem just and appropriate. In addition, we extend fraternal greetings to the organized cigar makers of Cuba, and urge continuance of the fraternal co-operation of the bona fide organization of cigar makers of Cuba and the Cigar Makers' International Union of America.

RESOLUTION NO. 20.

Voting No. 9.

Whereas, The next convention of the Illinois State Federation of Labor will be held in the city of Decatur on September 10th; and

Whereas, The said city of Decatur is in the center of the coal fields of Illinois and the miners will be well represented in the convention; and

Whereas, The Cigar Makers' union label is sadly neglected in the coal mining districts; therefore be it

Resolved, That the International President be asked to take the matter up with the local unions in the state and urge them to send delegates to the Decatur convention; and be it further

Resolved, That the International President send an international agent to help the unions in their label campaign.

RESOLUTION NO. 21.

Voting No. 10.

Submitted by P. Rivera Martinez, No. 460, San Juan, Porto Rico.

Whereas, Labor conditions in the Philippine Islands as reported are very far from those which human beings should enjoy; and

Whereas, The effects of the introduction of cigars from the Philippine Islands in the United States duty free is being felt in the United States to the detriment of the cigar industry employees and independent manufacturers as well who are unable to meet competition; and

Whereas, Real conditions prevailing among the working classes of the Philippine Islands, and very particularly among the Philippine cigar makers, as well as wages received, etc., should be made known to the workers and cigar makers of the United States by some authoritative agency of our movement, so that the proper measures may be adopted to prevent further evils, after real working and living conditions of the workers and cigar makers, particularly are known; be it

Resolved, That the delegates of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America to the next coming convention of the A. F. of L. be instructed and requested to introduce at that convention a resolution providing for the appointment by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor of a special committee to carry out a general survey of working and living conditions of the workers of the Philippines and very particularly of the cigar makers, wages received, and thoughts and aspirations of the working classes of this territory.

That this committee as appointed by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor should make all recommendations that may be deemed necessary to have the interests of the workers and very particularly of the cigar makers of the United States duly safeguarded and protected.

That the Philippine Islands, as far as we know, is the only possession of the United States not visited so far by any authorized committee of the organized labor movement of America to bring real conditions to the attention and knowledge of the working people of the United States.

Your committee recommends that the section which requests the American Federation of Labor to bear the expense of the proposed commission be stricken out, and that when thus amended the resolution be adopted.

RESOLUTION NO. 22.

Voting No. 11.

Submitted by Committee on Resolutions.

This Twenty-fourth Convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America declares its renewed fealty, devotion and abiding faith in our International Union and in the trade union movement of America, and we call upon the members of our International Union to ratify this fealty, devotion and abiding faith not only individually but collectively.

That we appeal to the unorganized members of every branch of our trade and industry to assume the same fealty, devotion and abiding faith in the permanency and efficiency of the Cigar Makers' International Union in its ability to bring light and improvement into their work and homes and become members of our International Union and thereby become part of the great labor movement of America at the earliest possible opportunity.

That the Cigar Makers' International Union now having opened its doors wide for the acceptance of all who are working in our trade and industry; and it is the duty of the unorganized to join with us and make common cause for immediate early improvement and final triumph; therefore be it

Resolved, That the local unions throughout our jurisdiction select committees of such members as may be necessary and that the duties of the committee and the unions shall be to conduct a "drive," or "Labor Forward Movement" in an organizing campaign in the industry and that every arrangement be made to put it into operation and be sustained on and after the forthcoming Labor Day, 1923.

The resolution was adopted by unanimous vote.

RESOLUTION NO. 23.

Voting No. 12.

Submitted by Committee on Resolutions.

Resolved, That the Convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union, by a unanimous vote, hereby extends our thanks to the following speakers who appeared before the convention:

Hon. C. M. Doty, Assistant Corporation Counsel, who extended a welcome on behalf of the city in the absence of Mayor Dever; to Mr. John Fitzpatrick, President of the Chicago Federation of Labor; to Mr. Victor Olander, Secretary of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, who spoke on behalf of the organized movement of the state; to John J. Manning, Secretary of the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor; to John H. Walker, President of the Illinois State Federation of Labor; to our International President and the officers and members of Local Union No. 14, of Chicago, for their cordial welcome extended to the convention, and for the manner in which they entertained the delegates and arranged for their comfort and convenience in every way.

The resolution was adopted by unanimous vote.

RESOLUTION NO. 24.

Voting No. 13.

Submitted by Committee on Constitution.

Whereas, The Twenty-fourth Convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America has approved the group insurance plan of the International Life & Trust Company; therefore be it

Resolved, That the International President and Vice-President be authorized to sign this contract for the Cigar Makers' International Union of America when the plan is ratified by the referendum.

RESOLUTION NO. 25.

Voting No. 14.

Resolved, That the President, with the Executive Board, be requested to formulate an amnesty resolution for persons who have been punished in any form for certain specified offenses; the resolution so formulated shall be submitted to a referendum of the membership of the Cigar Makers' International Union.

Organize the industry. It can be done.

52. 129—Strike out the entire section and insert the following new section:

Section 129. Upon the death of a member who has been such continuously for three months or longer period next preceding his death, the sum of one hundred dollars shall be paid toward defraying his funeral or cremation expenses. Said sum of one hundred dollars shall be paid to such person or persons as shall have paid or become liable for such funeral or cremation expenses, and if such expenses have not been paid, it shall be the duty of the officer paying such benefit to see that it is applied to the purpose for which it is intended.

However, any member of the International Union has the right to purchase additional death benefits in multiples of one hundred dollars up to four hundred dollars, so that the total death benefit on each member's life shall not exceed five hundred dollars.

This shall not apply to new members who are affected with chronic diseases or are over 50 years of age.

All death benefits that members over 70 years of age, who have joined the union before they had reached the age of 50 years, are entitled to on the adoption of this amendment, shall be paid by the C. M. I. U. instead of by the insurance company. Provided, that members over 70 years of age shall have paid the amount of dues provided for death benefit in excess of $100.

Members securing additional death benefits in multiples of $100 shall pay 5 cents a week additional dues for each $100. For example, for $100 additional, 45 cents a week; for $200 additional, 50 cents a week; for $300 additional, 55 cents a week, and for $400 additional, 60 cents a week.

Applicants for additional insurance who do not make application within six months after this provision takes effect shall be required to furnish evidence of insurability. This provision shall apply as well to new members.

Members purchasing additional death benefits in multiples of $100 shall pay 5 cents a week additional dues for each $100.

For example:

For $100 additional—45 cents a week.

For $200 additional—50 cents a week.

For $300 additional—55 cents a week.

For $400 additional—60 cents a week.

Persons who were members of the C. M. I. U. of A. and who have become disassociated therefrom for any cause, if again becoming members, shall not be permitted to increase the death benefit insurance above the amount to which they would have been entitled at the time of their separation from the C. M. I. U. of A.

(Note.—In voting on No. 52, Reference Section 139, you vote for the change of dues as appended below and the insurance proposition as herein provided as one question since the insurance proposition is based upon the following change in the sections relating to dues):

In Section 70 the 60c dues are changed to 40c.

In Section 71 the 40c dues are changed to 25c.

In Section 77 the 60c dues are changed to 40c and the 40c dues to 25c.

In Section 135 the 60c dues are changed to 40c and the 40c dues to 25c.

In Section 140-g the 40c dues are changed to 25c.

In Section 159 the 60c dues are changed to 40c.

53. 140—Strike out the entire section.

Voting 52

54. 140a—Strike out $75 on lines 5 and 7 and insert Voting 52 $100.

(Note.—All changes from $75 to $100 follow the adoption of Section 139 as proposed.)

55. 140a—As follows:

Voting 52 Section 140a. Should any member by the loss of one or both hands or by becoming totally and permanently blind become wholly and permanently incapacitated from performing any manual labor, the amounts above provided for in case of such member's death (excepting the $100 funeral or cremation expenses) shall be paid to such member, and upon the death of such member no death benefit shall be paid except the $100 withheld for funeral or cremation expenses.

In all cases of total disability where the member totally disabled has received the amount due, the International Union shall continue to pay the insurance on such member, obtain a release of all claims on such, and at the death of such totally disabled member the amount due on his death from the insurance company shall revert to the International Union.

56. 140b—Strike out seventy-five, in lines 7 and Voting 52 14, and insert one hundred.

65. 145—Strike out and insert the following:
 Voting 52

Sec. 145. Upon the death of any member entitled to death benefit, the secretary of the local union shall at once notify the International President, giving a full record of the membership of such member, as far as can be obtained from the books of such local union and forward his due book and card to the International office, together with a death certificate signed by the proper authorities. This certificate to be furnished by the beneficiary or beneficiaries. The International President shall compare such record with the records of the International office and notify the local union of his findings. The International Union shall order the benefit paid to the local union of which the deceased was a member.

66. 150—Strike out Section 150 and substitute the following:

Sec. 150. Each local union shall furnish through the shop collectors or committeemen (as the case may be) to all strictly union shops, free of charge, as many of the labels as may be required from week to week for all cigars actually made by members of the union and persons holding retiring cards. It shall be optional with local unions to grant the union label to any manufacturer whose name or firm name appears in or about such non-union cigars. It shall be optional with local unions to paste them on the boxes. But this shall not apply to the product of the automatic machine.

All label orders shall be signed by the shop collector; the label order blanks shall be furnished by the International President at cost. No shop shall be considered a strictly union shop unless the packers of the shop are members of the International Union, and the apprentice law of the local union be complied with.

All labels must be pasted upon the boxes before the boxes leave the factory.

67. 152—Strike out on line 6, five, and insert one.
 68. 153—Insert after the word writing, on line 4, to the local executive board.
 69. 153—Strike out the words commencing with the line 4 up to including convict, line 8, and add to section, all charges must be submitted in writing.
 70. 155—Strike out Section 155 and substitute the following:

Sec. 155. Manufacturers operating more than one shop shall not be allowed the use of the union label unless all shops operated by such manufacturers are strictly union shops.

Manufacturers removing their shop to another locality in time of difficulty shall not be allowed the use of the union label without the consent of the union where the original shop was located. Provided, however, that the local union under whose jurisdiction the shop has located may, in accordance with Section 213, appeal the question of reopening said shop to a popular vote of the local unions, stating the reasons therefor; a majority of all votes cast shall decide the question.

The union from whose jurisdiction the factory has been removed shall have a right to submit its reasons for objecting to the organization of the shop.

No brands of cigars made in both union and non-union shops shall be allowed to bear the union label.

Should a manufacturer lay off part or the whole force of his employees on account of lack of work, upon resuming work he shall not be permitted to engage new help before placing all of his former employees at work, who were not specifically discharged at the time of the layoff. Failing to comply with this provision after ample warning has been given the manufacturer by the union or the label committee, wherever such exists, his labels shall be stopped until it is complied with.

71. 156—Strike out and insert the following:

Sec. 156. The International President shall furnish each local union with a uniform label canceling stamp, and no other shall be used for stamping the union and factory number on the union label. All labels must bear the ink stamp. The union and factory number shall be movable; red ink shall be used on the right-hand end of the label by the financial secretary or a committee designated for that purpose.

The International President is authorized to allow unions to use machines for stamping the label, and to authorize a simpler machine for stamping the labels used on packs.

72. 157—Strike out all after the word "time," on line 7.

73. 159—Change 60c to 40c.

Voting 52

74. 159—Amend by striking out Section 159 and inserting the following: "On and after May 31, 1924, the $1 per capita allowed local unions on all 30 and 40 cents contributing members shall be placed in a separate fund for a period of two years, to be known as the General Advertising and Organization Fund. This fund shall be under the supervision of the International President who shall, with the approval of the International Executive Board, use this fund for organization purposes and contract for general advertising of the union label and distribution of the same."

75. 164—Amend Section 164 as follows:

CHARTERS.

Sec. 164. The International Executive Board is authorized to grant charters to local unions upon application of at least seven persons employed in the trade.

But not more than one charter shall be granted in any locality except where there are large numbers of members or the question of race would interfere with the growth of the International. The validity of such exception shall be determined by the International Executive Board and all the facts published in the Official Journal not later than 30 days after such decision. Such applicants must receive the same bill of prices as exists in said locality; and where two or more unions or cities join or are within a two-mile radius they shall adopt the same bill of prices, the lowest to adopt the highest bill. And failing to do so, the International President shall have the right to suspend said local union until this section has been complied with. All applications to be accompanied by a fee of $5. When an application for a charter is received from a place where a union exists, the Executive Board shall have power to ask for information concerning applicants.

Where two or more charters now exist and where such extra charter was issued for substantial reasons at the time of issue, and where such cause has been removed and a majority of all members of the union have expressed a wish to amalgamate into one union, the International President is authorized to make an investigation and to recall the charter if, in his judgment, the facts warrant, subject to an appeal.

76. 172—Amend by adding on next to last line after the word "thereafter" the following: "The financial secretary and treasurer of each local union shall be bonded in a responsible bonding company in an amount sufficient to protect the International Union from loss, the local union shall require such bond to be renewed annually. The premium for such bond shall not be a charge against the local union's percentage allowance. Any union violating this section shall be suspended.
77. 190—Amend by inserting after word approval, lines 3 and 4, the following: At which time the member fined may submit a statement of his case to the International Executive Board.
78. 207—Add to Section 207 the following: But nothing in said rules or regulations shall allow a local union to transact the business of said local union other than through a regular meeting of the members, or through the executive board.
79. 208—Strike out entire Section 208 and substitute the following:
Sec. 208. All persons learning cigar making, stogie making or packing, shall serve an apprenticeship, the time such an apprentice shall serve to be determined by the style of work learned. Those learning strictly hand work and packing shall serve not more than three (3) years; mold work not more than two (2) years; bunch-making and rolling not more than one (1) year; machine workers not more than six months.

Local unions shall judge the qualifications of apprentices who may make application for membership and pass upon same before maximum time has expired.

The secretary of each local union shall keep a record of all apprentices serving in strictly union shops, and other shops in the jurisdiction of the local union as far as possible. All apprentices shall be honorary members of the union until their term of apprenticeship has ended, when they must become dues paying members.

80. 212—Strike out entire section 212 and substitute the following:

"Referendum Amendments."

Sec. 213. Each local union or the International Executive Board shall have the right to propose, through the columns of the Official Journal, amendments to the International constitution. Each union is required to act upon every amendment at their meeting next following the receipt of the Journal containing such amendments, and report to the International President. Unions failing to comply with this provision shall be fined $5. But no union shall be fined for not taking action on a proposed amendment unless the same has been submitted by the International President by circular. Any amendment receiving the endorsement of at least twenty unions shall be submitted to a vote of local unions in the months of January, April, July and October of each year, and if adopted shall take effect and remain in force from the first day of the month succeeding the official publication of its adoption.

81. 213½—New Section 213½.

Sec. 213½. Every local union shall designate a meeting to be held in the months of January, April, July and October of each year for the purpose of voting on amendments proposed to the constitution, provided there are amendments to be voted on, through the Official Journal, and shall notify all members to be present at that stated meeting (retiring card holders to only vote on sick and death benefit amendments).

82. 219—Amend to read as follows:

WHEN CONVENTION AMENDMENTS TAKE EFFECT.

Sec. 219. The amendments to this constitution shall take effect and remain in full force from January 1 succeeding the convention, provided the same has been duly ratified at that time by a majority of the members of local unions under the jurisdiction of the International Union voting on the question. All resolutions adopted by the convention shall be submitted to a popular vote of the members, and if ratified by a majority of members voting, shall be printed in the constitution.

All amendments and resolutions shall be submitted to local unions for consideration at the earliest possible moment, and not later than November 15 following the convention.

The voting in local unions on amendments and resolutions shall commence November 15 and end December 15 following the convention.

83. ...—In response to a question the President stated, and it was unanimously agreed to by the convention, that wherever the word "he" is used in the constitution or any document or agreement it also means "she."

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members, who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also as per section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member; if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

Notice of the special assessment of $1 on all 30c and 60c members and 50c on Class B members, in compliance with Section 93 (a) of the Constitution, is herewith given. This assessment takes effect Sept. 24, 1923, and may be paid in two weekly installments. New initiates who have not been members for four months are exempt from all assessments. All who join after Sept. 24 are exempt from payment of the September assessment. Class B members do not have to pay any international assessments until they have been members for six months. Forty-cent beneficiary members do not have to pay the special strike fund assessment. Members out of work are not exempt from this assessment.

UNION NOTES

Labor Day, 1923, Union 129, Denver, Colo., turned out about 150 in the parade through the principal business streets, furnishing large touring cars as well as private cars for most all the members except those that carried the banner and large flag. Most of the machines were decorated with LABEL advertising including a float gotten up by some of our members which had a live goat with the words above, "We've got the open shoppers' goat." Wilfred Bessett, owner of the goat, got up the float with the assistance of our president, T. P. Coggins, charging only for material used. There was a large turn out of unions and no doubt we got a good bit of advertising on the showing made by us. We should have had 75 more members in line but for reasons of their own they were not there. Some contend that parading does no good, most of us believe that it does. After the parade a large celebration and barbecue was indulged in at Lakeside resort, ticket sales showing that over 20,000 persons attended. Two automobiles were drawn besides other prizes given. The occasion was a complete success.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted herein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices, may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues of 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such member shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $8.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter, in the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearsages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a securing employment in a factory using the label or which pays the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 180. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessment levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1931.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. This label shall be light blue in color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at last two weeks. No other changes.

The whole industry is expect-Watchful antly watching and waiting for Waiting. the popular vote on the changes in our constitution and particularly so union employers and many ex-union employers who have been forced out of business.

The big non-union employers who have enjoyed a monopoly caused by our short-sighted policy are hoping that the progressive legislation proposed will not be adopted.

The voting will be either for the best interests of the union wage earners or for the continued monopoly of non-union, low-wage, long-hours-of-labor manufacturers and their further enrichment at the expense of the wage earners.

There is no question that the great majority have seen the light, realize the situation, and will be found voting for the wage earners' best interests.

The President of the Joint Ad-Strikes. visory Board of Tampa, Florida, has seen fit to circularize our membership in opposition to the amendment to Section 87 of the Constitution. The amendment proposed in this case reads as follows: -

Amend by adding after the last line the following paragraph: "Any member of the International Union who goes on strike or ceases work pending approval of any strike application made by the local union under whose jurisdiction he or she is working shall not be entitled to any strike benefits, even though the application to strike may afterwards be approved."

Section 87 as now constituted clearly provides that no member or union shall be considered on strike unless such strike shall have been approved by the proper authorities of the International Union. The amendment offered was for the purpose of providing some specific penalty for the violation of the present law. Even under the present law the President would have the right to render a decision embodying almost any kind of a penalty for the violation of what is the present law. It was thought better to provide a specific penalty as per the amendment rather than to leave any punishment for infraction of the law to the judgment and discretion of the executive.

The law as amended reads as follows. The amendment is in brackets:

Sec. 87. Unions whose applications to strike was not approved, shall have no right to make a second application appertaining to the same case for a term of three months, dating from the rejection of the first. And no member or union shall be considered on strike unless said strike shall have been approved by the proper authorities of the International Union. [Any member of the International Union who goes on strike or ceases work pending approval of any strike application made by the local union under whose jurisdiction he or she is working shall not be entitled to any strike benefits even though the application to strike may afterward be approved.]

The foregoing section as amended is in the line of discipline that is so sadly needed especially in unorganized districts where the membership being in the minority are often content to let the non-unionists lead them, and the non-unionists being under no responsibility and no restraint often bring about a strike for cause or no cause, never or seldom counting the consequences or the chances for success.

The most serious stumbling block to organization in Tampa in the past has been the fact that they, because of the action of non-unionists, are too often rushed on strike for cause or no cause. Several years ago the President of the Manufacturers' Association of Tampa told me that if the cigar makers of Tampa would organize in the International Union and then live up to the laws of the International Union the manufacturers would welcome such organization. He further said that until such time as they would live up to their own laws especially reference going on ill-timed and ill-advised strikes the manufacturers could not deal with them as an organization.

The impulse and the inclination to rush on strike is inborn and ingrown into the very conscience of the average cigar maker.
We have all had the inclination and the most of us have given full sway to that inclination sometime in our lives. This impulse has resulted in more harm to the welfare of the workers in the union than any other one thing that the members or the unions have ever done. Nothing is gained by giving way to the impulse and the enthusiasm but in most cases losses of a serious nature have been the result. In nearly all cases, however, where the union calmly deliberates the question of strike, appoints its committee, and meets the employers and face to face, threshes out the differences, they have been the gainers. Hundreds of strikes have been lost because of the impulse and the rushing out on strike, and many shops have been lost to the union as a consequence of these ill-timed, ill-advised actions. Many such strikes that were lost would never have taken place if the unions had remained at work and through committees had met the employers in an effort to settle the questions involved, through mediation, conciliation, and voluntary arbitration.

Many non-unionists in certain well known sections have no thought for the union except as a means to strike and that for cause or no cause and will pay no attention to the union nor to joining it so long as the union members and the union let them have their own way as to when the strike will commence and for what cause and when it shall cease. Hundreds of instances can be mentioned in these sections where some chap who is feeling peeved or suffering from indigestion or over indulgence could come into the shop, make a couple of cigars, and then mount his table and holler for a strike, and if there happen to be a few others feeling slightly the same they would rise on their feet, and it is then only a question of minutes before the whole shop is out on strike, and in nine cases out of ten without any specific real grievance that could not and would not have been remedied if they had remained at work and taken the matter up with the employer. Some of these strikes it is true usually last only one or two days, others last forever, but they are always a source of annoyance to the employers who bitterly complain that stock is often left on the tables and that the percentage of loss through lack of care amounts to a considerable sum in the course of a year.

Until the unions and the members thereof boldly say to these non-unionists "We won't strike except in compliance with our own laws; if you want us to strike with you you must become members of the International Union and be guided by its laws in the matter of strikes and otherwise," the non-unionists will have no respect for or confidence in you. They will have to be told that hereafter we are going to be guided by the laws of the union instead of by the non-unionists. Such a plan will be better for the union man, better for the non-unionists, and finally better for the union, the employer, and for all concerned. And it is for these reasons that the convention saw fit to offer the amendment which for the good of all concerned, including those who complain against it, should be adopted.

In my report to the Chicago convention I said:

"On previous occasions while discussing this important phase of our activity I have urged that fair and honorable methods be adopted whereby all of the material facts in connection with contemplated strike or lock-out difficulties can be placed before the members and voters in the strike or lockout applications. I have said and here repeat that no local union should be allowed to pay strike benefit even when their application is approved without first meeting the employers and endeavoring to settle the difficulty without a strike, by means of mediation, conciliation, and arbitration. If this principle had been adhered to it would have saved us many shops, many dollars, and much misery, want, and privation.

"I regard the right to strike as one of the fundamental principles of economic activity and a right that should never be surrendered. It is labor's best friend. It should not be misused or abused. It is a two-edged sword that unless handled with discretion and vision it is very liable to cut more deeply in the direction which we did not intend than in the direction we had aimed at."

I again repeat that the strike is labor's best friend. It should be so regarded and protected as such.

The Committee on Strikes, in their report to the convention among other things said:

"The problem of strikes and expense entailed to the International Union and the danger incurred by ill-advised strikes or misinterpretation of the constitutional laws which very frequently cause a serious breach between employer and employes is a matter of grave importance and should be given most serious consideration by the delegates to this convention.

"The right to strike is one of the sacred weapons of the workers but should be employed only as a last resort and when mediation and conciliation have failed to adjust the grievance.

"We declare ourselves as opposed to independent strikes which even though successful do much to destroy confidence in the International Union and militate against its organic laws, and strongly recommend that measures be adopted to restrain our members from participating in unauthorized strikes contrary to the law, and where reasonable time has not been given for consideration of grievances by representatives of the union and employers to adjudicate all matters pertaining to the controversy or grievances involved."

The very best thing that can possibly be done for Tampa or any other section is the adoption of this amendment. If it is adopted and Tampa lives up to it they, after it has been tried, will say that it is the best piece of legislation we ever adopted. Most of the union people in Tampa believe in this. It is mostly the element that stay out of the union, that are unorganized, that don't want such a law.

The safest way for us to do is to comply with our own judgment based on past experience, and this is one of them, and this is a time when our own judgment and experience backed by the well nigh unanimous vote of the convention should prevail.

Endorse We have reached the outstanding period in the rise
Convention and development of the Cigar Amendments. Makers' International Union of A. The whole future of usefulness and immediate progress is wrapped up in the amendments adopted by the Chicago convention and now in your hands for ratification. To those who believe in the organization of our trade and placing the International Union in a position where it can be of still greater benefit and increasing helpfulness to the exploited wage earners in the cigar and tobacco industry the answer must be in the affirmative—vote yes on the amendments.

The convention saw the light and after mature deliberation and thorough debate the delegates, aroused to the necessity of properly amending our constitution, manfully and courageously adopted all of the provisions that make for progress, that make it possible for the International Union to more fully and completely organize the wage earners in our industry. They foresaw that without an unrestricted opportunity to go out into the field of those who are now unorganized and bring them into the union its future growth would be limited. Of this there is no question. History proves the assertion that we must remove all barriers that act as restrictions to the admission of all wage earners upon an absolute equality. The history of all other unions prove this statement to be true.

We can not hope to accomplish the results by going after the matter of rehabilitation and reshaping the laws of the International Union by piecemeal tactics. The whole scheme of salvation, progress, and advancement is predicated upon the adoption of the whole plan adopted by the Chicago convention and now submitted for your ratification. The ratification of the proposed amendments by your vote will positively inflict no injury upon a single member of the International Union. On the contrary a ratification of the amendments will prove beneficial and helpful to all unions and all sections of the country in maintaining and advancing their present position. To defeat any part of the scheme will react against and injure those who have mistaken notions of what the proposed law means to them.

No section of the country can be secure under the present arrangements, present laws, and present conditions. The non-union product is steadily and stealthily but surely creeping in to all so-called well-organized cities, towns, and districts. There are more scab cigars sold and consumed in the New England states today than at any other time in the last thirty-five years. This is an absolute fact and can not be successfully denied.

The remedy is organization of the unorganized districts. The means to do this have been presented to you by the action of the Chicago convention. Understanding the facts and the principles involved in the case your answer we feel sure will be in the affirmative.

Give the International Union a chance to grow, by the adoption of the methods adopted by the Chicago convention, and a transformation for good will rapidly take the place of the present stagnation in so far as the organization of the industry is concerned.

Bear in mind that it is not a question of sacrificing any one section. An old, old saying is that a chain is no stronger than its weakest link. The chain of union shops and union towns will never remain safe and secure for any length of time until the weaker links in the chain, the non-union centers, are organized and taken out of competition with the union factories.

It is not a question of sacrificing any one section of the country. The proposed new laws are a protection to these various sections and the opposition coming from any section to these laws is predicated upon a misunderstanding of the whole economic situation, and is really an opposition that will react against and a boomerang that will come back with terrific force and crush and finally destroy the conditions that they now seek to preserve.

Every member of the International Union who has the true spirit of unionism and the true spirit of unity and regard for his fellow workmen must of necessity vote yes upon every proposed amendment to the constitution.

As the message went out from the Chicago convention it had a buoyant effect upon the minds and hearts of our members throughout the jurisdiction of the International Union. They are looking forward with hopeful anticipation for the memorable and historic referendum vote which will unshackle the false chains that have heretofore and are now hindering our progress and our march into a more complete organization, in which the interests of all become the paramount issue and thought.

The old adage of "All for each and each for all" is at stake in the coming referendum vote. Even the dullest must know and he does know that the building of a wall around any community can not protect that community. There are no lines of demarkation in the manufacture, the sale, and the consumption of cigars and tobacco. Some communities may attempt to surround themselves with a Chinese wall but just so sure as they try to do this they will find themselves in the position of the heathen Chinese—hopelessly lost. Let the Chinese walls and the barriers in our constitution be relegated to the everlasting past.

Let us adopt the proposed amendments to the constitution and go forward with renewed determination, faith in ourselves, and confidence in ourselves, for the sole purpose of benefiting and helping and protecting all who work as wage earners in the cigar and tobacco industry. Do this and you are performing your full duty. Vote yes on the proposed amendments to the constitution and earn your own self-satisfaction and the everlasting gratitude of the defenseless workers in the industry.

Progressive Laws Some of the local unions of New England under the leadership of Union 97, Boston, issued a circular addressed to the members of the Cigar Makers' International Union petitioning the membership to vote against the removal of the optional clause from Section 61, and against the amendment to Section 155 reference manufacturers' moving from one locality to another.

The optional clause and the other objection, the amendment to Section 155, do not apply only to the unions of New England. Many of the locals throughout the country have the optional clause and the other restrictions that have positively stunted the growth of the International Union, and in many, many of these places a strict adherence to the optional clause and other restrictive laws has driven the union shop out of these localities.

It is well to remember that this does not apply to only one particular locality and that the whole country is more or less affected, so much so that the stock argument of non-union employers to bunch breakers and rollers is that "if you join the union you will not be permitted to work in any other place." This is a little overdone, but it serves the purpose. Not only has the union shop disappeared from many places throughout the length and breadth of our country, but the membership has steadily fallen off in New England, and this under the present laws and conditions. The membership in the New England unions at one time was 6,013, while now it is 4,687.

It is impossible to make a constitution that will suit every member or every one of the unions. In order to be successful and serve the best interests of all we must make our laws so that they will meet and serve the best interests of the great majority. When that is done each member and each union in the final analysis is the better off for it.

As the union membership has dropped and the number of union shops has decreased because of that very thing that a few of the unions of New England desire to have retained in the constitution there has been a gradual increase in these localities of non-union made cigars. At no time in the last thirty or more years have there been more non-union cigars consumed in Boston and other big union centers than there are right now.

The great menace to the members of the unions in any section of the country is the unorganized. The thing to do is to so shape our laws that we may organize and meet conditions as they exist in the cigar trade as a whole. The sooner this menace of the unorganized to any places is removed the better it will be for these places. And don't forget, too, that some of the big union manufacturers of several localities have seen fit to move to other places, and, what is more to the point and has a direct bearing, there is a wail of discontent among union manufacturers in several well-known places.

The amendment to Section 155, which the unions petition you to defeat is the proposition that "Manufacturers removing their shop to another locality in time of difficulty should not be allowed the use of the union label without the consent of the union where the original shop was located." This in reality protects the right of the locality where the shop was originally located. The amendment provides further, "The local union under whose jurisdiction the shop has located may in accordance with Section 213 appeal the question of reopening the shop to the popular vote of local unions stating the reasons therefor. A majority of all votes shall decide the question. The union from whose jurisdiction the shop has been removed shall have a right to state its objections to the organization of the shop."

The latter part of the section with the proviso in it fully protects the rights of the union from whose locality the shop has removed. It leaves the question of reopening the shop as a union shop in the locality to which it has removed to the judgment of the majority of the members of the International Union. Nothing could be fairer than this. Can any union seriously object to placing their case in the hands of a disinterested membership? Only two unions would be involved, the original union, which has a chance to present its case, and the union where the shop has located. The other five hundred unions, more or less, are not directly affected, and consequently their judgment and vote on this question would be impartial and fair.

There is absolutely no question that the jury, which is the disinterested membership at large, will always see to it that justice is done.

We have had a case where a shop moved out of the locality and the union in the locality from which the shop moved still claimed jurisdiction and drew strike benefit for over two years.

A mighty problem is at stake. A well thought out, well grounded, fair, square, substantial plan has been proposed by the Chicago convention whereby we can organize the cigar and tobacco industries, and local selfishness grounded upon a mistaken idea should not be permitted to stand in the way.

The present plan has been tried and found wanting. A new plan predicated upon facts and experience is proposed. It is not an experiment and should be adopted. The old plan has been tried and found wanting. No one can successfully deny it. The best interests of all wage earners in the industry demand that the change be made, a change that will not injure anybody, but, on the contrary, will protect and advance the best interests of the workers as a whole.

The Educational Committee of the Cigar and Tobacco Industry of Boston issued a pamphlet entitled "Program of the Cigar and Tobacco Industry" just before the last convention. This pamphlet was signed by C. J. Blockland, secretary, who was a delegate from 97, Boston, to the Chicago convention, and was defended by two other delegates from that union. In the pamphlet, among other things, they say:

Our difficulties originate in the fact that we have failed to keep pace in our union with the development of our industry. Until the '60s of the 19th century the cigar industry was on purely a handicraft basis. The skilled worker made the finished product throughout. Then, due to the scarcity of mechanics, necessity, that fertile mother of invention, produced a mold with which to shape cigars. The result was that with the same number of skilled workers a greater production could be attained. This new method of making cigars evolved into a system of buncmaking and rolling. This innovation, by bringing about specialization and making possible the introduction of semi-skilled and unskilled labor into the industry, greatly weakened the craft power of the skilled mechanics. Then came the suction table, the endless rubber belt, and other devices, all tending in the same direction to eliminate the highly-trained cigarmaker, who took several years to learn his trade, and to supplant him with labor requiring only a few months' experience. Little by little the skilled cigarmaker has had to give way to the half-cigar makers, the bunch makers and rollers. And now comes the most revolutionary innovation of all, the automatic cigar making machine. This threatens to undermine skill altogether in our trade.

In the early days of our industry the cigar maker, by virtue of his skill monopoly, was able to win his demands quite easily. But the introduction of specialization and labor-saving devices has weakened this natural strategic position and made his fight much more difficult. Moreover, as his power has diminished that of the employers has enormously increased through the trustification of our industry. In order to have made real success our Union should have kept abreast of these developments. It should have remodeled its policies and structures as the process of skill elimination and the concentration of capital went on in the industry. But this it has not done. The result is the deplorable state of weakness that the trade is now in. This program aims to point out some of the failures of our Union administration and to indicate definitely what must be done to make our organization a real power able to effectively defend our interests and to steadily raise our standard of living."

Here we have it out of their own mouths. Mr. Blockland voted against the progressive propositions proposed at the convention, but which he advocated in his signed pamphlet. The union of which he is a member and which sent him as a delegate to the convention with full knowledge of his ideas on these important matters are asking other unions to vote against progressive laws which their delegates out of their own mouths say are the things that we should adopt.

Fellow Workmen:

Your International Executive Board has individually and jointly given deep and mature consideration to the work of and the splendid propositions that came up out of the last convention and are now submitted for your ratification. The president's report published in full in the September issue of the Official Journal sets forth an array of facts concerning the development of the cigar industry and particularly the manner in which cigars are now manufactured. It shows the drift of the trade and points out irrefutable statements as to cause and effect. His report points out the increase in non-union shops and gives reasons for their growth.

Delegates to the convention, with the high purpose in view of rehabilitating the International Union, manfully set to work to change the laws so as to accomplish the desired result. Your Board are of the unanimous opinion that they were successful.

An impartial review of the present law and our present conditions warrants us in saying that it is our best judgment that all of the amendments proposed should be ratified. The whole plan of reconstructing the constitution is dependent upon the progressive laws proposed. One is dependent upon the other. All proposed amendments should therefore be adopted; otherwise we shall have a non-workable plan and be back at precisely the same old state.

All restrictive laws must be removed from the constitution if we are to function as we should. Indisputable facts have been advanced to show that it is imperatively necessary that the death benefit laws be changed. The adoption of progressive laws reference organization and the methods of manufacturing as proposed by the convention and the changes in the law reference the payment of death benefit will save the union and place it in a position to rapidly advance and will save to us all the death benefit which many have cherished for years.

We have an abiding faith in the International Union, but in order that it may go forward in the fulfillment of its mission it must have broad, comprehensive and progressive laws; otherwise it cannot function to its capacity.

We have faith in your judgment. We feel that it is your desire to do the best possible to protect and to advance the best interests of the wage earners in our industry. We have faith in your loyalty and in your intelligence and we confidently look forward to an affirmative vote on all the propositions submitted for your endorsement.

As industry goes forward with measured stride, the problems of labor become more complicated and require study, vision, determination, courage and carefully thought out action. The toilers operating under the referendum system can not escape their full share of responsibility resting upon them in the making of laws which govern. In our case our chosen representatives have pointed the way. The question is now squarely up to the popular vote. The result of the voting upon the proposed amendments rests in your own hands. It is a mighty responsibility. It should be heroically and unselfishly met.

Successful industrial establishments are free from unnatural restrictions. They are free to act in a manner that will meet natural evolution constantly going on. If they do not so act, they soon fall into the hands of the sheriff. Trade unions must be free from antiquated restrictive laws if they expect to keep pace with evolution in industry. Freedom of action, always consistent with orderly development and organization, makes for accomplishment and is best for all concerned.

The claim that the American Federation of Labor opposes effective federation of workers, or any and all forms of industrial organization, is one of the leading deceptions that communists and other revolutionists present to wage workers of this country.

As these revolutionists recognize no moral code that will postpone the establishment of their communistic society, they glibly state absolute untruths when fighting an opponent. Their mental attitude—"nothing must stop the revolution"—justifies them in brazenly ignoring facts as they assure wage workers that the A. F. of L. insists on small groups of craft unions, instead of having workers united in powerful combinations. This is part of the revolutionists' grand "strategy"— of attempting to weaken the A. F. of L. wherever possible.

At the Portland convention of the A. F. of L. this policy was again exposed, and it was declared that "an examination of the roster of the affiliated organizations of the A. F. of L. disproves that false imputation and stigmatizes those who would advance such untruths either as being ignorant or deliberate frauds."

The convention unanimously adopted a committee's report which included a recommendation that the executive council's report on this subject be carefully read. Attention was also called to the implication in several "amalgamation" resolutions "that affiliated 'crafts' unions can not cooperate, federate or amalgamate" because of some fancied power of resistance alleged to be exercised by the A. F. of L. Again, an examination of the records of the A. F. of L. brands such an implication as false and untrue.

"It is not, however, so much the false imputations and imputations involved in these so-called 'amalgamation' resolutions that they should move us to renewed vigor and drastic action as it is the motives of the prime movers who are continually urging these proposals upon the councils of labor," said the committee.

"Demonstrative proof is overwhelming that those who are constantly at work dividing the organized workers on abstract discussions of forms of organizations and spreading the poison of suspicion against the officers of trade unions, have never been loyal trade unionists and have always antagonized the trade union movement. In addition, the self-acclaimed 'amalgamationists' are not bent on amalgamation, but upon the disruption and destruction of the organized labor movement of America. In this they serve well the employers who would again assume complete mastery over the destinies of the wage earners.

"The purpose and aim of these destructionists, as well as their standing within our communities is no less savory than that of private detectives who would sell the soul of their fellow man for the jingle of gold. In the religious world such men are ex-communicated. In the political world such men are ostracized from society, if not treated more severely through the operation of laws relating to treason. In the industrial world we have tolerated them altogether too freely.

"These sinister agents, propagandists and destructionists of a foreign foe to our American institutions should be singled out wherever found and the light of day be thrown upon their nefarious work."—Weekly News Letter, A. F. of L.

The following clipping, culled from a daily paper, shows that employers are rapidly embracing the group life insurance plan:

New York, Oct. 26.—Julius Kruttschnitt, chairman of the executive committee of the Southern Pacific Company, announced today the awarding of a contract for group life insurance covering the 90,000 employees of its various lines. The amount of insurance covered by this one policy may exceed $100,000,000, he said, far exceeding in size any other known policy.

The insurance, which probably will be effective Jan. 1, is to be placed under a contributory plan. The company will provide without cost to the employee an initial amount of insurance for all employees who have been in service six months or longer.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Safeguarding the crib—symbol of helplessness and dependency—was the original purpose of life insurance.

The early era of life insurance as a selfish commodity for "me, my wife, and our son John" has been merged into a period of ministering to the collective brother, whose keeper we are.

Group insurance covering industrial wage-earners, pension systems for the benefit of retiring employees, as an incentive to thrift and good citizenship, are all evidences of the adoption by employers of life insurance as a part of their welfare program for employees.

In the State of New York the number of life insurance policies in force exceeds the entire population.

At the end of 1922 there were 12,455,000 insurance policies in force. The estimated population of New York State for 1922, based upon the figures for the preceding year, was 10,750,000.

The total amount of insurance outstanding in New York State at the close of 1922 was $8,154,655,800.

In 1922 life insurance distributions in the United States and Canada totaled $1,304,293,421.

The amount of fraternal insurance in force is decreasing—the total now is $342,000,000 less than two years ago.

Report of Delegates to American Federation of Labor Convention, Portland, Ore., Oct. 1-12, Inclusive, 1923.

The Forty-third Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor was held at Portland, Ore., where the representatives of organized labor met in annual session to deliberate on the many vital problems concerning the welfare and interest of the vast army of workers of our land, and to promote legislation for economic and political advancement, and assist in the amelioration of the onerous conditions that exist in many lines of industry which prevent the progress of society in reaching a higher and nobler plain; and to enact progressive and constructive measures conducive to the greatest good for the greatest number in the onward march of progress along sound, sane and constructive lines in achieving the ambitions and aspirations leading to the final goal sought by the workers—and hoped for in the dream of a better civilization which organized labor and its great fundamental principles shall be most instrumental in bringing about.

The Forty-third Annual Convention will stand out as one of the most important conventions that organized labor has ever held in the annals of the labor movement of this country. Every subject of interest which was presented by resolution, or in the Report of the Executive Council, was deliberated on with an earnest consideration to bring about redress of grievances or a solution of the problems involved.

The Report of the Executive Council covering 124 pages was exhaustive and comprehensive, dealing with concrete questions of vital interest in every category affecting the rights and interests of the wage workers. All adverse legislation militating against organized labor and the oppressed workers was analyzed, and recommendations proposed for the elimination of such enactments.

Never in the history of the United States has there been such a persistent agitation for the dissemination of insidious propaganda and an attempt on the part of corporations and large employers of labor to destroy the ethics of the trade union movement and thwart all progress that has been made by the wage workers of this country.

Time and space will not permit us to make remote reference to all the numerous subjects that were covered by the Report of the Executive Council, but we suggest that each member of organized labor avail himself of the privilege of perusing that report.

Wm. F. Dunne was expelled from the convention because of his opposition and bitter antagonism against the policy and principle of the trades union movement directed against the A. F. of L. and affiliated International Unions, his unwarranted, malicious and vicious attacks expressed publicly in oral and written statement; and his support of communistic and I. W. W. philosophy, uttered with intent and purpose for the destruction and overthrow of the trades union movement of America. Motion was made by Delegate Murray of the U. M. W. of A. to unseat Dunne, the vote was taken by roll call, and resulted in, Yeas, 27,837; No, 108, the motion being carried overwhelmingly. He was requested to vacate the hall.

There were no changes made in the personnel of the officers of the Executive Council, as all were retained in office.

The grand old veteran of the labor movement, Samuel Gompers, was re-elected as president of the A. F. of L. for the 40th term. His selection was unanimous, as no opposing candidate contested for the honors. As a tribute of recognition and appreciation for his undaunted courage and valuable service in constructive trades unionism as a moulder and builder of democracy, equality, elevation of the toilers, and justice to all, he stands pre-eminent; like a giant oak of the forest he has weathered the corroding powers of time standing erect and majestic under his three score ten and three years, with virility and concept keen and alert, with mental vision broad and purposeful to cope with the vast problems that confront labor. In service he has given excellent account of his stewardship and the confidence reposed in him.

(By his co-delegates; Mr. Gompers did not participate in that portion of this report that refers to him.)

The convention took action on the question of a political labor party in non-concurring in the resolution, thus reaffirming the position and declaration of previous conventions, endorsing by its action the principles initiated by the American Federation of Labor in its non-partisan political program.

Space will not permit us to make as comprehensive a resumé in this report as we should like, but all members of organized labor will find it to their material interest to read the proceedings of the convention, and we suggest that all members procure copies of the proceedings, which are ready for distribution, and will be furnished by Secretary Morrison, American Federation of Labor Building, Washington, D. C.

There were 390 delegates in attendance, representing 94 National and International Unions, 4 department, 28 state branches, 59 central bodies, 14 local trades and federal unions, and 3 fraternal delegates. There are represented in and affiliated to the American Federation of Labor 108 National and International Unions, 4 departments, 49 state federations, 318 local department councils, 901 city central bodies, 36,554 local unions, with a paid-up average membership for the fiscal year 1923 of 2,926,468.

There were 104 resolutions introduced. Forty-seven were concurred in; 15 non-concurred in. Thirty-three were referred to the Executive Council for its consideration and action. A number of the resolutions were considered jointly by the various committees, as the subject matter was contained in others, and were disposed of either by adoption, rejection or referring to the Executive Council. Four resolutions were withdrawn after being introduced by consent of the convention, 5 required no action, as the subject matter had been covered in similar resolutions, or some previous definite action taken in convention dealing with the subject matter.

Only a brief synopsis of the most important resolutions will be referred to in this report.

The following resolutions were concurred in:

No. 84, instructing the Executive Council, A. F. of L., to appoint a committee for the purpose of making a survey of living and working conditions of the workers in the Philippine Islands.

No. 25, urging the A. F. of L. to unite all of its affiliated organizations for a great organization drive in all localities and industries.

No. 45, recommending the acceptance of traveling cards or such other evidence of membership in good standing to admit applicants as members without initiation in other crafts.

No. 34, that the Executive Council co-operate in securing from Congress the necessary legislation granting equipment allowance to rural carriers.

No. 42, opposing the grant to allow corporations to monopolize water power in the State of California.

No. 60, supporting the bakers and confectionery workers in its contest against the anti-union attitude of the Ward Baking Company.

No. 78, that the secretary of the American Federation of Labor be instructed to issue a circular setting forth grievances against the Winchester Repeating Arms Co. of New Haven and Whitehead Hoag Co. of Newark, N. J., manufacturers of badges, labels, etc.

No. 79, requesting that International journals give space for the advertisements of union label, shop card and button as a medium of giving first consideration to union-made products.

No. 90, that all International Unions, Central Labor Bodies, and Local Unions, take the initiative to co-operate with other civic bodies in furthering the community recreation program.

No. 86, that all National and International officers, organizers and representatives, of labor use their best endeavor to have all office work done by members of the Office Workers' Union.

No. 99, that the Red Cross in all its various services be commended for its noteworthy principles and unselfish devotion to the cause of humanity.

No. 72, condemning the Fascist movement in Italy, led by Benito Mussolini, or any other form of tyranny, either in Italy or any other country.

No. 17, providing for the election of all Federal Judges by a vote of the people.

No. 15, instructing the American Federation of Labor to work for the enactment of a law providing for the pensioning of workers in industry.

No. 27, providing for the liberation of Thomas Mooney and Edward Billings, now incarcerated in prison in California.

No. 87, that those who serve the nation in time of war deserve from a grateful country rewards in a fitting manner for services rendered.

No. 33, instructing the president of the American Federation of Labor to conduct an investigation of all forms of insurance and death benefit systems now provided by National and International Unions, especially group insurance, and authorize the council to recommend group insurance if the investigation warrants.

No. 43, requesting the American Federation of Labor to co-operate with the affiliated government employees for the purpose of establishing the Saturday half-holiday observation in government establishments.

The following resolutions were non-concurred in:

No. 29, calling for the adoption of the 1st day of May as the recognized Labor Day of America, to conform with class-conscious workers of the world.

No. 44, calling for the endorsement of the principles of Industrial Unionism as against craft unionism, and to bring about an amalgamation of all workers into an industrial union.

No. 69, declaring that labor must form a political party of its own, based upon the trades unions and farmers and other organizations.

No. 49, urging the Government of the United States to take steps leading to the resumption of official trade relations with Russia and the eventual recognition of the Russian government.

No. 68, insisting upon certain drastic legislative enactments governing the control and regulation of Compensation Laws.

No. 46, requesting that the organic law of the Federation be changed, so that affiliation of all local unions be made compulsory with central bodies.

Yours fraternally,

SAMUEL GOMPERS,
G. W. PERKINS,
W. A. CAMPBELL,
R. S. SEXTON,

Delegates.

Washington, D. C.

It has long been the proud boast of American labor that its structure is the most stable, its policies the most constructive and its philosophy the soundest of all labor movements.

For a Democracy of Industry.

"What we have observed is that the period ending with the beginning of the world war found political democracy in its fullest state of development, while the close of that period of overwhelming upheaval marked the opening of the period of intelligent demand and living need for industrial democracy. The close of the war marked for us a turning point in human relations and threw forth in bold relief the inadequacy of existing forms and institutions. Henceforth trade unionism has a larger message and a larger function in society. Henceforth the movement for the organization of the workers into trade unions has a deeper meaning than the mere organization of groups for the advancement of group interests, however vital that function may yet remain.

"Henceforth the organization of the workers into trade unions must mean the conscious organization of one of the most vital functional elements for enlightened participation in a democracy of industry whose purpose must be the extension of freedom, the enfranchisement of the producer as such, the rescue of industry from chaos, profiteering and purely individual whim, including individual incapacity, and the rescue of industry also from the domination of and purely political bodies.

All Must Organize.

More and more the organizations of industry are federating and coming together. More and more the unorganized are organizing in every field, each according to their surroundings and their needs. Only wage-earners may enter the trade unions, but the men and women in every field may and must organize in their own fields and for their own function in life.

Selfishness is Discouraged.

Industry will find a way to be served. It will go on making its laws, and gradually these laws will come to represent more fully the aspirations of all useful people. They will less and less represent the selfish aims of the groups immediately concerned.

Employers will continue to make laws. Workers will continue to make laws. Professional groups will continue to make laws. Employers and workers, sitting together, will continue to make laws, and less and less will separate groups make laws without regard to the welfare of other groups or the welfare of the people generally. The laws so made are the laws that are shaping the future of active life. They are the laws that most vitally affect the masses of the people and most surely protect the foundations of civilization. The laws made by employers and trade unions are the laws that reach intimately into the homes of our people, bringing additional material well-being and consequent additional spiritual, moral and ethical well-being. Through these laws standards of integrity are constantly raised and harmful practices are constantly being eliminated.

In this direction true progress lies.

American labor sees clearly the trend of our whole industrial organization. Its philosophy is fully in keeping with that trend.

Examining carefully, it is found that industry is working out for itself a great body of constructive law. This law is designed to make things work. Not all of this law is wise, but its main tendency is constructive and progressive. It is made by men who know their field and their subject. Political law, where it touches industry, for the most part fumbles and retards. The first idea of the political lawmaker is to forbid something, to forbid trusts, to forbid strikes, to forbid the very things that make for progress and the development of civilization. Modern industry must have supervision, and there must be a guardianship for the people in general against attempted predatory conduct on the part of any compact, powerful single group. So we witness the spectacle of congress rising in its place with an indiscriminate desire to forbid. It is natural to forbid. The bully forbids the cautious one; the older child forbids the younger. Power craves exercise.

Instruments of Repression.

Political government scarcely knows what is going on in the world of industry. It thrusts out its agencies of repression, palpably ignorant—or shall we say unenlightened—as to the reasons for so doing and the possible consequences of so doing. The railroad labor board was such a thrust. That it has now subsided into almost complete inactivity is the outright proof of that assertion.

It is by no means discreditable to political government that industry is building so rapidly toward an order of its own in its distinct world. The only discreditable thing is for our citizenship to close its eyes to what is happening.

Political government has brought us political democracy and the guarantee of essential human freedom. It will always have its vital functions to perform. That it cannot function outside its logical field is not discreditable. It is merely natural and in conformity with natural law. Political government can save and safeguard itself, but it cannot of itself save and safeguard our great industrial order. Industrial democracy must come to save industrial society just as political democracy had to come to guarantee and save political society and the rights of men and women in political society.

Must Have Conscious Co-Operation.

In the coming there will be inaptitudes worked upon many men and women. Against these we must fight as best we may, but we shall not be able to fight intelligently and constructively unless we are aware of what is taking place. We must help consciously and intelligently, but blindly, with mere destructive results.

What is necessary is the perfection and completion of all the organizations that really function as a part of the industrial world. This includes not only labor, but those who are charged with the duties of management, those in the various engineering professions, those who serve in clerical capacities, those engaged in the various branches of distribution—in short, all who contribute usefully in the making and distributing of the multitude of products used by humanity.

It must be the task of each group to organize in its own field, in its own way, in order that it may participate properly in the industrial life of the country.

Industry Supersedes Politics.

More and more the affairs of industry supersede in importance to the masses of our people the affairs of politics. The ultimate replacing of the twelve-hour day by the eight-hour day in the steel industry will mean more to a half million people than a whole session of congress, and possibly more than many sessions of congress. A rearrangement of production and distribution so as to lessen the cost of a single staple commodity might easily mean more to millions of people than a session of congress.

It will not be possible to bring about even an approximation of complete industrial organization and consequent complete industrial franchise for many years. It will, however, mean much to work consciously toward that end.

We have not yet perfected political democracy, but humanity has for many, many decades been enjoying the fruits, the guarantees and the sense of freedom begotten by political democracy.

Looking to the Future.

The course marked out by American labor is in every sense in harmony with the logical and evolutionary development of industry, and it is in thorough harmony with the soundest and best of American principles as they have already been applied in our political life.

The future to which we look forward and the philosophy which I have attempted to set down are as truly American and as thoroughly constructive as the constitution of the United States and the union of the states.

I believe that the American labor movement has set forth a message of hope for all of our people. I believe it has outlined a course which thinking Americans will find hopeful, evolutionary and constructive.

I believe that the message which American labor has just given to the world in this expression of philosophy is news of tremendous importance.

REPORTS OF ORGANIZERS

Sacramento, Cal.

The cigar business is holding up fairly well in Portland, though not as many engaged as there were in years gone by, but the stage of decline has been passed and the future looks more prospective for renewed growth of the industry, and a better market for home made cigars than it has shown for a considerable length of time. The field is there—all it needs is active cultivation. There is always a demand for good cigars made under union conditions bearing the union label, but a constant effort should be made by energetic work on the part of our members to create agitation for the use of the "Union Label" among friends of labor and the public at large, merchants will handle goods that are in demand. "Agitation will create demand."

of advertisement; that is the sequel to a live business. There seems to be unlimited inducement there appealing with outstretched arms for labor to command the situation in industry. Crafts are well organized. Labor organized is potent when intelligently directed. The proud boast can safely be made by the organized workers of Portland, that they have the finest Labor Temple that has so far been erected in any city of our land as a monument to labor—six stories high of brick and stone, spacious and of admirable architecture, thoroughly equipped to suit the needs of all demands of labor. It stands as a worthy tribute and a heartening inspiration to its builders.

Sacramento local 238, has met with some reverses in the growth of their numbers in the not far distant past, since the open shop fever invaded the town and claimed for one of its victims a prosperous cigar manufacturer, who "fell for the bunk" turned turtle on the union; absorbed the poisonous germ, headed for Los Angeles to produce scab cigars, and rumor now has it, that the firm is fast going "fluey" in its new found field of endeavor, but the union is still going strong here and our members are on the job to keep the good old ship afloat, and label cigars on the market. Perseverance, courage and strong determination will turn the trick. Small matter, oft times through strong will, zeal, and effort, develops into large proportions.

Labor is quite well organized in this City, a campaign of agitation is being carried on for label goods, every union will be appealed to urging support in patronage of union made cigars. A committee of local 238 is now active in the work. We find men of labor responsive and willing to co-operate in lending assistance in our efforts, so that gives courage and puts spirit in the task and with renewed determination let us one and all, wage the battle of education and agitation for a hundred per cent organization of our craft, which will mean a union made smoke for every consumer of the weed.

Montreal, Oct. 7, 1923.

From Sept. 10th to the 15th I attended the annual convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada which was held at Vancouver, B. C. Some 200 delegates were in attendance from all the industrial centers of the Dominion. Some 76 resolutions came before the convention. Most of these resolutions were of grave concern to the labor movement of this country. Thirty-eight of the resolutions were concurred in, 7 non-concurred in, 31 were covered by substitutes.

Resolutions 34, 35, 36, 37 and 38, all of which were asking for the reorganization of the labor movement on industrial rather than craft lines failed to meet with the approval of the convention. A substitute resolution offered by the resolutions committee which was challenged by the so-called progressive element as a direct negation of these principles, was adopted by 120 to 53.

Resolution 34, by Vancouver Trades and Labor Council, read as follows:

Resolved, That this Trades Congress of Canada endorses the principles of amalgamation as herein set forth, and that the executive be instructed to immediately endeavor to have the various international unions arrange a series of joint conferences for the purpose of uniting the present craft unions into one powerful departmentalized industrial organizations, each of which shall cover an industry.

Another of the resolutions which was non-concurred in was Resolution No. 53 which read as follows:

Whereas, The many union labels now on the market for the purpose of identifying the product of union labor are of such varying type, design, size, etc., as to become confusing to the average person, thus curtailing the usefulness of the label and partially defeating the purpose of the label as an advertising medium; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Calgary Trades and Labor Council favor the adoption of a universal label.

Jas. Sullivan, delegate from Union 55, and myself spoke and voted against this resolution.

The Congress reiterated its endorsement of our blue label and all other labels brought to the attention of the convention by a general resolution introduced by the committee on labels.

President Tom Moore and Secretary P. M. Draper were both re-elected.

The next convention will be held in London, Ont.

Lancaster, Pa., Oct. 8, 1923.

Since my last report I have worked through the districts of York and Lancaster where there is the largest number of cigarmakers working for all kinds of prices and all kinds of systems in making cigars.

To arouse the unorganized it has become necessary to wake up the organized in most of the districts so we went to work to get the members of the unions to attend their meetings and then have their delegates attend the meeting of the central body where one exists.

We were successful in York and Lancaster in getting an organization committee started and have every hope it will develop into a live committee and help every organization in getting new members, thus keeping the organized labor movement going forward.

Much of the success that will come to our organization depends on the adoption of the work of the delegates to the last convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union held in Chicago in August, 1923, and which will be voted on by our local unions during November and December of this year. The amendments offered from this convention brush aside many of the objections heretofore offered by non-unionists for not joining the union and no doubt if adopted as law will be instrumental in bringing in new members who see and know the necessity of organization.

I have visited Harrisburg, Pa., and established a label shop where there has not been a label shop since the charter left that city. One small shop is now using the label under the jurisdiction of Union 242, York.

I attended the meeting of the general organization committee of cigar makers of Pennsylvania which met at Reading, Pa., on Sunday, Sept. 30. This committee will endeavor to promote organization work as far as possible and they will no doubt appeal to all the unions to help in the work.

The American Federation of Labor 1923 convention reaffirmed its support of the Rochdale co-operative system for the distribution of commodities and services without commercial profit, and placed special emphasis on the insurance business as one of the most practical and urgent fields for the application of the co-operative principle.

The Rochdale system is recognized to be the most effective method for the workers to protect their wages against the perpetual raids of profiteering middlemen.

"No one can successfully dispute the fact that something is radically wrong with our system of distribution," declares the Federation.

"In a great many cases it costs more to sell manufactured products and agricultural produce than it does to produce them.

"It is stated that out of every dollar spent for agricultural products the farmer receives only 18 cents and the other 82 cents goes to transportation, holding and selling corporations, speculators, profiteers and the merchants.

"The accumulated wealth of the country, much of which is a gift from the past, is crystallized into great corporations which are, generally speaking, managed by salaried employees.

"Inventive genius has brought to the front wonderfully improved methods of production and to such an extent syndicated capitalists have had to create extensive selling facilities.

"This fact in itself has created a condition, in which it costs now, under our really unscientific system of distribution, more to sell than it does to manufacture.

"That which should naturally go to the relief of the great masses in better wages, shorter hours and lower prices for the necessities of life is really utilized by syndicated capitalists for their own further enrichment and to bolster up and keep going a system that will ultimately, unless checked, lead to destruction.

"It lies in the hands of the workers and producers, agriculturally and industrially, to save the enormous criminal waste which is now adding to the cost of living, discomfort and misery of the great burden-bearing masses.

"Next to our trade union one of the most simple and effective means we have in hand of saving much of this waste for the consumer as well as the producer is the co-operative movement.

"Through the simple Rochdale co-operative system billions of dollars that now go to further enrich the idle few and the enormous army that make up the unnecessary selling power and force would go to the producers and consumers.

"The insurance business is some indication of what co-operation can do.

"In the life insurance companies there is fifty billion dollars involved, eight billions of which amount is cash.

"Forty million policies are in force.

"These insurance companies are surrounded by state and national laws to such an extent that they don't fail."

The A. F. of L. maintains the American Federation of Labor Bureau of Co-operative Societies, of which G. W. Perkins, president of the cigar makers of America, is president, to carry on educational and informational work regarding the bona fide Rochdale co-operative movement.—A. F. of L. Weekly News Letter.

By Chester M. Wright.

If anybody ever had the idea that food would still the cravings of hunger that person made a great mistake. Hunger builds up the body and makes it capable of a bigger appetite. That's what you get for your thanks when you start out to feed the beast. Also that's what the beast gets when it starts out to feed itself.

Labor first had a hunger for another piece of black bread. Then it had a hunger for something to put on the bread. It had a hunger for a house, then for a house with more windows and more rooms and with rugs on the floor.

Invention conspired with hunger and made men want clothes of mill spun cloth, shirts of finer texture and better cut. Invention and hunger, contriving and conniving together, made labor want pianos, telephones, phonographs, pictures. Nobody wanted a phonograph or a telephone fifty years ago.

Of little use is a life made richer by finer material surroundings if you must come home after ten, twelve, fourteen hours of labor, exhausted, ready for a stupor sleep. The brain, groping for its right to comprehend its surroundings and to enjoy beauty and music and to be fit for thought, yes, for exultation and exaltation, fights for freedom from fatigue. The work-day must not rob it of its life.

The fine correlation between the human desire for a shorter work day and the development of machinery is what helped to make a richer life possible. Isn't it the fact that the machine woke up the race and gave it the big chance?

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 1, 1923.

If a man has a plan to make the majority happier, more prosperous, he is told, "You would array class against class." In reality his desire is to do away with class hatred by doing away with its cause, the bitterness of poverty. One man refuses to hear. Everything that he has not thought of is "bosh." Even in material things the world opposes new truth. When England began using spinning machinery that saved thousands from grinding toil, giving employment at better wages with easier work to hundred of thousands, it was necessary to protect the new machines inside of strong stone walls, and workmen hated the new idea and would wreck the machinery. The sewing machine was attacked outrageously. The man that first made one was persuaded by his wife to break the model because "It would take work away from so many girls that earn a living with the needle."

It actually freed millions of women from most hideous slavery.

Men of old and men of our day have hated new ideas for many reasons.

First, the new idea compels the ossified brain to think and that is painful.

Second, the new idea threatens established ways and perhaps established income. The steam engine destroyed stage coaches, the taxicab destroyed hansom cabs, the telephone did away with a majority of the messenger boys.

The automobile and flying machine will soon interfere with railroad passenger traffic. Youth usually refuses to hear the new idea because youth is too busy with its self.

Old age refuses to hear it because in old age the mind usually is "set" like concrete and there is no path to let a new idea in. You wouldn't like to be one of those that laughed at the steam engine as preposterous, or called the flying machine a silly joke, or one of those that opposed the sewing machine because it would deprive poor women of their work or the spinning jenny because it would throw workmen out of a job.

Let us try to treat the new ideas of our own day as we think people of olden times should have treated the new ideas of that day.

A sure sign of old age is unwillingness to listen to a new idea. Keep your mind open as when you were young, and though your hair be white and your face all wrinkled, you will not be old.

How about the cigar machines? Think it over. You can't stop progress.

JAS. WARD.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 2, 1923.

Our production has fallen off to an alarming degree due to the lack of sale of Bell Brand collars bearing the Union Label. In order for us to continue in the ranks of organized labor we must have the support and sale for collars we manufacture and rely upon the consistency of our brother union men for support. We therefore take this opportunity to ask if you will pledge your local to buy Bell Brand collars bearing the Union Label which are made at the present time in first class shape and are equal to any on the market especially our best grade semi-soft collars which we believe are the best on the market for the price.

We are making a semi-soft collar on the principle of the Aretex Brand to sell for 25c each. These collars are superior to any on the market for the same price. Remember the names—Ontario, Oceana, Vermont and Newark. When we say superior we mean exactly what we say and do not let your dealer pass you off by saying they are inferior. Write the Union Label Collar Co., 139 Hamilton St., Albany, N. Y., who will supply you direct if your dealers refuse to do so. When writing for catalogue please state desired style you want as we handle most styles similar to Aretex Brand and can be substituted nicely.

We sincerely hope you will help us as we stated before the demand has fallen off to an alarming degree and can not continue if we do not receive your support.

Thanking you in anticipation of your co-operation in this matter, and await your patronage, we remain,

Fraternally yours,
UNION LABEL COLLAR CO.

SUPPORT THE LABOR PRESS!

By J. M. Baer.

Yes, we admit that the newspapers generally had a few kind words for the working man on one day in the year—Labor Day.

But what about the other 364 days? The reactionary subsidized press devotes very little space to the economic problems which confront the laboring man.

Columns upon columns are devoted to politics, society, fashions, financial news, comics, foreign affairs, crime, scandal, divorce and trivial matters. But very few inches of space are devoted to the man who does the world's work and makes everything else possible.

A writer for Collier's Weekly recently took the pains to measure space given to labor news in the big dailies, compared to other current events. The average in inches of space given to various news by four typical daily newspapers was found to figure thus:

Sports and comic pictures.....	321
Fashions and cooking.....	135
Government, Federal, state and city	125
Business	119
Foreign affairs.....	104
Crime	60
Music and drama.....	44
Prohibition	27
Society	14
Labor and wages.....	10

Thus less than a column a day was given to labor matters, while one hundred times as much was given to other news items.

With the big newspapers of the country owned and controlled by the same interests that are trying to crush organized labor, it surely behooves every working man to support the labor newspapers.

Through organization the power of labor will be felt and through the labor press its influence will be spread.—International Labor News Service.

In the current issue of the Journeyman Barber, James C. Shannessy, general president of the Journeyman Barbers' International Union, scores those workers who stay outside their trade union while accepting union wages and working conditions.

"The man who insists that he will not join a labor union because he wants to work where, when, as long and for what he will, is a four-flusher," said the barbers' executive. "Where can a man be found who can do it? A man who is compelled to earn his living by work must accept work when and where and on such terms as he can secure it. His boasted independence is mere bunk. Organized with his fellow workmen, he would have an opportunity to have a say regarding his own labor; but alone he is a peon and as helpless as a ship on the ocean without a rudder."

"Scores of men outside the labor movement continue to kid themselves with this idea of personal independence which they believe they would lose if they joined the union. The unscrupulous employer urges the idea upon them and the poor boobs continue to fall for it."

REPORT OF INTERNATIONAL FINANCIER

Boston, Mass., Aug. 4, 1923.

Since last report have examined the accounts of the following unions, viz:

Union 64, Lebanon, Pa.

When Ex-Secretary W. R. Speece had the books here they were in very poor order. He did not complete the filling out of the sick benefit cards. In fact, he was not a fit man for secretary. The present secretary seems to be making a good effort. That means he will make good if he stays in office. Statement as follows: Financier's balance for May 1, 1915 ... $1,817.82 International receipts to July 1, 1923 .. 7,127.73 Over percentage in 191604 Due to Int'l Union on examination..... 8.00

Ex-Treasurer Wes. Hellinger, No. 65012, claims to have turned over $25.00 during April, 1921, to be deposited in bank by the man that has taken their money to Lancaster, Pa., to deposit in Fulton National Bank. He previously had deposited $1.00 surplus, leaving him $24.00 short with the bank account. I verified the bank account, but could find nothing to show that this money had been given to anyone and had not been deposited to the credit of the union. Hellinger refused to make settlement, so I left orders for the union to comply with the constitution, see 6th line of Section 172, wherein it demands that defaulters and embezzlers that refuse to make good must be prosecuted. The accounts of the secretary are in fine condition, with the exception of having reported this $24.00 as being in bank. No argument between the secretary and Ex-Treasurer Hellinger regarding the amount of money turned over. His stamp and cash accounts are correct. Statement as follows:

No matter how rough the going, ex-Secretary Kinder and the present secretary, Ed. Van Poppel, have managed to keep the books and accounts of this local so nearly correct that no matter what any meeting orders them to do their personal accounts with the local and International Union money are correct. Nice work—and some job at times. All Benefit Cards and Vouchers for International Expense on file. Stamp and cash accounts correct—except that this local insists upon making donations and spending International money for local purposes not provided for in the Constitution and at times not in the interest of the Union. This must not continue—you can not receive assistance until you have refunded all such money and you can not refund this money by having it reported refunded and then show such amount in possession of your secretary-treasurer. Never again. The money will have to be really refunded this time.

OFFICIAL

EXECUTIVE BOARD.

G. W. PERKINS, President,
503 S. Dearborn St., Chicago.

SAMUEL GOMPERS, 218 W. 51st St., New York City, First Vice President.

I. M. ORNBURN, 286 York St., New Haven, Conn., Second Vice President.

A. GARIEPY, 239 Ave. Hotel de Ville, Montreal, Can., Third Vice President.

MANUEL GONZALEZ, Box 396, Ybor City, Tampa, Fla., Fourth Vice President.

E. G. HALL, 4124 Bryant Ave., S., Minneapolis, Minn., Fifth Vice President.

CHAS. H. STEVENS, 350 Broadway, Buffalo, N. Y., Sixth Vice President.

E. J. STACK, Labor Temple, Portland, Ore., Seventh Vice President.

GIBSON WEBER, 1710 N. Gratz St., Station C, Philadelphia, Pa., Treasurer.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members, who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also as per Section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study Section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member; if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

Notice of the special assessment of $1 on all 30c and 60c members and 50c on Class B members, in compliance with Section 92 (a) of the Constitution, is herewith given. This assessment takes effect Sept. 24, 1923, and may be paid in two weekly installments. New initiates who have not been members for four months are exempt from all assessments. All who join after Sept. 24 are exempt from payment of the September assessment. Class B members do not have to pay any International assessments until they have been members for six months. Forty-cent beneficiary members do not have to pay the special strike fund assessment. Members out of work are not exempt from this assessment.

Besides protecting homes, life insurance is becoming an altruistic agency of seemingly infinite scope.

About $64,000,000,000 of life insurance is now in force in the United States.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution
In effect May 1, 1921.
Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted herein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices, may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues of 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such member shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $3.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter, in the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearsages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a securing employment in a factory using the label or which pays the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 180. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessment levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. This label shall be light blue in color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other changes.

(International News Service.)

There have been many constructive conventions of the American Federation of Labor but perhaps none was more constructive and intent on building for the future than the convention which has just ended its session in Portland, Oregon.

From the very beginning, the convention emphasized constructive work. It clearly and unmistakably demonstrated its determination to have nothing to do with destructive forces, and this soon made manifest, turned its activities toward strengthening the American Labor movement.

First in importance, many think, was the convention's declaration for a determined, conscious crusade for industrial democracy, aimed to make industry as democratic as in our political life.

Perhaps second in importance was the convention's decision to conduct a great organizing campaign, designed particularly to bring steel, textile and office workers into the ranks of organized labor, as well as to organize women workers and migratory workers.

These decisions were a very small percentage of a long list of constructive decisions which are too numerous to even mention in this column. It is sufficient to reiterate that the convention was constructive from beginning to end. It made trade union history perhaps more than any previous convention.

Reports from Washington that orders have gone out from the "Old Guard" to discredit Senator James Couzens of Michigan give warning that the reactionaries will do everything in their power at the coming session of Congress to cast odium on the progressive Senators and Representatives.

There is little doubt but that the reactionaries will do their best to picture Couzens, Magnus Johnson and others in the progressive group of Senators as extremists of the wildest and most unbalanced type.

What they will attempt was forecast by the campaign carried on against Magnus Johnson. The reactionaries and their newspaper organs pictured Johnson as a "fire eater," who made up for lack of brains by a bellow that could be heard from his Minnesota prairies to the man-made canyons of Wall Street. Then Johnson came to Washington for a short visit and the reactionaries discovered that he was really a human being after all. So different was the Farmer-Labor Senator from what he had been painted by his enemies that his foes were forced to admit their misrepresentation.

But reactionaries never learn and they will undoubtedly try the same tactics on Couzens and other Senators who place the interests of the people above the interests of Big Business. Members of organized labor should be on their guard and take stories designed to discredit the progressive congressmen with many, many grains of salt.

Recent news from London emphasizes more than anything else the difference between industrial conditions in the United States and in Great Britain. While American workers have maintained their wage scales and standards of living, the British have had to accept lower pay in many instances and have had to contend with unemployment on a huge scale.

There are now more than a million jobless men and to stem the rising tide of unemployment, the Government has been forced to sanction plans for undertaking work which will cost at least $250,000,000. Organized labor here can congratulate itself that it largely escaped the troubles afflicting the workers of Great Britain and that due to its strength and determination, it prevented the wage reductions such as have befallen British workers in many trades since the World War ended.

Norwegian Labor Party splits as a result of refusal of the majority to accept Moscow Internationale's orders.

Help the nurse on the battlefields of Peace

THE tuberculosis nurse is an officer in the peace-time army that is fighting tuberculosis in the home. Christmas Seals are her soldiers.

In fifteen years the death rate from consumption has been cut in half. It can be stamped out entirely.

You save human lives when you buy Christmas Seals. You send year-round cheer to homes where Christmas joy is muted by the threat of death.

Honor these seals and the work they do. When you see them, buy them.

A Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year to all!

The returns from local Ratification. unions show that the popular vote has approved all the amendments except the two weeks sick benefit.

At the close of the Chicago convention I heartily congratulated the delegates upon the display of vision, courage, and unselfish devotion to principle in adopting all important and necessary amendments to our constitution. I take this occasion to extend the same hearty congratulations to the members at large for their unselfish devotion to the high principle involved in the changes in our organic law.

The result augurs well for our stability, progress, and well-being in the future. It accentuates the harbinger of faith and hopefulness. It again shows that the members in their individual capacity are capable of arising above selfishness, that they are equal to an emergency, and that their faith in themselves and their loyalty to and confidence in the union are boundless and sustaining.

For years we have been governed by laws that no longer fit into the present evolutionary stage of development in the industry. It requires vision and determination to break away from traditions that have developed in the past half century. Your action means that orderly development is possible. It augurs well for the future economically, socially, and politically, and I sincerely extend most hearty congratulations.

G. W. PERKINS,
Int. President.

The following resolution was introduced jointly by G.
Group Insurance. W. Perkins and Matthew Woll at the Portland convention of the American Federation of Labor:

Whereas, Group insurance has made phenomenal progress during recent years and is being used by unfair employers as a means of alienating the affiliation of wage earners from their respective trade unions under the cloak of philanthropy and the plea of paternalism; and

Whereas, It is believed that group insurance is subject to efficient use by trade unions, not alone to combat the misuse of these devices by unfair employers but to give added strength and stability to the trade union movement; and

Whereas, There are many trade unions carrying on insurance or death benefit feature of some kind and character, and a number of them having provided for group insurance; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the President of the American Federation of Labor is hereby authorized to conduct or to appoint someone to conduct an investigation of all forms of insurance and death benefit systems now provided by National and International Unions; that this investigation include group insurance plans and other insurance features used by employers to provide insurance for their employees; and, be it further

Resolved, That the President of the American Federation of Labor be authorized, with the approval of the Executive Council, to advise the National and International Unions of the findings and recommendations resulting out of this investigation, so that these beneficial features of the trade union movement of America may be strengthened and solidified so that a unified and intensified policy of defense and of aggression may be directed against the misuse of group insurance by those who would weaken or destroy the trade union movement or prevent its full growth and development.

The Committee on Executive Council's Report recommended concurrence in the foregoing resolution. Its report was unanimously adopted.

The resolution authorizes the President of the American Federation of Labor to make a survey of all kinds of insurance and death benefit systems including group insurance plans and insurance features used by employers, and it also provides that after the investigation is made the President shall advise the national and international unions of the findings and recommendations resulting out of this investigation.

The plan of group insurance, which has been in vogue with non union employers for the past four or five years, is finding ready favor among the officers of national and international unions. Within the next two or three years a company may be formed, and controlled by national and international unions affiliated to the American Federation of Labor, for the purpose of carrying on industrial group insurance. The possibilities of such a movement are unlimited and far-reaching in their application to the labor movement and members thereof.

Billions of dollars are invested in the insurance business. There is no reason why the unions affiliated to the American Federation of Labor should not jointly control the insurance for their members. Such a company could be conducted on co-operative non-profit bearing lines. The overhead cost would be greatly reduced and if only one-half of the workers now organized joined in such movement it would make the largest and most powerful insurance company in the whole world and would be the cheapest and the safest. Such a concern when formed would necessarily under the insurance laws have to maintain a specified reserve fund. This fund could be used for home building purposes for our members and for any other legitimate proper purpose that would add to the comfort and well-being of the wage earning masses.

The International Union has made through the action of our last convention now ratified by popular vote a splendid start in the right direction. Under the terms of the contract with the insurance company we are at liberty to either continue with that company or change to a company of our own or one inaugurated by the national and international unions affiliated to and under the American Federation of Labor.

Dues New stamps are being printed and will be shipped to local unions as soon as possible, and in any event they ought to reach local unions within a week after January 1. The old stamps should be used until all members' due books are filled up to January 1, 1924.

The new system of stamps consists of one color of stamps for each class of membership, and these stamps run from the lowest to the highest amount of dues.

For instance, in the full dues paying class of membership we have a 40c stamp which carries with it the compulsory $100 death benefit. This stamp is marked "40c dues—$100 D. B." The next stamp is marked "45c dues—$200 D. B." The next, "50c dues—$300 D. B." The next, "55c dues—$400 D. B." The next, "60c dues—$500 D. B." These stamps are all the same color, but the amount of dues paid and the amount of death benefit carried are plainly printed on them.

The same principle applies to the retired beneficiary members' stamps. These stamps will be of a different color from the full dues paying members' stamps, with the basic dues of 25c and the $100 death benefit, etc., printed on them, up to 45c dues and $500 death benefit.

The same system will also be used in the Class B stamps. They will be of a different color with the basic dues of 20c and the $100 death benefit, etc., printed on them, up to 40c dues and $500 death benefit.

The amended constitution is set up and we shall commence printing it on December 17. It ought to be ready for distribution soon after January 1. In the meantime you have the galley proof of the new constitution, which will suffice as a guide until the new constitutions reach you.

Under the new constitution any present member in the proper class who has been such for three months or more is immediately entitled to the maximum amount of death benefit that he elects to carry. If a member initiated after January 1, 1924, in filling out his card elects to pay the 60c dues, should he pass away after a membership of three months or more, his beneficiaries would be entitled to $500.

Hence it is vitally important that every member fill out the card referred to in another column, stating the amount of death benefit he desires to carry.

I strongly advise that all members accept the highest amount of death benefit. You can always change to a lower rate and lower death benefit at the end of any year. It is much easier to drop from the higher amount than it is to start in at the minimum amount of $100 and then go up. Your attention is called to this part of the law, which provides that if you have taken only $100, $200, $300 or $400 death benefit and after six months have elapsed desire to take more you must prove that you are insurable, while you can take now any amount of death benefit up to $500 without an examination. I deem it important that you understand this, and hence I again suggest that you take the maximum amount of death benefit, as it is much easier to drop than it is, for the reasons explained, to go up.

The surest way to achieve success is through the application of hard work and the discharge of all moral obligations. Labor has an undoubted right to fix wages, hours and working conditions. These rights mature in results just in proportion to organization and the manner in which we as organized workers conduct ourselves.

No enterprise be it civic, social, or economic, can function to capacity unless all concerned give hearty support and discharge all moral obligations. Success can not be combed out of the air. No business can pay fair wages with reasonable hours and working conditions unless all concerned contribute their mite towards success.

With the introduction of improved machinery and the application of giant power in all walks of life a mighty problem confronts society, and more particularly the industrial workers and the so-called captains of industry. This growing and mighty, gigantic power if properly applied leads to the making of a happier and better existence for all who give service. If the workers are properly organized this giant power can be properly applied and distributed. When this condition is reached it will bring to labor its full share of the wealth it creates. It will stop unemployment, and poverty bordering upon starvation will forever go out of the lives of the toiling masses.

We must do our share. We must first organize and then discharge all just obligations resting upon us. We live in an age of wonderful inventions. These inventions are so stupendous and far-reaching that many are stunned and groping about for the means by which these inventions can be mobilized and put into force without destroying orderly development. Men of vision and capacity know that they must have the co-operation of labor in the mighty undertaking just ahead. They realize that labor must be reckoned with to bring to fruition the full benefit and the boundless possibilities that are swiftly materializing.

First things come first. The things for us to do are to organize and then co-operate. The sooner we do this the more quickly we shall reap the reward of better wages and richer living and working conditions.

Push Forward. The barriers that have prevented a more rapid progress in organization work having been cleared away the real battle has just commenced. Having removed the restrictions and opened wide the doors to all engaged in the industry it now becomes the duty of all to continue the crusade until we substantially organize all wage earners in the cigar and tobacco industry and enroll them under the banner of our organization.

The moss-covered barnacles having been removed from the good ship its course now should be along the straight and narrow channel of organization, through agitation, education, and complete organization. No one should think that this is an easy task. The way is beset with pitfalls and many uncharted rocks of destruction. It will require courage, devotion, confidence, and work to steer clear of all obstacles seen and unseen. Organize. It can be done; it should be done; it must be done.

Get Together

Nineteen Hundred and Twenty Four will be an eventful year for civilization, for industry, for democracy and for freedom. A new era in the cycle of time is in the making. If we start wrong it may take another decade before the sunlight of genuine prosperity for the toiling masses will come into existence.

One of the surest means to success is to get right with ourselves, to stamp out of mind and heart and out of existence all hatred and distrust of our fellow workers in so far as our relations are joined in the economic and trade union movements. There is plenty of room for isms and issues, for mistrust and distrust outside of our labor movement. There is no room for any of these within the trade union movement.

To get right with ourselves is the first step. No state of organization, social, political, or economic, or otherwise, can be perfect and satisfactory to everyone. It would be a sorry day if it were. When everybody becomes satisfied progress is dead, ambition is stifled, disintegration sets in, and we go backward instead of forward. Dissatisfaction is a virtue and not an evil.

Useless knocking and lying insinuations against a fellow workman are a curse to the labor movement. The big captains of industry, the profiteering gentry, the non-union manufacturers always try to keep us divided and fighting among ourselves. They know that this can be best accomplished by lying insinuations.

If a member or an officer is wrong the proper thing to do is to make charges, give a fair trial and condemn only after it is proved beyond a doubt that the charges are absolutely true. Anyone has a right to make charges if he has the courage to back them up before the tribunal of the union. No one will make insinuations except those who are dishonest in mind and heart and opposed to the trade union movement or are the hirelings of big interests, profiteers and non-union manufacturers.

Let us all resolve to turn over a new leaf in the coming year. Let us all try to be better and more helpful and useful in the great work before us than we have ever been in the past. None of us are so good but what we can improve. None of us are so bad but what there is some good in us. And entirely regardless of all this let us work as a unit in the upbuilding of our union and the organization of those who work in the industry. This can not be accomplished by lying insinuations and misleading statements. In the economic movement the right hand of good will and fraternal fellowship for those with whom we work and must work is the surest and best means for success in organization work. Such a course brings with it a clear conscience of a duty well done, and a happiness to the mind and a peace to the heart that can not be achieved by any other process.

Passing On. Another old land mark in the early struggles of the Cigar Makers' International Union,

Mr. George Hurst, has passed into eternity. Mr. Hurst was International President in 1875, at which time there were only fifty-one local unions with mighty few members. He issued the first Cigar Makers' Official Journal under date of November, 1875. Mr. Hurst's headquarters were at Suffield, Conn.

Prior to November, 1875, the International Union took space in and subscribed for an existing weekly trade union paper. The Official Journal at that time consisted of a four-page sheet, size seven and one-half by eleven. The per capita tax receipts for October from twenty local unions were $98.25. Including a balance due from September the receipts were $111.25. The total disbursements for a part of September and all of October were $87.43, the balance on hand $23.82. At that time the union owed the printer $25.00 for printing the proceedings and $25.00 for five hundred copies of The Advocate, a labor paper which was known as the official organ of the International Union.

In the second issue, December, 1875, Mr. Hurst printed the following editorial:

"It is admitted so far as cigar-making is concerned, that the supply of labor is more than equal to the demand. The introduction of moulds and the employment of unskilled labor is undoubtedly the cause of such a state of facts.

"It is also well known that certain large cities are the breeding places of this surplus labor, from whence swarms of cigar-makers are ready at a moment's notice to take the places of Union men, when the hand of the employer is laid too heavily for endurance.

"That it is essential to our existence that this labor should be with us rather than against us, will be admitted by the most orthodox Union man.

"How is this great question to be solved?

"We answer, organize them into Unions.

"This cannot be done by coercion or by the infliction of penalties.

"This has been tried and we know the result.

"Let us, by inviting this labor to unite with us, convince them that our interests are identical. Ask them to assist us in building up a Trade Union that will command respect.

"Let us endeavor to avoid strikes on every possible occasion.

"We are aware that there are many good members of the Union who will differ with us as regards any affiliation with the outside mass. While we respect their loyalty to old time principles, we must disagree with them.

"What was sound policy ten or even five years ago, will not avail us now; then we had no moulds to contend with.

"Organize, and the outside mass will melt as the snow under a summer sun.

"Once in a majority we can command and be obeyed. On the question of avoiding strikes we would refer you to the remarks of President Fehrenbach of the Machinists and Blacksmiths International Union.

"The workingmen of America will yet learn that their salvation, the amelioration of their condition, and their emancipation from slavery, lies not in the erroneous pathway leading to war with their employers.

"They will yet learn that the remedy for their wrongs does not lie in the embarkation in the suicidal contests of strikes, but lies in thorough organization.

"For without organization nothing can be accomplished. This is our only remedy."

Commencing with William J. Cannon, who served two years as International President, Mr. Hurst and every President since that time has cautioned against ill-timed, ill-advised, and hasty strikes.

The returns from local unions on the amendments proposed by the Chicago convention show (December 15) that nearly all except the two weeks sick benefit amendments to the constitution have been approved by popular vote and consequently adopted. The voting of local unions ends December 15.

The amendments proposed to the constitution reference the payment of death benefits under the group insurance plan have been approved by popular vote. Under the contract with the insurance company it becomes absolutely necessary that we receive here and forward to the insurance company the following information regarding the present membership, except those paying 30 cents dues on account of age or chronically ill when joining.

Cards have been sent which under the amended law each member must fill out. Get one from your secretary. Please note that the insurance company wants the name, date of birth, day, month, and year; and the member's address. The card shows the amount of dues and the benefit the member may elect to carry.

In the case of the Full Dues Paying member he places a cross in the square over the heading "Full Dues Paying." If he wishes to carry only $100 death benefit he pays only 40 cents dues and should place a cross in the square opposite "$100." If he elects to take $200, $300, $400, or $500, he should place a cross in the square opposite the amount he elects to take.

In the case of the Retired Beneficiary member he places a cross in the square over the heading "Retired Beneficiary." If he wishes to carry only $100 death benefit he pays only 25 cents dues and should place a cross in the square opposite "100." If he elects to take $200, $300, $400, or $500 he should place a cross in the square opposite the amount he elects to take.

In the case of the Class B member he places a cross in the square over the heading "Class B." If he wishes to carry only $100 death benefit he pays only 20 cents dues and should place a cross in the square opposite "$100." If he elects to take $200, $300, $400, or $500 he should place a cross in the square opposite the amount he elects to take.

These cards should reach this office on or before January 1, 1923.

All members are urged to place themselves in January within the limit of five weeks, or within ten weeks if out of work. Under the amended law the secretary, in reporting death benefit claims, must send the dues book of the member to this office, hence see that you are in good standing—that is, not over the five weeks' limit after January 1. All members who owe seven weeks on December 31 should immediately get within the five weeks' limit.

C. N. Dellinger, a cigar manufacturer, of Red Lion, Pennsylvania, trading as Tampa Ribbon Cigar Company, and John M.

Thomas, a broker, of Indianapolis, Indiana, are named in a complaint issued by the Federal Trade Commission. The respondents are charged with the use of misleading words in the brand name and on labels of cigars offered for sale to the public.

According to the citation the respondents advertise and sell cigars made in Red Lion, Pennsylvania, and which are not composed of Havana tobacco labeled "Tampa Ribbon" in conjunction with the word "Havana" on the border of such label.

The respondents' acts, the complaint alleges, have the tendency and are calculated to deceive and mislead the purchasing public into the belief that their cigars so branded are made from tobacco imported from the island of Cuba and generally recognized as Havana Tobacco, and are made in Florida, when such, it is alleged, are not the facts.

Under the law whenever the Commission has reason to believe that an unfair method of competition has been used against the public interest, it must issue its complaint. However the question whether or not such method has been used is not passed upon by the Commission finally until after respondents have had thirty days in which to answer and the issue has been tried out.

(By International Labor News Service.)

Manufacturers who make misleading use of the union label are advised to mend their ways.

The Federal Trade Commission is after them and it has already issued a complaint against three Philadelphia firms charged with making false, deceptive and misleading use of the union label.

The complaint was issued against Joseph Greenberg, Ben Greenberg and Eva Greenberg, trading as the King Overall Company, Atlantic Overall Company and A. Greenberg Sons, manufacturers of overalls and trousers in wholesale and retail quantities. The three firms are charged with placing on their products the words "Union Made" despite the fact that the products are not manufactured by members of organized labor. The complaint, in part, is as follows:

"Respondent, Joseph Greenberg, Ben Greenberg and Eva Greenberg, co-partners, trading as King Overall Company, Atlantic Overall Company and A. Greenberg Sons, with their principal office and place of business in the city of Philadelphia, state of Pennsylvania, are now and have been for more than one year past engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling overalls and trousers in wholesale and retail quantities; that said overalls and trousers so manufactured and sold by respondents, as aforesaid, were transported by said respondents or were caused to be transported by said respondents from the state of Pennsylvania to and into the states of Delaware, New Jersey and various other states; that is to say, in interstate commerce. In the course of their business respondents were at all times hereinafter mentioned and still are in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships and corporations similarly engaged in interstate commerce.

"Respondents, in the course and conduct of their business, employ artisans or workmen who are not members of nor affiliated with associations or organizations generally known, recognized and referred to as unions; that said respondents sell and transport in interstate commerce, as aforesaid, their merchandise consisting of men's overalls and trousers, to each of which said garments is attached a brand or label containing respondents' registered trade brand, trade name and in conspicuous type the words, 'Union Made.'

"That the said brands or labels so attached to the said overalls and trousers and so containing the words, 'Union Made,' as aforesaid, are false, deceptive and misleading and are designed to or do deceive and mislead the purchasers or prospective purchasers into the belief that said overalls and trousers so manufactured, sold and transported by said respondents, as aforesaid, and so containing the said 'Union Made' labels, as aforesaid, are 'Union-Made' overalls or trousers; that is to say, overalls or trousers manufactured, produced or fabricated by workmen or artisans who are members of or affiliated with associations or organizations generally known, recognized and referred to as unions; when in truth and in fact said overalls and trousers so manufactured, sold and transported from state to state, in interstate commerce, as aforesaid, by said respondents, as aforesaid, are not 'Union Made' overalls or trousers as was and is represented and pretended by said respondents and represented and pretended by said brands or labels, but said overalls and trousers are 'Non-Union Made,' that is to say, that said overalls and trousers are manufactured and fabricated by workmen and artisans who are not members of nor affiliated with any association or organization generally known, recognized and referred to as a 'Union.'

"That the use by respondents on their product of the said brands or labels containing the words 'Union Made' has the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive or does mislead and deceive a substantial part of the purchasing public who prefer merchandise or garments fabricated by artisans or workmen who are members of or affiliated with associations or organizations generally known, recognized and referred to as 'unions,' into the belief that said product is or was fabricated by artisans or workmen who are members of or affiliated with associations or organizations generally known, recognized and referred to as 'unions'; that the use of the said false and misleading brand or label by respondents, containing the words 'Union Made' has the further tendency and capacity to divert trade from truthfully marked goods.

"That the above alleged acts and things done by respondents are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled 'An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes.'

"Wherefore, the premises considered, the Federal Trade Commission now here issues this its complaint against said respondents."

A hearing on the complaint will be held December 7 in the office of the commission in Washington.

Men progress by helping one another. Patronize the union label, card and button.

By Samuel Gompers, President, American Federation of Labor.

The year 1924 brings great tasks to the trade unionists of America.

The year just closed has placed our movement in a position of strength and solidarity that fits it for the tasks that lie ahead.

In 1923 our country measurably recovered from the period of depression and the fight of the so-called open shoppers and wage-cutters practically came to an end. It lost its driving power.

Ahead of us in the immediate future is a national political campaign. Ahead of us also is a great general campaign of organization, reaching into every field of activity.

The enemies of our movement say that we are not in politics. The fact is that we are in politics to the limit, determined to make our influence felt for progress and human freedom.

It is of the utmost importance that every trade unionist take an active part in the campaign now opening. It is important to see that trade unionists participate in the nominating of candidates and also in the selection of political convention delegates.

It is important that labor should participate where nominations are made and where platforms are formulated.

The American Federation of Labor national non-partisan political campaign will this year be conducted on broader and more energetic lines than ever before. Labor's effectiveness must extend into every precinct in America—and with the co-operation of the great farming population this will be accomplished.

On the industrial field the organization of the wage earners is always our first and primary task. Our convention has ordered a number of special organizing campaigns and these are either under way or are being planned. It is my hope that during the year our movement may add a million new members to its rolls. This is easily possible.

Protection and promotion of their rights and interests and proper participation of the workers in the affairs of industry makes organization necessary. The proper conduct of industry, the proper safeguarding of the rights and interests of the toilers, the proper and necessary stabilizing of industry, make organization of first importance to labor and to employers as well.

We live in an age of collective effort. No where does the individual live and work in a world of his own. Working together, it is necessary to organize so as to plan together, to function properly in every direction, to make life better and to make industry better.

Every wage earner ought to join the trade union of his trade or calling and every trade union member ought to be an organizer.

The year 1924 will bring its rewards, but it also will bring its obligations and duties.

Let us all, as trade unionists, do our utmost to make our movement a credit and a constructive force in society. If we are good trade unionists, we shall be good citizens of our Republic and America will be the better for our efforts.

CORRESPONDENCE

In the contest of the Bakery & Confectionery Workers' International Union, organized labor and its friends, with the Ward Baking Company, and with the passing of the present year, we think it most fitting in hailing the New Year by conveying to you the wonderful progress that is being made.

Within the thirty states covering more than 5,000 cities, being the business jurisdiction of the Ward Baking Company, more than 15,000 organizations of labor and their friends are actively engaged in this contest in the support of our International Union and its affiliated local unions.

The fact that the Ward Baking Company is anti-union is becoming known everywhere. Reports received prove that this publicity campaign is resulting in a serious reduction in the output of the products of this anti-union concern. All that is necessary is to maintain the interest of organized labor and its friends, and it will then only be a question of time when victory will be ours. We appreciate your co-operation so far given. We ask you to continue same.

"Let it be known where you eat, at home or elsewhere; that Ward's bread and cakes are anti-union; that you buy or eat Union Label bread when possible; always remembering that Ward Baking Co. products are anti-union."

If we can get every member of the 15,000 organizations of labor and friends to adopt this slogan and make it effective, we shall have brought home to the Ward Baking Company its unprofitable anti-union attitude, and the fight will be won. Let us finish up the old year by demonstrating the purchasing power of Union men, women and their friends. Will you assist us?

Again expressing our sincere appreciation for assistance already rendered us, we beg to remain,

Fraternally yours,

A. A. MYRUP,

International Secretary-Treasurer.

Editor, International Labor News Service.

Most troubles in industry happen because one side is boss. There comes a point when one side can "lay down the law." One side can issue an edict, an imperial decree.

Imperial decrees always make trouble. The injunction, as used in industrial disputes, is just a form of imperial decree, with the judge as emperor.

Lawyers would have a different way of saying this, but lawyers are still talking the lingo they learned decades ago when court records were written by men who got paid by the word and who therefore invented many awesome but useless words.

When the boss of a big plant says, "that's my decision and that's final," he's just a little edition of an emperor.

Only a few political emperors are left in the world. Business for them is poor.

Political democracy has put the emperor business on the bum.

Labor looks toward the building of an industrial democracy to put industrial emperors on the bum. This will be good even for the emperors.

In the beginning it was a fight for a chance to be heard. Now it is a great struggle to build a new structure in the great and marvelous industrial world.

Truly the mission of labor is great and glorious. It outshines in brilliance, responsibility, opportunity and purpose anything that we know of in the world today.

Compare the labor movement building new and greater freedom with rusty statesmen gabbling away with fourteenth century thoughts in their minds and medieval chains of tradition around their necks.

Labor's destiny is tremendous. It is the great leader of our day!

The Union Label.

Pueblo, Colo.

The union label of organized labor creates the trade agreement. It is a most glorious conception of equality, the very incarnation of those attributes which beautified the guild hall mark of olden times. It is leading towards a plane of perfection though at the present time it has just arrived at its intermediate stage of progress. Its future stands for all that is noble, all that is sweet in life, and all that is earnest, for the elevation of mankind and womankind. It is the educator of the coming generation. Unity, federation, right and justice, legislation, a happy and prosperous future go with the union label of organized labor. It is the highest type of patriotism that springs from the heart of man and a most important factor in the final attainment of real liberty.

These leaves make friends and celebrate with gentle rites the vows of peace. They have given consolation to the world. They are the companions of the lonely, the friends of the imprisoned, of the exile, of workers in mines, of fellers of forests, of sailors on the deep seas. They are the givers of strength and calm to the vexed and wearied minds of those that build with thought and brain and temples of the soul. They tell of hope and rest. They smooth the wrinkled brows of care, drive fear and strange mishappen dreads from out the mind, and fill the heart with rest and peace. Within their warp and woof some potent, gracious spell imprisoned lies, that when released by fire doth softly steal within the fortress of the brain and bind in sleep the captured sentinels of care and grief. These leaves are the friends of the firesides and their smoke like incense rises from myriads of happy homes. Cuba is the smile of the sea.

- GIBSON WEBER, 1710 N. Gratz St., Station C, Philadelphia, Pa., Treasurer.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children, and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members, who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also as per Section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study Section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal will" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member; if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

Notice of the special assessment of $1 on all 30c and 60c members and 50c on Class B members, in compliance with Section 92 (a) of the Constitution, is herewith given. This assessment takes effect Sept. 24, 1923, and may be paid in two weekly installments. New initiates who have not been members for four months are exempt from all assessments. All who join after Sept. 24 are exempt from payment of the September assessment. Class B members do not have to pay any International assessments until they have been members for six months. Forty-cent beneficiary members do not have to pay the special strike fund assessment. Members out of work are not exempt from this assessment.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

On and after Jan. 1, 1924, Section 145 must, to satisfy the insurance company, be complied with in making application for death benefit. The section follows:

Sec. 145. Upon the death of any member entitled to death benefit, the secretary of the local union shall at once notify the International President, giving a full record of the membership of such member, as far as can be obtained from the books of such local union, and forward his due book and card, together with a death certificate signed by the proper authorities. This certificate to be furnished by the beneficiary or beneficiaries to the International office. The International President shall compare such record with the records of the International Office and notify the local union of his findings. The International Union shall pay the benefit to the local union of which the deceased was a member.

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

Many requests are received for blank monthly reports about this time. Monthly blanks are mailed from Jan. 20 to 25 to the corresponding secretary of each union and contain the following supplies for the year:

- 24 Financial statements.
- 12 Label reports.
- 12 State of trade.
- 12 Sick benefit reports.
- 2 Officers' reports.
- 10 Supply orders.

Secretaries who do not receive the package within a reasonable time should make inquiries at the postoffice, and if it is not there, they should notify this office at once so the proper inquiries may be made.

DECISIONS OF THE PRESIDENT

T. Torre appealed against Union 14, Chicago, for suspending him for non-payment of dues and assessments. The appeal was not sustained.

INTERNATIONAL FINES

The International Executive Board approved the application of 224, Salt Lake City, to fine F. A. Schenck for going to work for a non-union concern, but reduced to fine from $100 to $25. Vote: Affirmative, 3; for $25, 5.

Approved the application of 4, Cincinnati, to fine Arthur L. Slemmer (47920) $50 for working as a strike breaker in 1919 at the Greenwald Shop. Vote: Affirmative 5, negative 1; one member approved only $10.

Approved the application of 2, Buffalo, to fine Peter Lang $50 for working as a strike breaker in a street car strike. Vote: Affirmative 7; one member favored only a $25 fine.

Approved the application of 28, Westfield, Mass., to fine George Brady (3272) $50 for having his house painted by non-union painters. Vote: Affirmative 6, negative 2.
